J. S. Peters Will Preside At State Parley

Other Officers and Key Committeemen Are Named.

The official lineup of principal officers and key committee posts of the state Democratic executive committee were announced yesterday by Herman Talmadge, son of the Governor-nominee, in preparation for the state convention, which opens in Macon October 2.

The list of officers will include: James S. Peters, Manchester banker and former member of the house, chairman.

DeLacey Allen, of Albany, member of the house, first vice chairman.

Dewey L. Johnson, of Atlanta, president, Georgia Federation of Labor, second vice chairman.

Mrs. Susie T. Moore, of Tifton, former state senator, third vice president.

Key Positions.

Here are the important key posts as announced by Talmadge: Shelby Myrick, of Savannah, will be chairman of the platform committee. Isaac S. Peebles Jr., of Augusta, and Hughes Spalding, of Atlanta, will assist Myrick in the drafting of the platform.

Judge M. D. Dickerson, of Douglas, judge of the Waycross judicial circuit, will be chairman of the contest committee.

J. Wesley Culpepper, of Fayetteville, will be chairman of the resolutions committee.

Scott Candler, DeKalb county commissioner, will deliver the keynote address at the opening of the convention.

To Be Largest.

The Macon convention will be one of the largest, if not the largest, ever held, as more than 3,000 delegates will be on hand to cast the 405 votes. This resulted from a move by the Governor-elect calling upon the counties to split their votes into eighths or sixteenths and instead of sending one delegate for each vote send either eight or sixteen.

While most of the counties in the state are sending eight delegates and a like number of alternates for each vote allotted the county, some of them are sending 16 delegates for each vote.

This move was instituted by Talmadge "to swell the crowd" and to encourage more persons to take an interest in their state Democratic convention.

Hotels in Macon have been filled for 10 days and many of the delegates have launched moves to sleep in Pullmans during the stay in Macon because they have been unable to make reservations in the hotels.

Legion Shouts Condemnation Of Aggressors

Neutrality Opposition Is Voted; Georgians Are Given Awards.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—(P)—In a series of tumultuous scenes, the American Legion today shouted a condemnation of "aggressor nations" and voted against a policy of strict United States neutrality before closing its 22d convention with the election of Milo J. Warner, of Toledo, Ohio, as its new national commander.

At the end of a four-day session, marked by harmony, the Legionnaires broke into noisy disagreement over a resolution which would have reaffirmed the organization's 16-year-old position in favor of a "hands off" policy toward foreign disputes.

Proponents shouted that this country "was not ready for involvement and we should not abandon our historic policy of keeping our powder dry and our mouths shut."

A spokesman for the opposition, Department Commander Alfred Kelly, of Oregon, replied: "The people of America want courage from the American Legion, not appeasement. Appeasement will lead us to war."

The resolution was roared down on a voice vote, with opponents among the 1,451 delegates all but drowning out those in favor. Already picked to lead the 1941 American Legion convention parade at Milwaukee, the department of Georgia received five additional Legion awards based upon its membership record during the past year.

The Georgia Legionnaires were awarded the Hanford MacNider, Alvin M. Owsley, John G. Emery, John R. Quinn and Henry L. Stevens Jr. trophies for high membership percentages as compared with records of previous years and with quotas assigned in addition to the O. L. Bodenhamer trophy, which is presented to the department chosen to lead the national convention parade.

Axis To Sign Own 'Doctrine,' Berlin Reports

Hands Off Europe and Africa, World To Be Warned.

By The Associated Press.
BERLIN, Sept. 27.—(Friday)—A Rome-Berlin sponsored "Monroe Doctrine" for Europe and Africa, including a plainly stated notice to the rest of the world to keep hands off, appeared to be a certainty in a new phase of Axis policy to be concluded today.

Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, one of the planners of the Axis new era, came to Berlin to help formally seal, sign and deliver what informed sources described as "a destiny-making program."

(Spain will participate in the signing, the United Press reported.)

Indications that something like a Monroe Doctrine for the European and African continents is planned appeared in the well-informed Hamburger Fremdenblatt, which said:

"Germany and Italy give shape to the future even while they're fighting. Their Monroe Doctrine for Europe and Africa describes the border of their living space and implies their determination to support these borders with all conceivable security factors."

The authoritative news commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland reported that the battle of Dakar and America's "active interest in England's intentions of securing a foothold in west Africa" also would figure in the Axis conferences.

The war plans also may call for alignment of Spain and Japan as new allies against Britain.

Pact-Signing Reported.
Dienst Aus Deutschland, which is close to the German foreign office, said "Wilhelmstrasse obviously intends to prevent premature unveiling of diplomatic steps now under way," but almost in the same paragraph went ahead to cite:

1. A rumor that the visiting Spanish minister of government, No. 1 aide and brother-in-law of Generalissimo Franco, Ramon Serrano Suner, would attend tomorrow's Axis parley.

2. Recent discussion of a Japanese-Axis alliance. The commentary pointed out that Ciano's reception of the Japanese ambassador to Rome, on the heels of last week's conferences between German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Premier Mussolini, had attracted international attention.

It said that the unsuccessful British-aided attempt by the so-called "free French" forces of General Charles de Gaulle to seize Dakar, capital of French Senegal and a key port of the south Atlantic, raised the problem of strategic military bases on the African western coast.

En route to the barracks provided for them by the French, the Japanese regiments—marching behind a squadron of their light tanks—exchanged with the French nothing more hostile than curt salutes.

The crack battalions of French colonial infantry moved out, their fine artillery and machineguns puzzled—another undefeated army on the road back without ever having come to grips with the advancing force.

Only Haiphong's normal French garrison will be left to exercise a passive check on what many observers thought would be a prodigious Japanese attempt to develop a foothold into complete control of the colony.

For yesterday's detachments of Japanese troops were the forerunners of at least 4,000 or 5,000 more scheduled to disembark this week to garrison three air bases in northern Indo-China granted to the Japanese by the French government at Vichy.

6 Child Refugees, 40 Adults Saved After Week in Lifeboat

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—(Friday)—Six children and 40 grownups were brought into port late last night from the sea, rescued from the City of Benares disaster by British flying boats and a warship after eight days on the Atlantic in an open boat, lashed by great waves, their food gone, their hope vanished.

The survivors told stories of endless terror, of fighting, hour after hour, to keep the children from washing out of the boat.

A total of 248 City of Benares passengers, 77 of them children bound for the safety of Canada, still are missing, and probably are dead.

The ship sank September 17 in mid-Atlantic, and the British say she was torpedoed.

Spotted 600 Miles at Sea.

The 46 landed at a British port last night were spotted Wednesday by a British flying boat 600 miles out in the Atlantic, and taken aboard a warship guided to the spot by another flying boat.

The children among them were William Cunningham Short, 9, of Sunderland; Paul Shearing, 12, of Bournemouth; Harry Frederick Steel, 11, of Southampton; Howard Francis Clayton, 11, of Middlesex; Derek Alfred Capel, 12, of Middlesex, and Kenneth Johns Sparks, 13, of Wembley. William's 5-year-old brother, Peter

RAF Bombers Set 100-Mile Fires on Coast

Previous Raids Dwarfed; Nightly Raids on Berlin Promised.

By The Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 27.—(Friday)—British bombers set off a 100-mile string of raging fires along the continental coast all the way from Zeebrugge, Belgium, to Cap Gris Nez, France, early today in a raid which dwarfed even their previous savage assaults.

Starting at Dunkerque, the RAF set the first great fires to blazing, then struck next to the south at Calais, Boulogne and Cap Gris Nez, nearest Nazi-held French port to Britain, and completed the almost solid line of flames with attacks on the Ostend area to the north.

German searchlights frantically stabbed the skies in an effort to locate the British bombers for their ground batteries, but the beams virtually were lost in the bomb flashes and fires reflected brilliantly in the night skies.

The nightly attack on Adolf Hitler's potential invasion bases followed a day of raids that spread fire and destruction from Berlin to the Channel coast, and

Violence Spreads In Shanghai Area

SHANGHAI, Sept. 27.—(Friday)—(UP)—Strikes and violence spread in the International Settlement today and Occidental authorities feared a crisis which might culminate in a Japanese move to seize control of the French concession and most of the International Settlement.

Police charged the strikes were fomented by Japanese agents. An incendiary bomb exploded aboard a streetcar in the French concession despite a police guard, wounding several passengers and setting fire to the car.

Fight With U. S. Coming, Says Tokyo Paper

Japanese Press Attacks America for Move Against Expansion.

TOKYO, (Friday) Sept. 27.—(UP)—The Japanese press charged indignation today over the new United States embargo on scrap iron and steel and the influential newspaper Asahi went so far as to say "a clash between Japan . . . and America . . . now seems inevitable."

The new United States loan to China also drew Japanese fire. Asahi said: "A clash between Japan, which must proceed with the establishment of autonomy for East Asia, including the South Seas regions, and America, which is bent upon interfering with Japan, now seems inevitable."

The newspaper said that President Roosevelt's action in embargoing scrap iron, of which Japan was the heaviest buyer, was motivated by nervousness over the situation in Indo-China and was aimed to augment Japan's difficulties in hostilities with China, thereby impeding Japan's southward policy. Asahi added that Japan was fully prepared against American economic pressure.

The newspaper Yomiuri said that Japan must be watchful of British action concerning the now-closed Burma route to China on account of the possibility of a decision to reopen the route after consulting the United States.

So engrossed with the American action were the vernacular newspapers that they gave only brief mention in news columns to the sensational Dakar setback suffered by Britain.

Singapore Fleet Could Thwart Japan - Stirling

Believes Powerful Squadron There Would Halt March South.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The chance of United States involvement in a war with Japan seems much greater at the moment than at any time in the history of our interests in the Pacific. Rear Admiral Yates Stirling Jr., U. S. N. (retired), former chief of staff of the U. S. Fleet and now United Press naval critic, spent years in the China patrol of the United States fleet and formerly commanded the naval district comprising Hawaii and the Pearl Harbor naval base. In the following dispatch he discusses the current situation in the Orient with particular reference to the value of Britain's great naval base of Singapore—now reported to be under discussion by Washington and London as a joint base for use by both powers.)

By REAR ADMIRAL YATES STIRLING JR.
(Copyright, 1940, by United Press.)
NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Japan, true to form in taking advantage of every opportunity, is seizing bases in Indo-China and may occupy all of this rich, strategically important French colony.

The purpose of this is twofold: To advance Japanese naval and air power about 600 miles further south from the base at Hainan Island, and to use Indo-China as a military base for operations against the Chinese Nationalist armies of General Chiang Kai-shek.

Our policy in the Far East is to preserve the status quo of sea and land areas from Hongkong and Singapore extending southward through Malaya and the Dutch East Indies to Australia and New Zealand. The occupation by Japan of any of these areas would be inimical to American interests.

Unless Britain emerges from the war in Europe with a fleet strong enough to meet Japan in the Orient, this entire area will go to the totalitarian states unless America interferes with a fleet sufficiently formidable. As yet America is only a spectator with its fleet in the eastern Pacific. It is a formidable fleet, but it is without bases in the Orient. United States bases there would enable our fleet to

Act May Prove Blow to Tokyo War Economy

Hull Renews Opposition to Nipponese Moves in Indo-China.

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. The United States countered Japan's drive into French Indo-China today by placing an embargo on all iron and steel scrap exports after October 15, except to western hemisphere countries and Great Britain.

The action, it was generally believed, might prove damaging to Japan's war economy, as an estimated 90 per cent of all Japan's imports of scrap iron, which is vital to the armament industry, have been acquired in the United States.

Opposition to Japan's attempt to create "a new order in east Asia" and particularly to her military moves in Indo-China was further evidenced by Secretary of State Hull in an emphatic re-statement of principles governing American relations with other countries.

Recalls Statement.

Recalling a statement he made in July, 1937, he asserted that these principles included preservation of peace, self-restraint on the part of nations, observance of international agreements, modification of treaties by orderly processes, and respect by each nation for the rights of others.

After citing these at his press conference, Hull asserted that he wished they could be engraved on the capitol of every nation in the world. He added that any countries opposing or seeking to destroy them did so on their own responsibility.

The scrap iron embargo was ordered by President Roosevelt after consultation with defense officials and the State Department. The order was issued, an announcement said, "with a view to conserving the available supply to meet the rapidly expanding requirements of the defense program."

Loan for China.

However, it was clearly indicated that the immediate purpose of the embargo was to reinforce American policy for maintenance of the status quo in the Pacific. It quickly followed announcement of a new $25,000,000 Export-Import Bank loan to China—a step also said to have been taken at this time to bolster Chinese morale and military resistance to Japan.

The President's order brought all types of iron and steel scrap under the export licensing system, effective October 16, and provided that licenses be issued only to permit shipments to the countries of the western hemisphere and Great Britain.

It supplanted an earlier order requiring licenses for export of No. 1 heavy melting iron scrap.

When Hull was asked about the

Anti-U. S. Feeling Flares in Tokyo

SHANGHAI, Sept. 27.—(Friday)—(UP)—Travelers arriving today from Tokyo reported increasing anti-American sentiment there, including signs posted around the United States embassy in English reading:

"Japan will not permit British or American interference in Asia." They said the Meirinkai—an organization of retired army officers—had petitioned the government demanding that Japan immediately approach the United States for clarification of the American attitude toward Singapore, and urging that if the American reply is "unsatisfactory," Japan immediately seize Singapore and Hongkong from Britain.

Chattooga Jury Urges Abolishing Prison Camp

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. SUMMERVILLE, Ga., Sept. 26. The Chattooga county grand jury this week recommended abolishment of the county prison camp and of the five-member board of roads and revenues.

In its general presentments the grand jury said "more than 83 cents out of every dollar of county warrants now outstanding is for debts incurred by the prison camp."

In lieu of the present five-man board of roads and revenues, the grand jury urged a one-man board, the single member to devote his entire time to the discharge of his duties.

U. S. Reaffirms Faith in Mahan Naval Theories

Admiral Stressed Strategic Power of Nation Controlling Sea Lanes.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP) At a time when the world is witnessing a new test of sea power against land power, the navy reaffirmed its faith today in the teachings of its great apostle of sea power, the late Rear Admiral Alfred Thayer Mahan, born 100 years ago tomorrow.

In a message to the naval services, Secretary Knox asserted that Mahan's theories "are as fundamental today" as they were when death ended his work 26 years ago in the first year of the first World War.

"Mahan never ceased in his painstaking and persistent endeavors to focus attention on the strategic power held by a nation at war if it could control those sea lanes which normally were available for use of the enemy," Knox said.

President Roosevelt said today in a tribute to Mahan that it was still true that "threats of aggression can best be met at a distance from our shores." In a letter to Knox Mr. Roosevelt said the nation owed a lasting debt of gratitude to the "great strategist and statesman."

In an essay published in the United States Naval Institute proceedings, Captain W. D. Puleston, retired, added that, "considering the events of the present war to date (August 15) despite submarine and air attack, Mahan's thesis of sea power still obtains as far as it applies to the United States. Actually the development of these new weapons enhances our advantage over foreign competitors for sea power."

Contemplating the threat which air power as employed by Germany, has presented to traditional sea power, United States naval authorities emphasized that this country has kept abreast of events with the "finest naval aviation in the world."

"If ever the vast ocean reaches are continuously controlled from the air," Puleston said, "it will be done by United States naval aviation," which was established as early as 1910.

Knowing Mahan's receptiveness to new weapons and his belief that a strong fleet alone was not sufficient, some naval experts surmised that he would have urged the fullest use of aircraft.

Flax Process Seen as Boon To Cotton Use

Authorities Predict New, Superior Fabrics Will Be Developed.

Development of a quick and efficient method of preparing flax fiber for textile mills, announced yesterday by Georgia Tech, should in no way curtail cotton consumption, authorities in the textile field were agreed yesterday.

In fact, they pointed out, based on past experience with new fibers which, combined with cotton, the introduction of flax into the field will probably result in an increase in cotton consumption by the development of new cotton and linen combinations with features superior to those possessed by either fabric alone.

These things, of course, depend on the success of flax growing in this country, and on some further refinement of the decortication process as worked out by the Tech engineers.

Editor Comments. Robert W. Phillip, editor of Cotton, in commenting on the Tech experiments yesterday, said: "If the decortication process works as efficiently as those who have developed it believe, and if the farmer finds that he can grow flax profitably on his land, which experiments seem to indicate, the textile mills will be able to handle the fiber without any disruption of their economy."

"Though the fact is not generally known to the public, many mills, under pressure of public demand for new fabrics, have already been combining other fibers with cotton in the production of textiles. There are a few mills in Georgia which have been converted totally to other fibers. There are many which work with cotton and other fibers in combination."

Wider Market Cited. "Instead of causing a slump in cotton consumption, the combination of cotton with other fibers has resulted in an increase in cotton consumption. If a manufacturer can find a market for 100,000 cotton and linen suits, where he can find no market for 100,000 cotton suits, the cotton producer is just that much better off."

T. M. Forbes, secretary of the Georgia Cotton Manufacturers' Association, sees in the new development a chance for textile mills to enter a new and broader field.

"If it proves to be what experiments seem to indicate it will be, it should mean a great deal to the south, both from the standpoint of the farmer who will find himself with a new cash crop and from the standpoint of the manufacturer," Forbes said.

Mill Experiments Planned.

Perrin N. Collier, vice president and director of research for Callaway Mills at LaGrange, said yesterday that his plant has some of the Tech flax fiber which "looks better" than flax fibers they have already successfully spun. They plan to try experiments under actual mill conditions as soon as the Tech plant can turn out a sufficient quantity of the fiber for spinning purposes.

The Georgia farmer was warned yesterday, though, that flax growing under present circumstances will not prove a road to riches overnight.

Dr. H. P. Stuckey, director of the Georgia Experiment Station at Griffin, discussing the results of experiments, said: "We have found," he said, "that where flax was planted on good land, it grew well in the northern part of the state. The southern part of the state can grow a seed flax, but the soil is not adapted to growing the type whose fiber is useful in textile mills."

Little Fertilization Needed. "Also, though flax does not require high fertilization nor cultivation, it is a crop which must be planted in the spring and does not choke out weeds as grain crops, planted in the fall, are able to do."

"On certain lands where weed infestation is heavy the flax yield may be seriously curtailed. Also, where weeds are present, the only suitable method for harvesting is to pull the flax by hand, a process which runs up the cost of production."

"We are now working on experiments in weed control which we believe will result in flax crops clean enough to be harvested by machinery."

"When we are successful in this, the farmer may look forward to flax production with much hope of success."

In fact, the picture from the standpoint of the farmer holds out bright hope of a successful additional cash crop.

Chapman Optimistic.

Dean Paul W. Chapman, of the State College of Agriculture, who has been taking a keen interest in flax production since the Tech experiments began, believes that the state can produce all the flax fiber for which a market can be created. In a telegram to The Constitution yesterday he said:

"Flax may be grown successfully in any part of northern Georgia, though the best yields have been obtained in the northern third of the state. I believe that the crop could be produced

Wesleyan Body To Buy Picture To Aid Chinese

Portrait of Madame Chiang Will Bring Funds for Relief.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Dr. Sara Branham, representing alumnae of Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., today disclosed the alumnae group will purchase for Wesleyan a recently completed portrait of Madame Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the Chinese generalissimo and graduate of the Georgia school.

Proceeds from the sale of the picture by the Women's Committee of Tribute to China will be used for the relief of Chinese war refugees, it was said.

Mrs. Branham's announcement came during a reception at the Chinese embassy, at which Mrs. Pearl Buck, author, presented to the Chinese ambassador, Dr. Hu Shih, a "Book of Hope" containing the autographs of 1,000 women who have contributed $100 or more each for medical aid to Chinese women and children. Mrs. Buck is chairman of the women's committee, and Mrs. James E. Hughes is vice chairman.

The "Book of Hope" will be forwarded to Madame Chiang at Chungking, China. The funds represented will be used for Chinese relief.

The portrait of the generalissimo's wife was painted by Lazar Raditz, artist-member of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, who presented it to the women's committee to be sold.

Madame Chiang attended and was graduated from Wesleyan College a number of years ago, and in the ensuing years has manifested a continuing interest in the institution's affairs.

Dr. Branham represented Wesleyan alumnae by appointment from Mrs. Harold McKenzie, of Atlanta, president of the alumnae group.

profitably for industrial use in at least 40 counties.

"No special machinery is needed for growing or harvesting flax. The usual machinery for producing and harvesting grain is satisfactory. The cash outlay in producing flax is relatively low, and might be compared with the cost of producing wheat or oats."

LIAISON OFFICER—Lieutenant Commander Harry F. Dobbs, former head of Naval Reserve unit here, will serve as navy liaison officer with the Georgia selective service staff.

ALSO GETS POST—Major Charles J. Brockman, former University of Georgia chemistry professor for 19 years, will act as army liaison officer of the Georgia selective service staff.

Two Georgians Are Named to Liaison Posts

Brockman and Dobbs Will Serve With State Draft Board.

Two well-known Georgians have been appointed to serve as liaison officers between Georgia's Selective Service Board and the army and navy.

They are Major Charles J. Brockman, for 19 years a member of the chemistry department at the University of Georgia, and Lieutenant Commander Harry F. Dobbs, of Atlanta, former commander of the Naval Reserve Battalion here and later in charge of naval recruiting of junior officers.

Major Brockman's appointment was made by Robert P. Patterson, assistant secretary of war. Lieutenant Commander Dobbs was appointed by Admiral W. H. Allen, commandant of Naval District 6.

Brockman, who was a reserve officer on in the Chemical Warfare Department, began his year of active duty at once and took up quarters at the Military Department on Confederate avenue, where the selective service staff will be quartered.

Now acting as a regular army major, Brockman will have charge of draft deferments in Class II of the draft act; that is, those persons who are deferred because of occupations in industry or agriculture that are necessary to defense.

He will serve, also, as a liaison between the selective service staff and the office of the assistant secretary of war, reporting to the secretary on Class II deferments.

A veteran of the World War, Major Brockman is a member of the Engineering Board of Georgia. He was selected for the post because of his engineering experience and his knowledge of the "essential industries" group.

Since called to active duty last June, Commander Dobbs has been in charge of a navy recruiting drive in this section which sought to bolster the junior officer personnel in the service. This drive, which was nationwide, is now nearing completion.

Prior to beginning active service, he commanded the Atlanta Naval Reserve Battalion. Commander Dobbs lives at 1830 Peachtree road and will maintain his liaison office at the military department with the selective service staff.

Singapore Fleet Could Thwart Japan - Stirling

halt the Japanese march southward.

There have been conversations in Washington recently between the United States, Britain and Australia, said to be concerned with the lease of naval bases in the Far East.

The naval base at Singapore must have stood high as a topic of these talks. It is at least equal to our Pearl Harbor base in Hawaii. Over $100,000,000 has been spent upon its development as the Gibraltar of the western Pacific. Singapore's position commands the narrow Straits of Malacca, the main highway and shortest route for commerce between the Indian ocean and the China sea. A sizable British or American fleet based at Singapore would ring down the curtain plans, Commander Dobbs will have charge of the assignment of draftees to navy branches. It will be his responsibility to assign only men who are suited to navy needs and requirements.

to a Japanese naval advance into those tropical seas or toward Australia or New Zealand. Japan would hardly dare attempt the invasion of the Dutch East Indies or British Malaya as long as Singapore stood.

Great Guns Guard.

The base lies along the Straits of Johore, east of the causeway linking the island of Singapore to the Malay mainland both by road and rail. It is protected with 16-inch and 18-inch guns with a range of over 30 miles. There is a graving dock capable of taking the biggest battleships, also a huge floating drydock that can lift ships up to 50,000 tons displacement. Ammunition, stores and millions of tons of oil are well protected from bomb attacks. There is a large garrison to man the guns and airfields for adequate air protection.

A fleet arriving to use the base might, however, experience difficulty in organizing a competent repair force unless it brought the organization with it from home. The population of Singapore is almost entirely oriental. In an emergency, fleet personnel could accomplish ordinary repairs.

We can be sure that the Dutch government of the Indies and the British have planned for the defense of this area, and France, if it could avoid it, would not let Indo-China pass into the hands of the Japanese.

The American-British attitude surely must be to give China all possible encouragement to stand out against Japan. Until China is defeated Japan will hesitate to carry out her major aims southward. By giving material aid to China, especially air forces, while Japan is at war with another sea power of almost equal strength, Russia might cause a Japanese collapse.

Hongkong Inadequate.

Hongkong, once a British first class base, now is surrounded by Japan's naval and military power, and today is inadequate to base a fleet.

If Singapore is held by England or America with a fleet based thereon, Japan's naval power would be cut off by the threat of that base and fleet, from further marches to the southward. Singapore's conquest would cause Japan a major effort in any case, and the intention of the United States would be an important consideration to the Japanese general staff.

Air power will be an important factor in the control of this Far Eastern area. Singapore is said to have 1,200 planes, and there are about 400 in the Dutch East Indies. Australia and New Zealand can supply some planes. But America, if she could use British bases across the Pacific for her increasing air power, might eventually bring an enormous number of airplanes into a war against Japan.

It seems evident that Japan's aggressive attitude in this part of the world will be influenced by the results in Europe; and America's final decision for war or peace in the Far East may hinge upon the result of the battle of Britain.

Republicans Nominate Bruce Barton for Senate

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(P)—

New York Republican leaders, meeting what they indicated was the preference of Wendell L. Willkie, agreed late today on Republican Bruce Barton as candidate for United States senator.

The New York city advertising executive's name will go before the party's state convention at White Plains tomorrow. Barton said "If nominated, I will be proud and happy to accept."

Barton, who seconded Willkie's presidential nomination at Philadelphia, would oppose United States Senator James M. Mead, ardent New Dealer from Buffalo, with their contest exerting heavy influence on the presidential race for "pivot" New York's 47 electoral votes.

Child Refugees, Adults Saved In Open Boat

with the appearance of a British warship. We were taken aboard and revived by the crew.

"The children behaved magnificently. Heavy seas burst over us time and again and it took us all of our time to save the children from being carried overboard."

Nagorski said that on the sixth day of their long anxiety the survivors had sighted a ship, "but we could not make contact with it."

The mother of young Short exclaimed:

"The news is almost too good to be true."

But she added that there was no news at all of her younger son, Peter, and the boy's father broke in:

"But this gives us hope that Peter, too, may yet prove to have been saved."

Scanty Meals.

One of the children saved said:

"We didn't have breakfast any day. The first meal was lunch. Each of us got half a biscuit."

Sometimes with it we got a piece of sardine, or a little bit of meat, and one day each of got one-eighth of a peach. I never realized how valuable water is! We could have drunk a gallon a day."

Miss Mary Cornish, of London, only woman in the lifeboat, said the children were "quite cheerful."

"They passed the time singing and telling stories," she related.

"We had a serial—my own version of Bulldog Drummond. Never at any time did the boys complain."

The air ministry's story of the rescue, accomplished after an exhaustive search over hundreds of miles of the Atlantic follows:

"Two Sunderlands, one belonging to the Royal Australian Air Force, shared in the rescue. The Australian Sunderland had just been relieved from convoy escort when it found the lifeboat.

Lamp Signals.

"The captain flew to the convoy and asked the captain of a Royal Air Force Sunderland, which had been taken over from him, to see to the rescue of the survivors."

"By Aldis lamp signals he gave their exact positions. The second Sunderland took over the rescue. The captain said: 'The Sunderland we were relieving over the convoy sent up a message just before going off patrol. The captain said he had sighted a boat. He could not stay because his petrol was running low. We went straight to the place he indicated and found the boat at once.'

"All the people in the boat were sitting or lying down except one man, who was at the tiller. 'Some amidships seemed to be in a rather bad way. They had hoisted a sail and were making what speed they could.'

"When we got there we dropped a parachute bag filled with all the food we had on board. We attached a life jacket to keep it afloat."

"We circled round and made them a signal that we were going to get help but they had only a semaphore which we were traveling too fast to read."

"However, we made them understand that we were going to fetch a ship which we thought about 40 miles away."

"We found a warship and signalled that there was a boat full of people and indicated their position. I said we would meet the warship near the lifeboat."

"We flew back to the boat and then to the warship again but she was not on the right course so I signalled 'Follow me' and then flew directly over the ship toward the lifeboat. The warship altered course and followed."

"When I was getting near the boat I dropped a smoke flare which the warship saw and signalled 'O. K.'"

"We were very glad to see those people safe and all feel very backed up about it."

One of the largest realty transactions closed for some time in the city was announced yesterday following the purchase of seven northside apartments, comprising 74 units, and involving approximately $150,000 cash, by John H. Candler and Associates, Inc.

The properties were purchased from the Southwall Corporation, of New York, and practically all units in each of the seven apartments, which consist of from three to five rooms, now are occupied. The annual rental, it is understood, will approximate $35,000 to $40,000.

The seven apartments, with the number of units in each, are:
No. 57 LaFayette drive, 9 units.
No. 63 LaFayette drive, 9 units.
No. 67 Thirteenth street, N. E., 14 units.
No. 71 Thirteenth street, N. E., 14 units.
No. 1111 Briarcliff place, 8 units.
No. 1115 Briarcliff place, 8 units.

Negotiations for the sale were handled by H. W. DiCristina, of Haas & Dodd, while Bruce Woodruff, local attorney, represented the Candler interests in the deal. Titles to the various properties were examined and guaranteed by the Atlanta Title & Trust Company.

John H. Candler and Associates, Inc., is a newly organized real estate firm in Atlanta. Mr. Candler formerly was associated with Briarcliff, Inc. The purchasers will operate and handle the newly acquired property.

IN CANADA'S HANDS—The Canadian armed merchant cruiser, Prince Robert, has captured the German express cargo ship, Weser (above), off Manzanillo, Mexico, Canada's navy minister said yesterday.

Dakar Failure 'Explained' by 'Free French'

Wanted To Save Their Arms To Fight Germany, They Say.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(P)—General Charles de Gaulle's "Free French" headquarters declared tonight the abandonment of the abortive Dakar expedition definitely proved the wish of his followers to save their arms for the fight against Germany.

"The moral prestige of General de Gaulle and his troops remains intact," the statement said. "The magnificent efforts of Free French forces will not be relaxed merely because of the failure of Dakar."

Although it charged authorities of the west African capital acted under German pressure when they fired on De Gaulle's emissaries, the communiqué contended "the population of French Africa is giving daily evidence of its patriotism despite all stern measures adopted by the German government."

It went on to say that British naval authorities, who acknowledged the operations cost them casualties and damage to their warships, withdrew at De Gaulle's request so as not to force French troops to fight other Frenchmen.

The British announced that Prime Minister Churchill received a message today from the French Cameroons declaring the Dakar episode had failed to deter "their determination to continue the struggle against Germany side by side with the British government."

The message was said to have been signed by veterans of the World War and the present conflict, civil servants, doctors, merchants, colonists, planters and missionaries.

Britons swallowed their disappointment at the failure of the Dakar expedition, described by neutral diplomatic quarters as a "resounding diplomatic defeat."

Criticism, however, gained force amid predictions from informed sources that Churchill would make a formal statement on the frustrated effort.

Press criticism was aimed at unnamed "advisers" who recommended that the expedition be undertaken in the first place.

Lobby talk among members of the house of commons indicated the government would be called to answer detailed questions on what the press termed the "Dakar fiasco."

Vernon Bartlett, outspoken M. P., again used the News Chronicle's columns to declare the Dakar decision had an air of appeasement in it.

The Churchill government was not, however, expected to be challenged over the incident.

DE GAULLE SYMPATHIZER FIRED, NAZI RADIO SAYS

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(P)—The Berlin radio broadcast a dispatch from Vichy, France, today which said the resident-general of the French island of Reunion, east of Madagascar, has been dismissed because he sympathized with the "Free French" movement of General Charles de Gaulle.

Hero Who Fished Bombs Injured by Automobile

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(P)—The man who played nursemaid to unexploded German time bombs for three weeks without a scratch is in the hospital—an automobile got him.

He is L. F. Davies, no kin of the lieutenant of the same surname who removed a bomb from St. Paul's cathedral, but he achieved an equally daring feat by fishing out and carting away one threatening the facade of Buckingham palace.

An early rise in a coupe ran down Davies while he was doing patrol duty in blacked-out London two days ago. His condition is serious.

Time Bomb Is Rumored In Labor Department

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(P) Secretary of Labor Perkins ordered the Labor Department evacuated this afternoon, and it was reported that the order resulted from a rumor that a time bomb had been planted in the building.

Guards cleared the room and halls about 4:45 p. m., when most of the employees had left, and no one was allowed to enter. The Federal Bureau of Investigation was understood to have made a search, but bureau spokesmen declined any comment.

STEAMSHIPS ORDERED.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(P) The Maritime Commission today awarded the Moore Drydock Company, of Oakland, Cal., a contract for the construction of three steamships for the Ocean Dominion Steamship Corporation at a price of $2,850,000 each.

Canada Seizes Nazi Ship in Neutral Zone

Suspected of Being Refueling Vessel for Nazi Submarines.

OTTAWA, Sept. 26.—(P)—The capture of the 9,179-ton German express cargo ship Weser in American neutrality waters was disclosed today by Navy Minister Angus MacDonald.

The seizure, he said, was made by the 6,892-ton Canadian armed merchant cruiser Prince Robert—recently converted from her peacetime pursuits as a passenger cruise vessel—off Manzanillo, Mexico, last night.

While nothing official was said on the point, it appeared that the Weser had been taken well within the American neutrality zone.

She ran into Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, shortly after the outbreak of the war and arrived in Manzanillo late in July. Canadian sources said she was suspected of having acted, or been prepared to act, as a refueling ship for Nazi submarines.

A message to naval headquarters from Commander Charles T. Beard, of the Prince Robert, said the Weser was being escorted to Esquimalt, British Columbia. He did not say whether she was armed, or had offered resistance.

Comer Asks 'Fair Break' In Defense Industries

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(P) Donald Comer, Birmingham, Ala., manufacturer, appealed tonight for a "fair break" to the south in the development of defense industries.

In a paper read to the agricultural committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce, the Alabamian asserted the spending of defense dollars in the south would arrest the spread of farm tenancy.

A leader in the south's drive for economic equality, Comer is a consultant to Chester C. Davis, member of the National Defense Advisory Council.

Mother, a Non-Swimmer, Rescues Child From Bay

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(P)—A mother who never had learned to swim leaped into 30 feet of water in Jamaica bay today and saved her year-and-a-half-old daughter, who had fallen from a float.

Mrs. Mary Satterlee, attracted by the screams of children, who saw her daughter Mary fall into the water, ran to the end of the float and without hesitation jumped into the bay, grasped the child and made her way to nearby rocks.

The mother and daughter were treated for submersion and the child was held at a hospital for observation.

EATS CORN STALKS—
This is the horn worm which Judson Stokes, 73-year-old Negro "vegetable man" at Clark University, says ate up his corn stalks.

Corn Damage Here Attributed To Horn Worm

'Vegetable Man' Not Fully Convinced by Entomologist.

By LEE ROGERS.

The old Negro grabbed off his battered hat, baring a gray head. He had a most arresting twinkle in his eye—and a bottle with a funny looking worm in his hand.

"Boss, man, I've got the worm the government's been trying to find. It's done eat up all my corn crop nearly and I found it after those government men came out looking for it the other day. I know it because I used to live out west and we had it out there. 'We worked hard out west and learned a little bit about killing these things. Now if I've got it here first before any of those government men, I want to show 'em this old Negro is a little smarter than they give us credit for being.'"

Judson Stokes, 73 years of age, was the speaker. They call him the "vegetable man" out at Clark University where he runs the vegetable garden.

"Use Our Heads."

"Boss, man, if I know something they don't know, I'd like to get a little money for it. See we westerners use our heads," he laughed with his whole body. Judson went over to the state entomology department with his worm. They told him it wasn't what they were looking for. They wanted the Japanese beetle. They showed him one.

"Boss, man, you show is smart. You've got me with that one. I've never done seen one of these." They described how his worm functioned. How it bored into the corn stalk. They told him it was found in Illinois but down here ate leaves off the trees, seldom bothered corn.

"You're right about how it works, bossman. But that worm done destroyed all my corn except a few stalks—anyway."

They told him his worm was a horn worm and Judson left. He wasn't convinced, though.

"I haven't got much learning, but that worm destroyed my corn. Anyway if it feeds on leaves why would it be boring into the ground?"

Born in Decatur.

Judson was born in Decatur, but as a young Negro some "Yankees" found him to be a most excellent farmer and took him to "Yankee country" with them to oversee their farms. They took him on a boat trip to Mexico once.

"I always wanted to go to England with them, but then there's no Negroes there—just Yankees," the old Negro said.

"Out west (he called Illinois the west) a fellow is just what he makes of himself. The Yankees help us. Down south if a white man helps a Negro he soon finds the Negro helping himself in his chicken coop."

"I've done told the young southern Negroes that the best place for them was in Africa. That's where they come from and the Good Book says all races will go back to their native land before the end of the world."

Uncle Judson has got a scientific bucket treatment for growing multi-eared corn. He wants to try it out in Mississippi before he dies.

Secretary Ickes Fixes Soft Coal Discount Rate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP) Secretary Ickes officially fixed at 5 cents to 50 cents a ton today the range of discount rates which soft coal producers may allow their wholesale distributors.

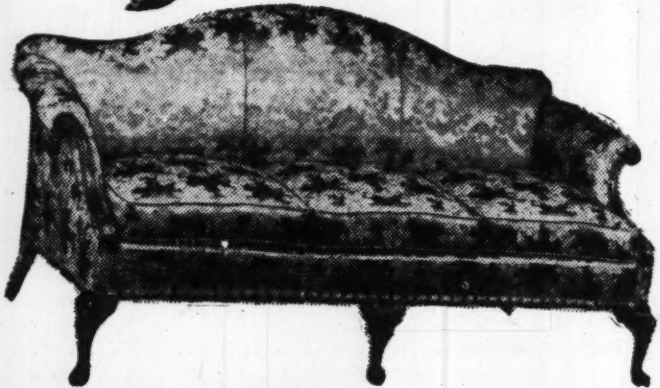

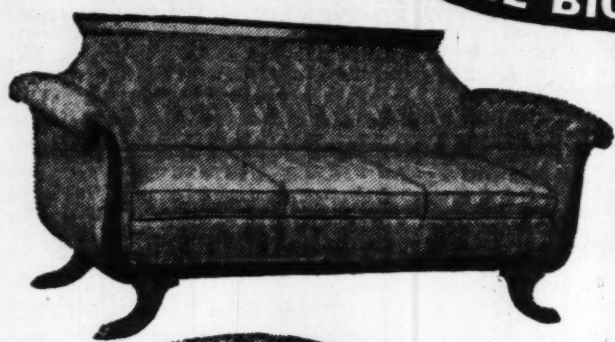

This was the range submitted to him by Howard A. Gray, director of the bituminous coal division, at conclusion of public hearings. It will become operative on October 1, at which time minimum mine prices and marketing rules and regulations of the bituminous coal act go into effect.

State Initiates Drive Against 'Loan Sharks'

Governor Orders Probe of Companies Charging Usurious Rates.

Attorney General Ellis Arnall, acting on a request of Governor Rivers, yesterday initiated plans for a statewide intensive campaign against loan companies charging interest rates in excess of the state's legal rate.

While the attorney general will have supervision of the probe, it was reliably reported that Asa W. Candler, young Atlanta attorney and former FBI investigator, will be named to direct the investigation.

The Governor's executive order directed the attorney general to take action against any persons found lending money at usurious rates of interest and to institute any court action, civil or criminal, that he might find necessary to "force the discontinuance of such illegal practices."

The Governor also said "it appears from information that in many localities of this state its citizens are being victimized by persons engaged in lending money at usurious rates of interest, which in many cases run as high as 240 per cent per annum."

Arnall said he would take steps to revoke the charters of corporations found guilty of charging usurious rates of interest.

Inman Park Club Given Big Check

A generous check from Inman Park businessmen was presented to the Inman Park Woman's Club yesterday when the executive board met with Miss Sue Methvin, organizer and life president of the club.

The money will be used for the club's charity fund, which gives support to underprivileged children, hospitals, and other needy organizations.

Plans also were made for the club's second anniversary party, which will be held at 2:30 o'clock next Friday in the tearoom of Davidson's. The club will have a miscellaneous game party and valuable prizes will be given to members.

Martin-Gourds, Alas, Will Be Absent at Fair

Plans of Martin-Bluebird Club Head Have Gone Awry.

No martin gourd will hang this year at the Southeastern Fair. No bluebird nest will acquaint the hosts with the home-life of our little feathered friends.

The plans of Connie Watts, of Baldwin, Ga., founder and president of the Martin-Bluebird Club, have "gang agone." And he is sad. Watts received a booklet the other day proclaiming the wonders of the Southeastern World's Fair. He noted therein that on the 28th day of September to the sixth day of October all the assorted wonders of the southeastern states will be displayed.

There will be the fattest cattle from the finest herds, the sheep most heavily adorned with wool, rabbits and pigeons and chickens galore, and cavies, whatever they are.

There will be a great display as Uncle Sam makes a muscle at his foes in the form of an exhibit of tanks and armored cars and planes and guns both large and small.

So Watts climbed up a ladder and took the dimensions of the treasured birdboxes which he has built for his feathered friends. He noted the size of his martin gourds. Then he left his eyrie in the mountains and came to Atlanta with his tape measure. He measured a booth in the exhibits building and he saw in his mind how his bird boxes would be displayed, how his martin pole, with gourds, would wave above it all.

Went to Fair.

Then he went to the fair people and told them he would arrive with his bird boxes, and his gourds.

The fair people listened, and they thought this was fine. But, they explained, gently, all exhibit space was taken, had been taken for months in advance. If Watts would only set up his stuff outside, now—

But Watts said no. Inside or nowhere.

So that is why, with all the wonders of the southeast on display at Lakewood September 28, there will be no martin gourds on a high pole, no houses where the bluebirds dwell.

Americans Are Buying More Passenger Cars

DETROIT, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The nation's motorists registered 2,341,091 new passenger cars during the first eight months of this year, R. L. Polk & Company reported today upon completion of August registration totals for the entire country.

A year ago, 1,821,043 new registrations were reported for the comparable period. Truck sales for the first eight months of this year totaled 391,011 units. For the same period a year ago they numbered 337,096.

'17 Boom Town To Be Restored By Troop Call

Every Vacant Lot Leased as Wrightstown, N. J., Gets Ready.

By MORLEY CASSIDY
For North American Newspaper Alliance.
WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., Sept. 26. In the wild old days of 1917, Wrightstown's business barometer hung over the bar in Bill Forbes' tap room.

That barometer was an old fire-bell. Its clapper was gone, but a hammer lay on the bar, and every patron who bought a 50-cent drink was entitled to hit that bell a lick that you could hear in New Egypt, five miles away. Most nights, they say, that fire-bell rang like an alarm clock until 6 in the morning.

Now the bell is gone. So is Bill Forbes' tap room, burned down. But hammers, once again, are banging out a message of prosperity.

The streets of this sleepy hamlet are ringing again with the sound of new construction. Truck drivers jockey for space to unload tons of merchandise. Tractors bark and snort as they yank buildings out of the way to make room for new stores.

And Bill Forbes grins happily as he stands in the doorway of his shiny chromium-steel diner, wiping his hands on his cook's apron as he watches the activity.

"Well," he says cheerfully, "Here we go again!"

Soldiers Returning
For the second time in 23 years, it seems, the lightning of prosperity is about to hit this drowsy village. The soldiers are coming back to Fort Dix.

Advance units of the 44th Division, New Jersey National Guard, have moved into camp. For weeks, the vanguard of 2,500 carpenters and mechanics have been on the scene starting to throw up the 862 buildings that must be ready to house 22,000 men before Christmas.

The army, looking for "elbow room," is contemplating the leasing of additional land which will make Fort Dix the biggest reservation in the Second Corps Area. The fort has 7,649 acres now. Tresspass rights have just been acquired to 16,333 acres more. Eventually the reservation may be enlarged to 35,000 acres.

So Wrightstown is getting ready for those 22,000 men in khaki who will be pouring into Dix this fall.

Already the town is filled to overflowing. There's not a vacant room. Carpenters are sleeping in 4-by-8-foot wallboard cubicles on the mezzanine of the antique shop that used to be "Cedar Gardens," the biggest dance-hall of World War days.

Vacant Lots Leased
Every vacant lot, landowners say, has been leased for prospective stores and filling stations and restaurants. A new rooming house, bleak as a two-story henhouse and following the henhouse style of architecture, is going up. There is talk of a big new brick hotel.

"Just like the old days," says Albert Whitsett, gray-haired proprietor of the general store on Camp Dix road.

For all this is nothing new to Wrightstown. Lightning hit here once before, in 1917.

Wrightstown was just a wide spot on a dirt road with 180 people, when the government laid out its new cantonment, and the reservation line touched the very edge of Wrightstown.

Ninety days later, Wrightstown was a bustling city of 8,000 civilians, with a floating population of 100,000 men in khaki at its back doors. Whole streets of frame and tar-paper buildings went up, and the streets were crowded.

Metropolis Overnight
Overnight, the whistle-stop became a metropolis with a bank, hotels, dance halls and theaters. Levine's theater, of pinewood and tar-paper, had a seating capacity for 2,500 and advertised "big wheel" burlesque. Forbe's theater opened with a production of "Baby Face," with the original New York cast. The Camp Dix theater played big-time vaudeville.

In the first flush of war excitement, Wrightstown, resembled nothing so much as a western mining camp in the throes of a gold rush, with its streets of frame buildings, its wide-open dice and blackjack games in nearly every doorway, and its battery of tap rooms.

Liquor flowed from a hundred spigots. Brose Smith, widely known for his apple brandy distillery, operated a bar in his hotel, and it was never empty.

"I had eight bartenders," he recalls wistfully. "One of them did nothing but draw beer. He'd open the spigot of a new keg, and let it run till the keg was empty."

Georgia Savings Bank & Trust Company Fills a Long-Felt Want

WILL DOUBTLESS BE POPULAR

Officers of Institution Are George M. Brown, President; E. C. Spalding, Vice President; W. R. Hoyt, Secretary-Treasurer.

There are in the United States 979 savings banks, having depositors to the number of 5,385,000 and with total deposits amounting to over $2,000,000,000.

This feature of the banking business does not receive the attention of Southern financiers that it deserves and the people must be shown the advantages accruing from savings banks before they will receive the liberal patronage they enjoy in the New England States.

Atlanta, with all her boasted enterprise, up to six months ago, had no bank that was strictly a savings bank, and while a few of her financial institutions would receive savings they did not seek that class of patronage. Seeing the need of a savings bank, Mr. George M. Brown and Mr. William R. Hoyt went north and studied the methods employed in conducting these banks. They were so greatly impressed with the good resulting to the laboring classes from savings banks that on their return name of the Georgia Savings Bank and Trust Company.

Its officers are George M. Brown, president; Eugene C. Spalding, vice president, and William R. Hoyt, secretary and treasurer.

Among its directors are Joseph A. McCord, John Oliver, John A. Miller, John L. Tye, and Elijah A. Brown.

The bank is doing a regular savings bank business, and will accept deposits from $1 up. An institution of this kind has been needed in Atlanta for a long time, and the fact that it has been permanently established and backed by able financiers with plenty of money insures success.

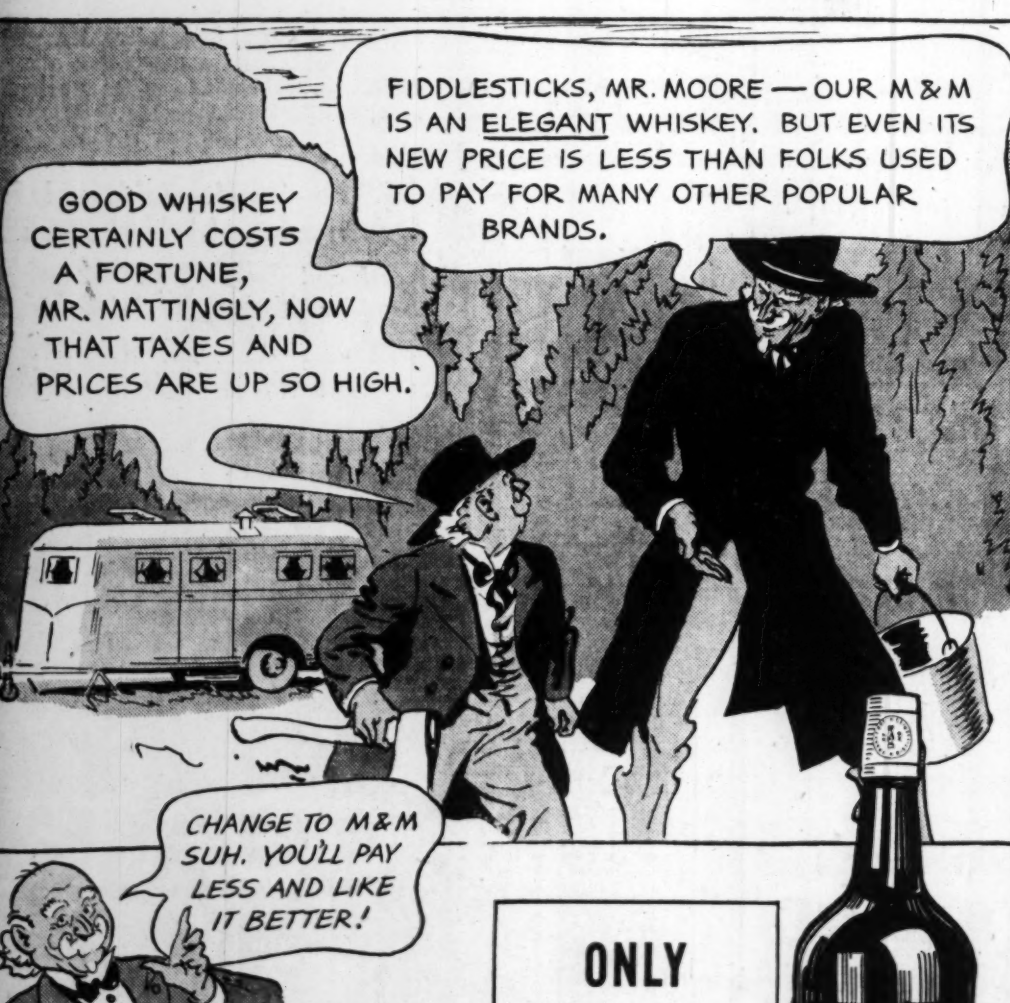

It is a good idea to save your money, and you can do it in no better way than depositing it in a first-class bank where you will be allowed a liberal interest for the use of your money.

It is a good idea to save your money, and you can do it in no better way than depositing it in a first-class bank where you will be allowed a liberal interest for the use of your money.

Being thus officered the Georgia Savings Bank and Trust Company has the implicit confidence of the public, and when its methods are better known will doubtless receive the patronage it merits.

The officers and directors of the Georgia Savings Bank & Trust Company are grateful for the confidence, good will and support which has been given it by its depositors during its 41 years of service to the public.

Film 'Actress' Arrives Today In Private Car

Glamorous Elsie To 'Moo' Up Interest in Her Picture.

Glamorous Elsie will arrive in her private train car from Hollywood at 9 o'clock this morning.

Elsie is the movie star whose arrival in Hollywood upset the social order of things when the high-priced feminine stars on the coast found their established beauty and success failed to arouse pangs of jealousy from the new arrival.

You see, Elsie is a cow. She came west to play the role of a cow in a motion picture called "Little Men." The script said the star of the film was to be Kay Francis—but that was before the director saw what a glamorous creature Elsie was.

Elsie, direct from an exhibition stall at the World's Fair in New York, was used to having the limelight all to herself. She gave Miss Francis a most unoffensive "moo," but a knowing one. Elsie knew she had the limelight in the bag.

Miss Glamor Cow turned out to be a Mrs. Her little "Beulah" was born on the "Little Men" set. "Beulah" was a lovely calf. So lovely, in fact, the R. K. O. publicity department gave a natal party for "Beulah" to which all the big shots of Hollywood were invited.

After that, Elsie was in the money. The script was rewritten to give her a bigger part and to make room for "Beulah."

Now Beulah and Elsie are being sent on a tour of the country to moo up interest in the forthcoming picture. It is in this line of duty they will appear today.

After getting the key to the city from Mayor Hartsfield in front of the city hall at 10 o'clock this morning, Elsie will retire for an hour and then begin holding open house in the Paramount theater lobby for the rest of the day.

Naked Workers Lament Japanese Shortages

Workers on farms and in mines and factories throughout Japan are lamenting their nakedness. They are finding it more and more difficult to obtain pure cotton working clothes. Fiber goods hardly stand up over night, they say. Two years have elapsed since the government at Tokyo restricted manufacture of cotton goods for domestic use. Since then the government has been promoting export of cotton goods to obtain foreign exchange.

Diphtheria Drive On In Ukraine, Russia

In a drive to stamp out diphtheria, Russia will introduce universal inoculation for children between the ages of one and eight. Tots in cities with a population of more than 50,000, as well as those in all kindergartens, creches and junior classes in grade schools, will be the first inoculated, according to A. F. Tretyakov, health commissar in Moscow. In the Ukraine universal inoculation has greatly reduced incidence of the disease.

Garner Seeks Early Congress Adjournment

Sudden Return to Capital Gives Rise to Much Speculation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP) Vice President Garner put all his force into a one-man drive for adjournment of congress today, but tonholing his friends about the capital and arguing that it was time to end the session.

He returned to Washington today, after two months of resting, hunting and fishing in Texas, boasted that he was in his best physical condition in years, telephoned to the President, held a virtual reception at the senate rostrum, and entered upon his crusade.

Ever since it had been unexpectedly announced in Texas several days ago that a vice president would come back to Washington at once, the reason for his return had been a subject of much excited speculation.

To reporters, Garner would have nothing to say regarding his plans, but had plenty to report on his physical condition.

"Feel that arm—it's solid like iron," he urged one correspondent, who did so and found the statement no exaggeration.

"Just feel that leg," he told another, who found the vice president's leg muscles hard and firm.

At the White House, Stephen T. Early, the President's secretary, said that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner had had a "very nice friendly little chat."

F. D. R. Backer Feted by Aides Of Talmadge

Co-operation Between New Deal, Governor-Elect Is Seen.

Rapprochement between the New Deal and the forthcoming Talmadge administration in Georgia was the interpretation placed in some political quarters yesterday upon a secret visit here late last week of Colonel Edward J. S. Donovan, ardent New Dealer and third-term advocate, of Palm Beach and Washington.

The visitor was entertained at a luncheon attended by Herman Talmadge, son of the future Governor, and such close associates as James S. Peters, Charlie Redwine, Lindley Camp, Samuel D. Hewlett and Zach Cravey.

Donovan had been in 38 states working for the President's re-election.

None of the participants would admit yesterday there was any political significance to the meeting. However, in addition to his other ties, Colonel Donovan is being discussed as a successor to Chip Robert as secretary of the Democratic national committee.

In previous administrations Talmadge was bitterly antagonistic to the Roosevelt policies, and organized the "Grass Roots Convention" against the President's re-election in 1936.

Exiled German Writer To Seek Refuge in U. S.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Lion Feuchtwanger, noted author and foe of Nazi Germany, has sailed from Lisbon aboard the liner Excalibur to seek refuge in America, friends here said today.

Conflicting reports from Europe have said that Feuchtwanger had been executed by Nazi officials and was in prison in Berlin.

He was living in France when that country fell and managed to reach Portugal while Nazi agents hunted him, friends said.

Solicitor Staff Cost Increases, Survey Shows

Number of Employees and Salaries From 1925 to 1939 Listed.

The annual cost of salaries for the staff of the solicitor general of the Fulton superior courts has increased nearly $20,000 since 1925, a survey of employees and salaries of the county pay roll shows.

In 1925, there were eight employees of the solicitor general and in 1939 there were 18. For a number of years prior to 1930, the bond clerk divided his time equally between the superior court and the solicitor of the Fulton criminal court. One-half of this salary shows in the cost of each solicitor.

Following is a table showing year-by-year the number of employees and their salaries:

Year	Employees	Salaries
1926	9	44,342
1927	10	47,873
1928	11	51,608
1929	11	51,900
1930	14	56,300
1931	14	57,400
1932	14	50,159
1933	13	42,772
1934	13	43,470
1935	17	54,460
1936	17	55,810
1937	18	55,660
1938	18	56,340
1939	18	56,640

During the first six months of 1940, two additional employees have been added to this staff and for that period their salaries totaled $31,344.

Son Disowned By Educator For Red Views

California Youth Admits Affiliation With Communist Party.

BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 26.—(P) A college professor disowned his son today because of the latter's Communist leanings.

Professor Samuel C. May, director of the bureau of public administration at the University of California, announced his decision just before leaving for Sacramento in connection with his duties as a member of the State Defense Council.

Last night at a meeting of the board of education, the son, Kenneth May, teaching assistant in mathematics, avowed he was an official of the campus branch of the Young Communist League and of the Alameda county Communist party.

The elder May said: "I have been expecting this to break and I have been dreading it for weeks. Everyone who knows me knows all my views are contrary to those of Kenneth. So decided are my views that I have completely disowned and disinherited my son. Kenneth seems to have gathered a lot of those beliefs in Europe."

Kenneth May studied two and one-half years in Europe on a fellowship. He said today, "It can't be helped; someone had to take the action I did."

Announcing the big NEW FORD 1941 FORD

In some years, some cars take a big jump ahead. The Ford does that for 1941.

It has jumped ahead in size. It's the biggest Ford we've ever built, inside and out. It's wider. It has a longer wheelbase. Its seating room is wider by as much as 7 inches. It has new wide doors and semi-concealed running boards.

You'll notice also a new beauty, achieved by a skilful blending of mass with longer flowing lines. Larger windshield and windows give better vision all around.

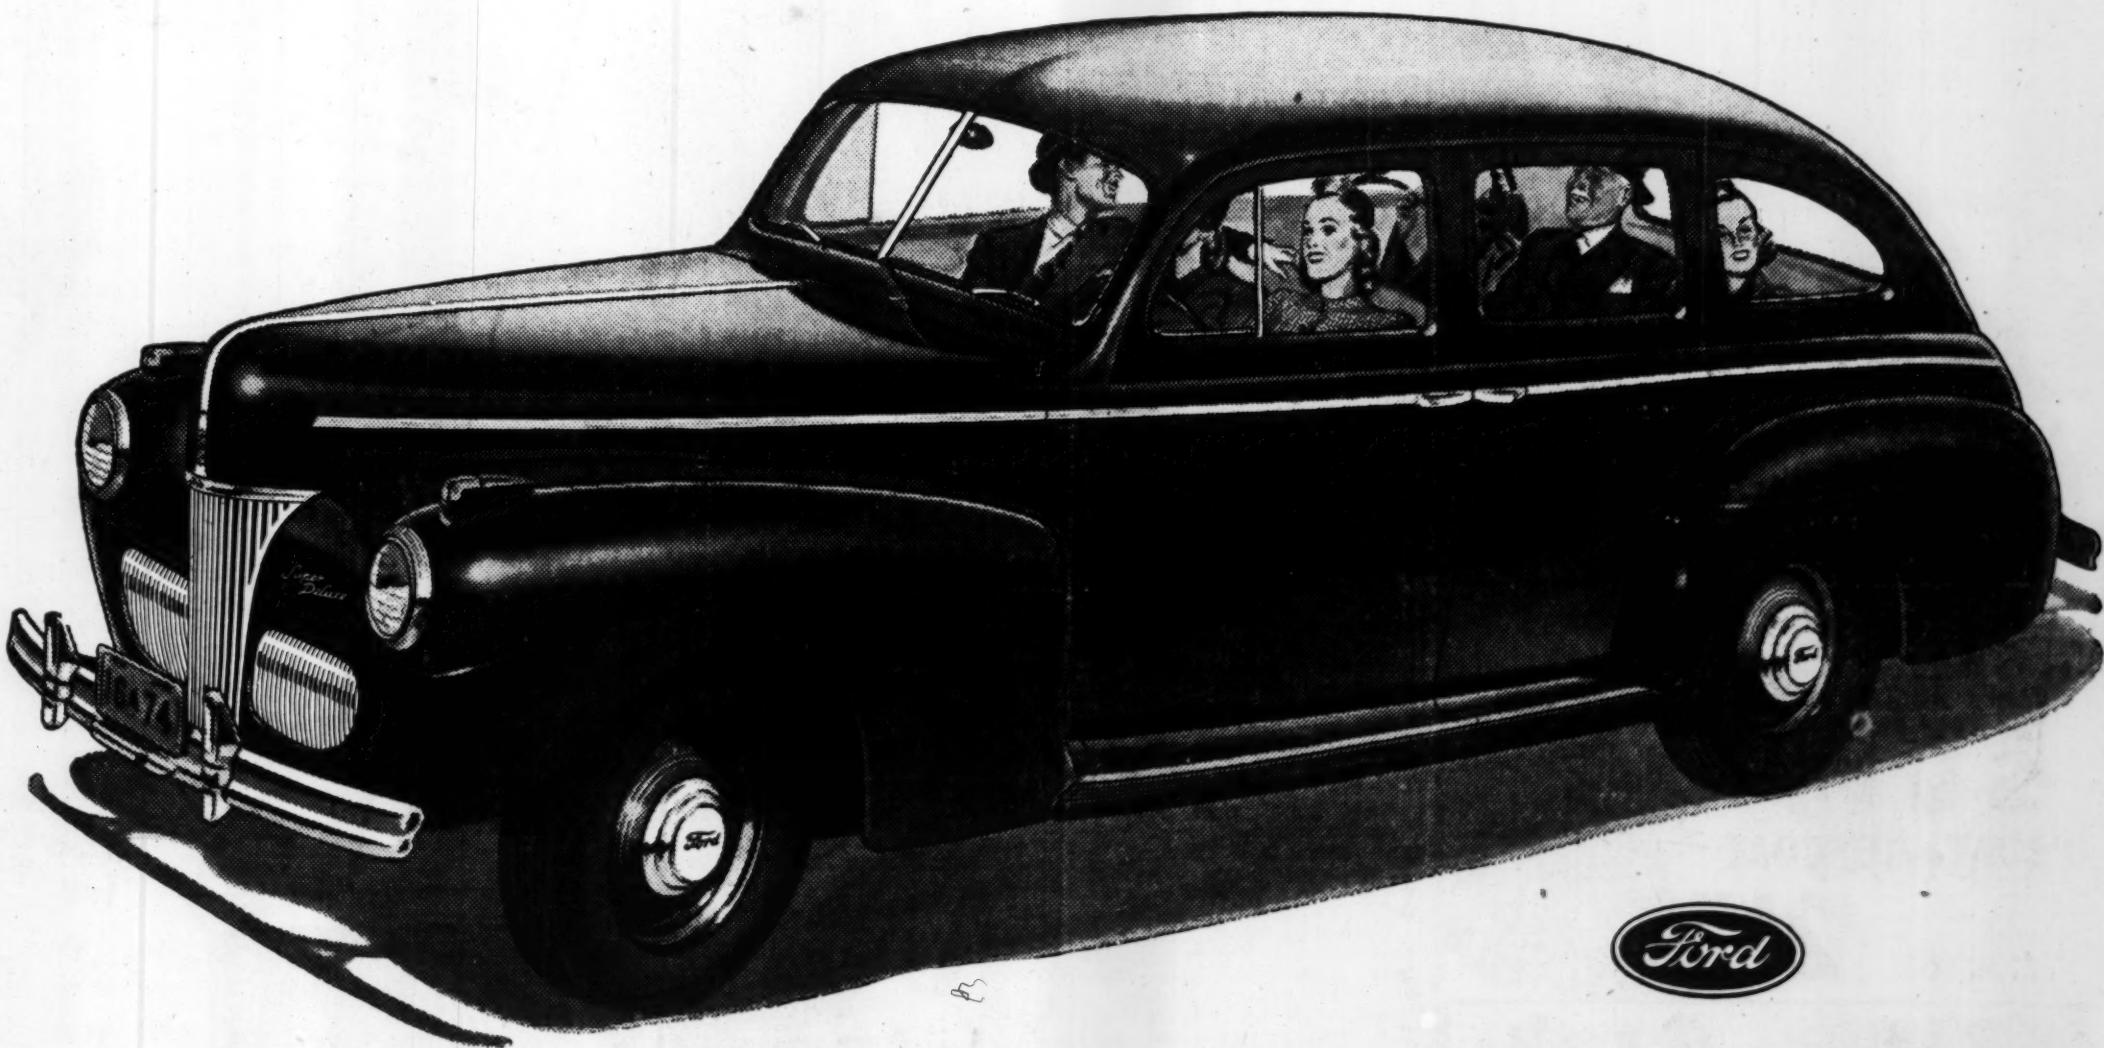

One of its biggest advantages is the new soft ride. New, slower-action springs give a slow, gentle, gliding movement. A newly designed stabilizer helps absorb road shocks, and maintains balance on sharp curves and in cross winds.

More rapid acceleration to match its familiar speed and power makes this new Ford an even more spirited car to drive.

These are only a few of this new car's outstanding features. It represents all the rich experience gained in building more than 28 million cars.

Any Ford dealer can give you many good reasons for making this your 1941 car.

U.S.-Tokyo Ties Hit by Series Of Incidents Japan To Aid Germany If U.S. 'Goes to War'

Relations First Strained After Occupation of Manchuria.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Relations between the United States and Japan chilled early in this decade when Japan occupied Manchuria.

The then secretary of state, Henry L. Stimson (now secretary of war), laid down on that occasion a policy of non-recognition of territorial changes by force—a policy since adhered to by this government.

Relations assumed an even more serious nature in 1937 when Japan opened a full-scale invasion of China. This situation was aggravated in December of that year when Japanese bombs sank the United States gunboat Panay on duty in China with a loss of two lives and injuries to other American nationals. The United States protested vigorously and Japan apologized and assumed financial responsibility.

Other Incidents. A series of less important incidents followed, involving damage to American property in areas in China bombed by Japan's airmen, resulting in representations by this government.

In late 1939 the United States announced its intention of abrogating a commercial treaty entered into with Japan in 1911.

President Roosevelt, in a pronouncement against the use of bombing planes against civilian populations (he named no nations), called on manufacturers to impose a "moral embargo" on exports of aircraft to such nations—and thereby cut off shipments of military planes to Japan.

Proposals in congress and elsewhere for naval improvements at the Island of Guam—in the far western Pacific—brought angry protests from the Japanese statesmen and press.

Japanese Arrested. In July of this year the United States marine garrison at Shanghai arrested a group of Japanese gendarmes who were in plain clothes in an area patrolled by the marines. Japanese military spokesmen called this an "insult." The gendarmes were released later.

A statement by Secretary Hull in April of this year, interpreted in some foreign capitals as a warning to Japan to keep hands off the Netherlands East Indies, brought various consultations of the privy council and cabinet ministers of Japan—but the publicly announced reaction at Tokyo was that Hull's statement was in accord with Japan's views.

Another dispute still exists—an argument over whether the United States should participate in patrolling an area in Shanghai from which the British withdrew. The latest statement from Secretary Hull indicated that little if any progress was being made toward settlement of that controversy.

specific exclusion of Great Britain from application of the embargo, he remarked only that it was explained by American opinion.

The government previously imposed export restrictions on numerous strategic materials declared to be needed in the national defense program but it had been indicated that supplies of scrap metal were sufficient to make further restrictions unnecessary. A complete embargo also has been imposed on shipment of aviation gasoline outside the western hemisphere.

The advisability of extending the embargo to lower grades of gasoline and oil was considered in connection with the Far Eastern developments but officials were understood to have decided it would be largely ineffective as an economic weapon against Japan.

Spokesman Attacks America's Opposition; Hints Russian Pact.

TOKYO, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Japan, convinced finally that the United States stands unalterably opposed to her "legitimate" expansion in the Orient, can be expected to give Germany active support if America enters the European war, a highly qualified Japanese informant said today.

The United States, he said, has followed a strong policy of opposition to Japan even at times when Britain offered conciliation and Japanese hopes for an agreement with America seem futile.

The informant, a Japanese with close government connections, indicated that Japan, facing the possibility of conflict to the south and east, was ready to mend her long-strained relations with Soviet Russia to keep her northern and western flanks free from menace.

A Japanese-Russian nonaggression pact is not unlikely, he said. "Japan is and always will be opposed to Communism," he went on. "But this does not mean that a working agreement cannot be effected."

"Japan has consistently sought only peaceful economic penetration in the Far East. Our sphere of action lies here and we prefer not to send troops and warships to various corners of the Far East to guarantee that penetration."

"The United States consistently has attempted to block Japan."

Japan Is Leading Scrap Customer

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—To the 9,000,000 tons of scrap steel which she has acquired from the United States since January 1, 1935, Japan can add only about 100,000 tons more, trade sources estimated today.

That small amount—small in comparison to Japan's military needs—must be cleared from United States ports before October 16 when presidential restrictions on further exports of scrap iron and steel go into effect.

Since the opening of Japan's attempt to conquer China and until the European war developed into full proportions, America's best customer for wrecked automobiles, junked railroad tracks and cast-off kitchen stoves has been Japan.

Japan's purchases of American scrap reached a record of 2,270,076 tons in 1939.

EMBARGO SUPPORTED BY FOUNDRY EXECUTIVE

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 26.—(AP)—G. W. Sanborn, vice president of United Engineering & Foundry Co., said today that embargo of scrap iron to Japan was a step that "should have been taken long ago."

unless the supply from the Netherlands East Indies also could be cut off. It was said to have been feared also that such an embargo might be used by Japan as a pretext for starting military operations against the East Indies.

Aid for Latin America.

During the day, President Roosevelt took another step with a bearing on the international situation when he signed a bill empowering the Export-Import Bank to make $500,000,000 of loans to bolster Latin America's economy, and authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend $1,000,000,000 for defense activities and other purposes.

Soon afterward, Brazil and the United States signed an agreement under which a $45,000,000 steel plant is to be built in Brazil. The United States Export-Import Bank is to lend $20,000,000 toward the plant, and Brazil is to supply $25,000,000 capital.

Supporters of the Export-Import loans have argued that they would lead to closer economic relations between the United States and nations to the south, and help prevent inroads by Hitler in Latin America.

an angry retort from German shore batteries which shelled Dover.

The counter-offensive ranged far and furiously and an authoritative journalistic voice warned that henceforth Berlin, too, regularly was to feel this systematic attack.

For, said a headline in the Evening Standard—a property of Lord Beaverbrook, the minister for aircraft production—the Royal Air Force "will be over Berlin every night."

That city already had felt during the darkness of Thursday night and early yesterday such a raid as never before had been launched against it—a five-hour attack declared by the British air ministry to have covered with explosives the great 300,000-kilowatt Klingenberg power station and other vital objectives.

Meanwhile, scores of Nazi incendiary bombs and high explosives fell upon London in the 20th consecutive night of German air raid, but early today not a single big fire was to be seen on the city's horizon.

The incendiaries came down most thickly in two north London districts, and the center of the metropolis was shaken by one especially heavy explosion.

The southeast coastal area also had been under heavy attack last night and at least six raiding planes were reported brought down in that section in a series of dogfights.

31 Planes Downed.

The air ministry announced that altogether 31 German planes had been shot down before midnight—more than a third of them costly bombers. Eight British fighters were lost.

Aside from this, it was said unofficially but authoritatively that at least nine other raiders had been destroyed.

The 31 officially announced as bagged were understood to have been shot down in a furious 30-minute battle over the Isle of Wight; at least nine others in engagements over the industrial Midlands and the southeast and northeast coasts.

The daylight German assaults had been many and determined; two major thrusts at London were reported turned back, but there was a considerable list of civilian dead and injured in a northeast town which was heavily hit. In three towns on the Yorkshire coast bombs fell thickly, wrecking a line of stores and homes at one point and leaving 30 casualties, of which but one was reported fatal.

British sources asserted that one village was machine-gunned as its children were leaving for school, but there was in this instance no immediate report of casualties.

Here in London the police carried out their new orders to see to it that women and children be admitted first to the subways—widely used as refuges along with more conventional shelters.

Among the results of the British raids on German bases officially announced here:

Berlin: Klingenberg power station straddled by sticks of bombs; the city's west power station also attacked; Tempelhof airfield, the Schoenberg railway yard, another railway station and sidings, all heavily bombed, along with a munitions plant 17 miles east of the city.

The interior: Freight yards in Osnabruck, Ebrang, Hamm, Mannheim and Hanover heavily damaged, the air left filled with flames and violent explosions; rail communications widely attacked, canal dock gates hit in an assault on the river port of Haltern.

The coastal areas: Kiel naval base bombed, the flash of a great explosion seen "very close" to the German cruiser Scharnhorst; shipping barges and dockside stores pounded at Antwerp, Flushing, Ostend, Dunkerque, Calais and Boulogne; the Brest naval base assaulted so heavily that railway trucks were thrown into the air by the force of the ground explosions, and ships, oil plants and harbor railways bombed.

Calais, said the ministry, was beaten at in a "concentrated" attack of an hour and a half; Boulogne at intervals of three and a half hours, and the whole city lighted up by a series of explosions and fires that leaped 200 feet into the air, visible 50 miles away.

From all these operations, it was added, every British plane returned safely.

Wonders Whether Efficient Wife Helps Evade Draft

Draft act questionnaire has interested me only mildly because I figure myself immune. But the government is inquiring—nosy old thing—into whether your wife can carry on in case you're called to the colors. That bothers me.

Question is (No. 3): "In what calling, if any, is your wife trained and skilled?"

Well, she can't run a typewriter, though I have often suggested it. She insists she never has taken dictation and it's too late to start.

She can't sew buttons on pajamas. Or so she says. My midnight restlessness, owing to great thoughts permeating my cerebrum or cerebellum, as the case may be, causes me to roll over frequently and rub all the buttons off. I wish I could remember those divine inspirations next day, but I never can. Perhaps if I had buttons on my pajama coats—but why belabor the subject?

But I am a believer in the eternal truth. So if the draft board gets around to me and asks question No. 3 I must admit:

My wife can dismember and reassemble the electric system in our domicile as well—or better—than Mr. Arkwright.

She can cut off the water and insert a new washer in the lavatory, using the tools from the car which she never remembers to put back.

She can find the hole in the fence where the dogs got out after had searched for it in vain. And tell me how to fix it. And stand over me while I do it.

No. 1 Gardner.

She can plant a bulb in the garden and remember six months afterward just where she planted it and tell me that if I don't make those pups quit digging just there she'll go see a lawyer.

She can take Uncle Eddie and aatchet and saw and remodel a porch into a fine example of pure Greek architecture without calling for bids.

She can, in case of really distinguished company, find the remains of a fifth of scotch which had mysteriously disappeared four years ago. And she can hide a key. If Mr. Van Dine or Agatha Christie or any of the crime puzzle novelists want lessons on how to hide a key, I invite them to come down. All I ask is a split in whatever clues they come across in the locked cabinet—and I'll furnish the sparkling water.

But I doubt she'd come under the head of wives able to carry on if the husband went to war. Oh, she could if she had to. But there still are insignificant details, such as bills for electricity, gas, water and phone and the monthly payment on the mortgage.

'One-Armed Bandits.'

Henry T. McIntosh, of the Atlanta Herald, editorially renews his war on slot machines, which every now and then threaten to take the town.

I'm with him on that, though Atlanta has never, so far as I know, been afflicted with these one-armed bandits. I don't want to be.

It is not in my province to preach sermons or advise others how to behave. But the slot machine is such a sucker game!

I've run across a number of them in Atlanta, equipped to take nickels or dimes or quarters—or even half-dollars, for those who prefer losing their money fast.

But they are in private clubs, not in drug stores or soda fountains or beer saloons. They offer no temptation to the general public, to poorly paid clerks and typists and children on their way to and from school. I have no personal objection to these more-or-less exclusive places installing slot machines if they so desire. They are illegal, but I'm not the law. I think it's illegal to play 10-cent-limit poker or even bridge for a tenth-of-a-cent a point. But it's done in our very best families.

But Not on the Street.

What would make me rise up on my hind legs and howl would be the installation of slot machines in public places readily accessible to old and young. Because they trip everybody of everything he has if he keeps on dropping in coins and pulling the crank. I've seen men and women rejoice over winning a "jackpot," a flood of coins. But almost invariably they put all the coins back into the rapacious gullet of the "one-armed bandit." Few ever quit winner.

The percentage, I've been told, varies from 70 to 90 per cent in favor of the machine. Just try to beat that—over an hour of dropping in coins and pulling the crank.

If folk who can afford to pay for their fun enjoy the game in a private spot, that's none of my business. But I do like to see the less-privileged folk get home with the week's pay envelope.

What do you know about Newfoundland? Not much, I'll bet. Cold! Fisheries! Where the dogs came from, or did they? Thousand miles from nowhere.

Yet an aviation item says Newfoundland has the world's largest airport. Its paved runways and parking spaces equal 116 miles of 18-foot paved highway.

Ship's Gold Sought

Off Japanese Coast

Recovery of a large amount of gold carried by a British ship sunk off the Japanese coast more than half a century ago is the object of an expedition being formed with Tokyo backing. The vessel went to the bottom after striking a reef in a storm. The rescued passengers lived for nearly a month in tents on a beach not far from the wreck, and it was from them that the Japanese obtained knowledge of the treasure.

JOHN CHAKNIS wanted to study harmony; so—as his alma mater, Emory, doesn't provide such a course—he hid himself to Agnes Scott yesterday, taking advantage of the University Center plan which allows exchange of students between the two institutions. At the session were (left to right) J. Watt Page, Texas; Samuel G. Waller, Virginia; Edward Martin, Pennsylvania; Georgia Adjutant General John E. Stoddard and General Stoddard's assistant, Lieut. Colonel Phil Brewster.

CHECKERS? That's what they look like from the air, yes, but actually they're pawns—pawns in the tremendous and deadly game of war being waged between Britain and her Axis foes. They are oil tanks at the port of Swansea, Wales, before the German attack. What appears to be letter "A" was not explained.

Beauty Sharpens Brain at Emory

SHIRLEY ANNE wanted to study journalism; so she, in turn, hid herself to Emory, as Agnes Scott doesn't give journalism. Here she is—Shirley Ann Smith—smiling broadly in an Emory class.

'HELLO, PARD' G. O. P. Presidential Candidate Wendell Wilkie got a cattle-country greeting on his stop at Dickinson, N. D. Here he gets an enthusiastic handshake from Mrs. Robert Reed.

AND THEN—DESTRUCTION Dense clouds of bomb-born smoke billow from rows of oil tanks at Swansea, Wales, on the Bristol channel, according to the German censor-approved caption. The oil depot had just been attacked by far-ranging German sky raiders, the Nazis declared.

Believes If Gibraltar Totters, British Will Attack Dakar Again.

Dakar, pivotal French colonial port in west Africa, takes its place with ancient Trondheim as connoting a painful British setback in the life-and-death warfare with Italy and Germany.

Unquestionably British prestige has suffered, and that of General Charles de Gaulle, the "Free French" leader, who has been seeking to rally much of colonial France to continue the fight against the Rome-Berlin Axis. The British-Free French failure to take Dakar comes, too, at a critical hour when the Nazi-Fascist team is striving to reinforce itself by luring Spain and Japan into the struggle.

Yet there remain asset values for Britain in the gesture at Dakar, despite the retreat. It is a blunt notice to all concerned, including the conquered Vichy government of France, of what will happen if possession of Dakar is necessary for Britain to keep the blockade hammerlock intact on her continental foes. The Dakar enterprise is not abandoned. It is merely deferred, probably, to await developments at Gibraltar.

Blockade Backstop.

Dakar is Britain's potential backstop for Gibraltar, her second line of defense, not defense. Britain's reluctance to risk a "major" engagement there, her unwillingness to press the fight against Vichy regime supporters at the stage, would vanish if Gibraltar were seriously threatened. The Dakar incident, despite the retreat, served notice on all continental Europe that the British sea blockade has been put on to stay.

De Gaulle's Action.

The British official explanation of the attempted seizure of Dakar and the order to "discontinue hostilities" implies that de Gaulle himself, not Churchill, dictated the withdrawal. He appears to have judged, once his hopes of peaceful occupation were frustrated—that his ultimate objective would be better served by retreat than by inaugurating a French civil war.

That is a more convincing theory than the notion that the British navy feared a "major" action, or that French resistance or retaliatory air bombing of Gibraltar caused a change of heart in London.

What remains, however, is the clear indication that if Gibraltar totters the British will be back hammering at Dakar regardless of French feelings or any other consideration. London is tacitly pledged to that in soliciting—and receiving—war aid from the United States.

Student Swap At Agnes Scott, Emory Started

Exchange Begins Application of University Center Dream.

For the first time in history, yesterday three men from Emory University enrolled for courses taught at Agnes Scott College.

At the same time three lovely girls from Agnes Scott College shattered tradition by taking general college courses on the practically masculine Emory campus.

The exchange marked the beginning of an interclass co-operation plan between the two institutions, lying within four miles of each other. It was one of the first practical applications of the University Center dream.

Exchange Plan. Under the program Emory men may enroll for Agnes Scott courses that are not offered in the curriculum of their own school. Likewise, it enables Decatur girls to take advantage of courses given only at Emory.

Emory University in the past has admitted women to such specialized schools as library science and to certain branches in the graduate school. However, in a few years there will be no more undergraduate co-eds at Emory save those admitted from Agnes Scott under the exchange plan.

The first Agnes Scott girl who shyly peeked her head into the journalism department at Emory University was Miss Shirley Anne Smith, of Louisville. A junior at her own school, she will take reporting, public opinion and English courses at Emory. Strangely enough, she takes only Greek mythology at Agnes Scott.

John Chaknis, of Atlanta, yesterday became the first man ever to enroll in the regular courses taught at Agnes Scott. He is taking harmony, taught in the music department; but his other courses are taught at Emory, where he is a senior.

Only Six Affected. Although only six students are affected this quarter by the plan, it is expected that nearly two dozen will be exchanging classes before the year is over.

Officials of the two schools point out that the exchange system enables each school to emphasize a few strong departments, rather than branching out into many weak departments. For example, Agnes Scott can build her music school while Emory can elaborate on its journalism department.

Classes at Agnes Scott begin this week with a capacity enrollment of nearly 500 students. Registration figures will be released later, when course allotments have been completed.

High Court Backs Sentence of Life

The state supreme court upheld yesterday the life sentence of George Claybourn, convicted of murder in the slaying of Dr. Charles H. Lee, rector of Christ Church on St. Simon Island, on February 5, 1938.

Claybourn was convicted January 22, 1939, and sentenced by Judge Gordon Knox, in Glynn superior court.

Appeal was taken to the supreme court on grounds that an alleged confession, later repudiated, was obtained by coercion and contentions of other errors in the trial.

The high court stated "the evidence supports the verdict. The confessions are corroborated, and whether the confessions are true or not is for the determination of the jury."

Willkie Offers 5-Point Plan To Aid Farmers

G. O. P. Nominee Says New Deal Program Has Failed.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 26.—(UP) Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell L. Willkie, charging that the New Deal had failed the farmer, tonight outlined a five-point program designed to give farmers a greater share of the national income.

Speaking in the heart of the nation's "breadbasket," which still is suffering from the drought damage of the mid '30s, Willkie outlined his farm views before approximately 10,000 persons in the Ak-Sar-Ben coliseum. The speech was broadcast nationally via NBC's red network.

His program, which he said is subject to improvements, would provide: Strengthening of the soil conservation program; continuation of commodity loans until a better method is devised; development and extension of rural electrification; an adequate system of farm credit; and continuation of crop insurance with wheat pending a full test.

He said the agricultural adjustment act of 1933 still constitutes our national farm policy and that "there must be no abandonment of it."

Agriculture, he said, is the foundation of America and added that any program for domestic recovery cannot be achieved without agricultural recovery.

He praised his running mate, Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, as a "great" farm leader and criticized the New Deal for "concentrating on problems of production" and making "little effort to expand the domestic market that still exists."

"Fundamentally, the farm problem arises out of the fact that our farm population, comprising 24 per cent of our total population, receives only 12 per cent of our national income," Willkie declared.

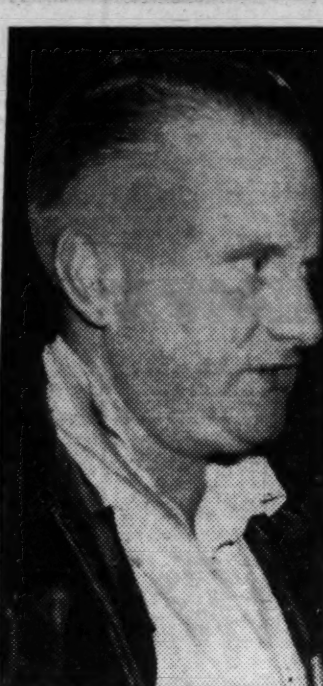

"America can never go back to the situation in which agriculture, because of the ignorance of both parties, was treated as a step-child." Concerning rural electrification, the nominee said: "Ever since 1933, I have been advocating rural electrification. I think the present program should be developed and extended. I proposed to authorities in Washington that congress make available a reasonable sum, say $100,000,000, from which either municipal plants or private plants could borrow money for rural lines, or some portion of them, provided the borrowers agreed to distribute electricity to the farmers at reasonable rates."

Vocational training in schools, because of the importance of mechanized units, will be emphasized. Elks in the service will be exempt from dues, and families of Elks will interest themselves in men in camps.

Oyster Nuts Offered

As So. African Novelty East Africa is seeking markets for its oyster nuts, it is announced at Nairobi. Trial shipments from Kenya found much favor in Great Britain among confectioners, but the United States is regarded as the most promising market if oyster nuts can be supplied in regular and substantial quantities. The oyster nut is in a gourd-like fruit which varies from 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 inches in length, and 8 to 12 inches in diameter and weighs about 30 pounds.

SEEKS RELEASE—F. J. Aycock, former Atlanta police officer who was convicted in Fulton superior court on a charge of accepting bribes, yesterday requested the executive department to grant him executive clemency so that "he could better support his wife and two children."

Aycock Seeks Clemency in Bribery Case

Former Police Officer Asks Release From 2-Year Sentence.

The State Executive Department yesterday took under consideration an application of Frank J. Aycock, former Atlanta police officer, for executive clemency from a two-year sentence imposed on him in Fulton superior court following conviction on a two-count indictment charging bribery.

Aycock and his attorney, Paul Carpenter, appeared before S. Marvin Griffin, the Governor's executive secretary, yesterday at what had been advertised as a public hearing. No one showed up but the defendant and his attorney.

Solicitor General John A. Boykin, while not appearing, sent a letter of protest in which he pointed out "it has long been the law and practice that the executive department is not a reviewing court, and they should treat the application not as a procedure to review the case, but only to determine if their is any reason why a man legally adjudicated as guilty should have the mercy of the executive department extended to him."

He also set out that Aycock had been convicted by a jury and his conviction affirmed by the court of appeals.

Aycock was indicted jointly with G. B. Scoggins, who escaped sentence with a pardon.

Aycock, in a brief statement, denied his guilt and asked the clemency so "that he could better support his wife and two children."

New Four Million Dollar Span Opened at Natchez

NATCHEZ, Miss., Sept. 26.—(UP)—The $4,000,000 toll bridge crossing the Mississippi river here was opened to traffic today.

Officials of Louisiana and Mississippi took part in ceremonies in the middle of the 8,135-foot span. Governor Sam Jones headed the Louisiana delegation. Governor Paul B. Johnson, of Mississippi, confined to his home by illness, was represented by his son, Paul Johnson Jr. Daughters of the governors, Misses Carolyn Jones and Peggy Johnson, cut the ribbons to allow a formal parade to pass across the bridge.

G. O. P. Leaders Discouraged by Poll Figures

Try To Bolster Morale by Pointing to 'Undecided Element.'

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Frankly discouraged by the indications of the latest Gallup poll, Republican supporters are now trying to bolster morale of the Wendell Willkie campaign by pointing to the undecided element among the nation's voters as the yet unrevealed strength which will give their nominee victory in the November elections.

But using the same figures, those of the latest Gallup poll, which show that some 11 per cent of persons polled expressed themselves as being undecided, Democratic spokesmen contend that the poll total of 38 states with 453 electoral votes for President Roosevelt, can be altered by election day only in the President's favor.

Generously assuming, merely for the basis of scratch paper calculation, that Willkie is successful in obtaining two-thirds of the 11 per cent of undecided votes, these Democrats point out that Roosevelt can hardly lose more than a few of the 38 states now lined up for him. This, they explain, would not be sufficient to swing the electoral total in Willkie's favor.

Actually, however, they see no possibility that the Republican nominee has as much as an even-money chance of capturing a bare majority of the undecided vote. Veteran political observers back them up in this contention, recalling that the voter who has no predilection in a presidential campaign which is so near its close usually is the type commonly referred to as a bandwagon catcher.

Barksdale Field Men Ordered To Savannah

Louisiana Post To Become Air Corps Training Center.

Transfer of the majority of the 87 officers and 2,000 enlisted men now at Barksdale Field, La., to Savannah was announced by the War Department in Washington yesterday.

Two small detachments of the units now at Barksdale will be stationed at Fort Benning and Drew Field, Fla., but the greater portion will go to Savannah. Following completion of the transfers, expected around October 15, Barksdale will be converted into a specialized advanced training center of the army air corps.

One advance echelon, traveling by truck, arrived in Savannah last night, forerunner of two light bombardment groups and an air base squadron, comprising more than 1,800 officers and men. The personnel will occupy tent shelters until temporary barracks have been completed under a $1,550,000 construction program recently awarded Atlanta firms.

Third Wing Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron have been ordered to Drew Field, near Tampa, and the 15th Bombardment Squadron of the 27th Light Bombardment group to Lawson Field at Benning.

The remainder of the 27th Bombardment group plus the Third Light Bombardment group and the 35th Air Base groups are the units that will be based at Savannah.

Meanwhile, Fourth Corps Area headquarters reported that the 213th Coast Artillery regiment, made up of about 1,400 former National Guardsmen from eastern Pennsylvania, will likewise soon be leaving for Savannah and strenuous field work.

Businesses Saved, Wallace Declares

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 26.—(AP) Henry A. Wallace, Democratic nominee for vice president, today termed the national election a referendum on the whole farm program in which "farmers have a momentous decision to make."

"On one side," the former secretary of agriculture told a throng that filled the city's 3,000-seat auditorium, "are those who have helped them build the foundation of a real farm program. On the other side is a party that talks one way and votes another."

Wallace said the "$215,000,000 in Triple-A funds sent into Kansas the last seven years have meant the difference between success and failure of many Kansas businesses."

U. S. and Japan Produce New Energy Agency

Isotope of Uranium May Provide Valuable War Weapon.

By THOMAS R. HENRY.
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—A new chapter in the most startling scientific development of this generation has been opened here with the announcement of the simultaneous production in Japan and California of a new isotope of uranium, which theoretically should have the same properties as the rare U-235, the splitting of whose atom releases energy far beyond that of any other power source known to man.

U-235 exists in nature, in a ratio of one atom to 139 of ordinary uranium, an abundant mineral which costs only about $2 a pound. U-237, the new isotope, is made by the giant cyclotrons such as now are being set up by the Carnegie Institution in Washington.

At the same time it was learned that a world-wide race now is in progress to develop the uranium fission process to a point where it will be practical in warfare and probably constitute the most powerful weapon ever known. Japan has turned up as the latest entry in this race, details of which are being kept as closely guarded military secrets by all the governments.

Physicists attending the biennial conference of the University of Pennsylvania here revealed in interviews that during the winter of 1938 their laboratories were continually being visited by German physicists, who asked many questions and inspected apparatus, but revealed very little of what they themselves were doing. This was shortly after the first announcement of uranium fission at a conference at George Washington University.

Extremely Naive
At that time, some of America's foremost physicists admitted they were extremely naive and, for the most part, trusted implicitly their German colleagues. Their suspicions should have been aroused, they say, by the fact that some of the men who visited their laboratories had been unable to leave Germany to attend important scientific conferences in this country a few months before. Suddenly all restrictions had been lifted.

Since the start of the war no information has come out of Germany directly, but from reliable sources the American physicists know that at least one cyclotron has been constructed, and that there is a large concentration of chemists and physicists at the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute in Berlin, working exclusively on the problem of uranium fission.

Military Significance.
The military significance of the development can be seen from the fact that, once a considerable supply of U-235 was obtained, it probably would be possible to run a battleship or an airplane with no appreciable weight of fuel. A great deal of work on the problem is under way in many American laboratories, but, in co-operation with the War Department, physicists have imposed a voluntary censorship on themselves.

So far as they know, they say frankly, nothing has yet been developed in this country of any military significance. But some slight detail might fall into the German pattern of research and prove the key to the whole problem in the hands of a potential enemy.

The potentialities of U-237 are known and the engineering problems for its utilization apparently offer no great hurdle. But several pounds would be necessary before much use could be made of it, and at present the utmost efforts by known methods have resulted only in producing a few milligrams. There is no chemical way of separating it from the abundant U-238 and physical means are extremely slow, laborious and expensive.

Findings Outlined.
The announcement of U-237 came in the course of a paper on a highly technical aspect of uranium fission by Dr. Enrico Fermi, of Columbia University. A neutron is fired into the nucleus of an atom of the common U-238 with an energy close to 10,000,000 volts. Various things may happen, but one possibility is that it will stick there for approximately 24 minutes. During this period it becomes U-239. In seven minutes half of the U-239 atoms undergo a minor explosion, shooting out two neutrons from each nucleus. The result is the new U-237.

This was first accomplished, it was learned, by Dr. Edwin McMillan, of the University of California, working with the great cyclotron of Professor Ernest Lawrence. Shortly thereafter came the announcement of the same accomplishment by the Japanese physicist, Nishina. It had not been known before that research in this line had been in progress in Japan.

Unknown Property.
Whether U-237 has the fission property necessary for the production of power is unknown. There are only a few micrograms of it in the world, and it has been impossible to make any tests of it. Professor Fermi said that theoretically, since it is an odd number isotope of uranium, it should be possible to split it by bombardment with slow neutrons.

Like any other kind of uranium, U-237 is radio-active. In seven days one-half of any given amount explodes by shooting out an electron and becomes an entirely different element—element 93. This continues to degenerate into a form of lead.

If U-237 should prove a practical source of power, it would be necessary to manufacture a new supply every seven days.

Dr. Fermi and his colleague were loath to speak of the potentialities of U-237.

"Just give me a little of it," the Italian physicist said "and I may be able to tell you."

The ever-growing drama of the situation is increased by the fact that Professor Fermi, now a voluntary exile from Italy, himself first produced U-239 while at the University of Rome five years ago. For this accomplishment he received the Nobel Prize in 1937 and never returned to Italy after going to Stockholm to receive it. But he had no realization of the potentialities of the discovery out of which the whole sensational development has come.

Meeting Is Held By Nash Retailers
W. A. Blees, general salesman-ager of Nash Motors Division of Nash-Kelvinator Corporation, of Detroit, Mich., was principal speaker at a meeting held here yesterday by the Nash retailers from Asheville, Augusta, Birmingham, Charleston, Charlotte, Chatsworth, Greenville, Jacksonville, Knoxville, Macon, Memphis,

Miami, Nashville, Savannah, Tampa and Atlanta. The dealers were shown for the first time the 1941 Nash, which will appear on the market about October 1. Mr. Blees described the new model as a big automobile, 194 inches long, and seats nearly five feet wide. The car averaged more than 30 miles on a gallon of fuel in road tests, a revolutionary economy innovation. The Nash executive said that his company had spent approximately $7,000,000 getting ready to manufacture the new low-priced model and the other 1941 models.

ATLANTA GA., SEPTEMBER 27, 1940.

Ultimatum to U. S.

Japan and Germany openly have warned the United States that co-operation with Great Britain means war. The nonbelligerency of this country is vanishing even as the snows of winter in the spring. This country now has a choice between waiting as the democracies of Europe waited for an eventual doom, or of risking, as all great people must sometime risk, war not of our own choosing at a time not of our choice.

The die was cast with the invasion of Indo-China. That Japanese action made inevitable British-American co-operation in the Far East, the chief manifestation of which will be the taking over of the great British naval base at Singapore by the United States. Britain cannot spare the heavy naval units necessary for the defense of that cornerstone of world domination. The task must fall to the United States if this country is to retain any semblance of her liberties and to maintain any form of her world role.

The co-operative use of the Singapore base will mean the entry of Japan into World War II on the side of Germany, the United States is warned. In effect, the Nipponese and Nazis have told the people of this country that they cannot prepare to defend their rights in any part of the world; that when they do, they face war.

They count upon the deep-seated love of peace of the people of the United States. They forget that a love of liberty and honor means even more.

It is well now to review the situation which would confront this country in the event of war with Japan.

Japan cannot attack this country without first eliminating the battle fleet and seizing Hawaii, an impossible undertaking under present conditions. This country can attack Japan, but even more pertinent under present conditions which would permit the use of Singapore and the Dutch East Indies, could blockade Japan with a grip stronger than that of the British blockade of the European continent.

Those are the general conditions which we as a nation would confront. Japan would be the chief interest of this country from the naval standpoint. The main concern of Great Britain would continue to be the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. If this country accepted the challenge now, there would be less risk of being cut off from the vital rubber, tungsten, tin, fibers, quinine and other drugs, and wool. Later, when the Japanese conquest of French Indo-China is complete, this might not be the case, for the Japanese then would be within easy naval striking distance of the bases which we now can obtain, and hold.

Against these advantages which we now might seize must be counterposed the natural aversion of the people of this country to war, the enormous cost of a military undertaking, the inevitable risks of such a conflict, the unpreparedness of the country and the fact that we unfortunately are now in the midst of a presidential campaign. If any time ever cried for an adjournment of politics, it is now. Not next month, but today, when the die is being cast.

It is worse than useless to minimize the immediacy of the threat and the need; it would be criminal to do so. The decisions that have been inevitable for several years have been suddenly thrust upon us, and, despite repeated warning, it must be doubted that the country is prepared to make those decisions. If nothing is done, then the final tragedy is not far off.

Along the road to war we find Mars, now gallantly offering a ride to Spain, who is walking back from the last one.

Along about here, a plan showing the location of Fort Knox should be mislaid, to turn up as the theme of a smashing film serial in 1985.

Despite war, a caller finds the old philosopher, Bernard Shaw, looking pink and cheerful. The bloom, as the song aptly says, is on the sage.

An outfielder races miles to cut off base hits, while a pitcher gathers the glory. And who now remembers the name of Paul Revere's horse?

Manufactured Bugaboo

Republicans, professional Roosevelt-haters and others interested in electing Wendell Willkie as President in November, have made much ado about what they dub the "third term" issue. It is, of course, probable that only a small proportion of the anti-Roosevelt forces really take this issue seriously, nearly all of them use it as handy camouflage for their true reasons for opposing re-election of the man who has done more for the average American citizen than any President before him.

What is this third-term issue? It is, they claim, contrary to American tradition to elect a President for more than two consecutive terms in office and, what is more, it is dangerous to American democracy to thus honor the same man three times. Twice is perfectly all right, but three times, they aver, is invoking dangers of dictatorship, "one-man rule" and indefinite continuity in office and other dreadful conditions.

Of course, all this alarm about the "third term" endangering democracy is false assumption. For there can be no danger to democracy when it is the votes of the people which give the third term. Just so long as the decision on this, or any other campaign issue, is in the hands of the free and fearless voters of this country, there can be no danger to our forms of democracy. There is no danger of any third-term "autocracy," while it is the voters alone who can grant or refuse that third term, or a first or second term either for that matter.

It is but natural and proper and wise that the majority of the voters, as revealed in the Gallup poll, should prefer, at this time, the experienced and tried hand of Roosevelt at the national helm, even though he serve his third term at the White House, than the amateur, untried and unpredictable hand of the comparative green hand, Wendell Willkie.

Conquerors' Lust

Despite the best efforts of Nazi censorship, news from the desolate regions of Poland and occupied France begins slowly to trickle. It tells of thousands slaughtered to sate a dictator's lust, of famine, murder, rampant disease, and sudden death. It tells of people praying for death to relieve them of the sufferings and the unrelieved atrocities inflicted upon them by their conquerors.

In these times of darkness there is a certain savage satisfaction in refreshing one's self upon the classic biographies of the ancient emperors of Rome, the very perfect models of the vilest cruelties. Suetonius, whose "Lives of the Twelve Caesars" draws in pitiless detail the abject depravities of the Roman dictators, is a source of much hope.

Writing of the Emperor Tiberius, Suetonius said:

He did so many cruel and savage deeds under the guise of strictness and improvement of public morals, but in reality rather to gratify his natural instincts, that at the first news of his death people ran through the streets shouting, while others prayed to the gods to allow the dead man no abode except among the damned. Not a day passed without an execution, not even days that were sacred and holy, for he put some to death even on New Year's Day. The relatives of his victims were forbidden to mourn on pain of death. Special rewards were voted accusers, and the word of no informer was doubted. Every one of those who were executed was thrown out upon the stairs and dragged to the Tiber with hooks, as many as twenty being so treated in a single day, including women and children.

Tiberius met death by poisoning.

Of the ten dictators who ruled Rome during the 82 years following 14 A. D., only two died natural deaths. Like Tiberius, Claudius was poisoned. Caligula was assassinated; Galba had his head cut off and exhibited in the senate; Domitian was assassinated after his eyes were gouged out; Vitellius was dragged to the Tiber with hooks; Nero and Otho were forced into suicide.

As we said, there is a certain savage satisfaction in reading Suetonius. Wonder how Hitler is getting along these days?

RUMANIA

"The witches' brew in that ominous cauldron known as the Balkans continues to boil angrily," says the HALIFAX (Canada) CHRONICLE, which continues: "The unhappy story of Rumania is not yet ended. More trouble is in store. But that incessant trouble is a thorn in the side of Herr Hitler." And the NEW YORK TIMES sees "no evidence that the 'arbiters' of the Danube are creating a productive peace they need to carry on the war."

Recalling that "The next night Hitler opened his all-out luftwaffe over London," the EMPORIA GAZETTE, however, envisions a temporary settlement after King Carol's abdication. The New Orleans TIMES-PICAYUNE doubts permanence of the "peace," saying, "The most obvious truth about the settlement, unless history turns a complete topsy-turvy, is that it won't last."

"Young Prince Mihai has been growing up since the hectic days when his father renounced royal prerogatives," says the INDIANAPOLIS STAR; however, "he holds an empty title . . . for the power . . . has been seized by generals more sympathetic to totalitarian theories of government." Head of these generals is Dictator Ion Antonescu, whom the WASHINGTON STAR pictures as "a bitter opponent of the cessations of territory which Rumania was forced to make to Russia" . . . although "his regime is based upon grim acceptance of the fact that this territory has been lost."

"If Dictator Antonescu succeeds in preserving what is left of Rumania for the Rumanians, together with a reasonable degree of independence in a Europe where national independence is dying, he will achieve what now appears impossible," says the PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER adds. And the BIRMINGHAM AGE-HERALD believes "Antonescu will doubtless seek to avoid open defiance of Hitler just now," and asks, "But can he, and also satisfy his people?"

THE CAPITAL PARADE FAIR ENOUGH

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

ROOSEVELT AS PARTY MANAGER WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Although rather ostentatiously less active in the great struggles of 1932 and 1936, the President still manages to find some time for the details of partisan management. An example of his handiwork is the independent committee for Roosevelt, composed of such Progressives as George W. Norris and Fiorello H. La Guardia. It was recruited by Thomas G. Corcoran under the President's immediate direction.

Corcoran voluntarily abandoned his position as a leading White House adviser when the war emergency shifted the center of presidential interest to problems of foreign affairs and national defense. During much of the spring and early summer he was actually away from Washington, honeymooning and holidaying. He came back into the picture, however, more than a month ago when the President asked him to organize the independent Progressive third-term support. Liaison work with the Progressives had been part of his task in 1936 campaign, and he took up pretty much where he left off four years ago.

As times change, Corcoran's task was hardly so easy this year as it was in 1936. The name of Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, a leading sponsor of Corcoran's 1936 Progressive conference at Madison, Wis., is conspicuously absent from the list of the new committee. While it is hoped La Follette may come in later, there is little expectation of the support of an even more notable absentee, John L. Lewis, of the CIO. And Lewis' noncooperation has a special edge of irony, since Corcoran's coadjutor in rounding up the Progressives has been David K. Niles, the little New Deal undercover man and aide of Harry L. Hopkins who wrung from the unwilling Lewis the huge and celebrated CIO contribution to the 1936 Democratic campaign fund.

NEW LIFE FOR MADDEN

The case of John L. Lewis again illustrates the President's interest in the practical details of the campaign. Lewis is far from being the powerful figure he once was. In the CIO the degree of his isolation may be judged by his recent sharp defeat by the pro-third-term forces in the New York state CIO convention. Even in his own United Mine Workers, such important leaders as the secretary-treasurer, Tom Kennedy, are going along on the third term. He is a solitary figure, as yet protected from attack by the surviving admiration of his old associates, but without followers except for his little band of extreme left-wing advisers, such as CIO General Counsel Lee Pressman and the leaders of the left-wing unions.

In short, Lewis' power to hurt the President boils down to his power to swing a few of the mine workers in Pennsylvania and the left-wing unions in New York. Yet, in an effort to conciliate Lewis, the President has already given the CIO leader a long interview, and it is now reported he is leaning to reappointment of National Labor Relations Board Chairman J. Warren Madden.

Madden is a member of the NLRB's left-wing majority, whose activities the President sought to curb by naming W. J. Leiserson to the board. His reappointment might well not be confirmed by the senate. It would give more violent offense to business than anything the President could do. It would reverse the President's own well-defined policy, initiated with the Leiserson appointment, of "cleaning up" the labor board and removing from power such extreme zealots as Secretary Nathan Witt.

Until recently it was taken for granted that Madden was through. Then, after first desiring the naming of a moderate, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins suddenly decided Madden might be reappointed if the board's other left-wingers, Edwin S. Smith, could be induced to resign, and when Smith flatly refused to do anything of the sort, decided Madden might be reappointed anyway. Thereafter the President himself began to yield to CIO pressure. Madden is now a pretty good bet to continue in office at least until the senators get their hands on him.

EVEN IN THE MOVIES

In truth, in the intervals of his other work, the President has gathered into his own hands a great number of the details of party management, some of them important, some of them trifling. Recently he even found time to try to induce a leading screen actor, famous for his personal popularity, to head a screen actors' committee for Roosevelt.

Generally speaking, he is waging his campaign as a defense of a well-fortified position. Wendell L. Willkie has not yet forced him to become aggressive. He makes his speeches and deals with problems as they arise. His national chairman, Ed Flynn, has decried such local bigwigs as Senator Scott Lucas, of Illinois, who in turn serve as fronts for such local bosses as Ed Kelly, of Chicago. Flynn seems to busy himself chiefly with co-ordinating party activities, and with such minor political experiments as his effort to high-pressure one of the movie chains out of showing the movie short of Willkie on "Information, Please." But the President and Flynn are doing everything they need to do, and no one can deny that thus far they are doing it pretty successfully.

Lord Haw Haw Weakening.

It has always been more or less amusing to listen to "Lord Haw Haw," that poor, befuddled radio propagandist who broadcasts over the shortwave from Berlin. Always, the wretched fellow has stumbled and tripped over his own confused illogic. He has contradicted himself within a couple of breaths and his fantastic larding of Goebbels' fantastic falsities over the air waves has been so pathetic as almost to arouse sympathy, if amusement did not smother other emotions.

Last Monday night, though, he almost out-Hawed himself. He was talking about the ghastly sinking, by German U-boat, of that ship carrying British child refugees. Trying to justify the fearful act, or twist it to serve as propaganda for the Nazi cause. Imagine it!

Boiled down, this was the gist of his argument as heard through some 15 minutes of irrational obfuscation. "The story is a lie out of whole cloth. Just British propaganda seeking to arouse emotional sympathies in the United States. The whole story bears the earmarks of British duplicity. Probably there wasn't any such ship—they didn't name it in the first dispatches—and if there was, probably it didn't sink."

Anyway, the blame for the whole affair must be placed upon Winston Churchill, the arch enemy, who knows whenever he sends any British ship to sea, in the war area, he is signing the death warrants of all on board."

And more of the same twaddle. Wonder by the way, how Haw Haw explains Hitler's delay to "rush" British U-boats to listen to him with any regularity. He never heard him on this latter subject?

Leslie Howard Earlier on Monday evening Leslie Howard—you know him, the actor who has played so many star roles on the screen, including Romeo to Norma Shearer's Juliet and Ashley to the late Greta Garbo—spoke for fifteen minutes on the London short-wave program, "London Calling."

Howard is now living in England and, for the benefit of any who would like to hear him, he speaks at 7:30 p. m. (Atlanta time) over the short wave every Monday evening. On my radio it is 9.7, in the eleven megacycle band.

Last Monday he talked quite a lot about "Seaman Howard." This is Leslie's son. The younger Howard is a seaman on a British battleship.

Recently he enjoyed a furlough spent with his famous father. It was fascinating to hear Leslie talk about him. Never referred to him as "my son," always as "Seaman Howard."

"Seaman Howard and I were enjoying our pipes and a good talk place."

Old Loot Recovered.

Removal of a roadside milestone at Little Chesterfield, England, unearthed plunder of a burglary committed 40 years ago. The home of the late Sir Brian L. Ackland, at Saffron Walden, was robbed of valuable antiques, including engravings, jewel cases, silver snuff boxes and other relics. All were found in the hiding place.

Ring Of Hypocrisy

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—In Chicago, where the greedy labor skate collaborates with common gangsters and brothel-keepers in the government of labor unions, portions of the speech which Franklin D. Roosevelt delivered to the Teamsters' Union in Washington still ring with a sound of the most baleful hypocrisy. I refuse to labor the question whether Mr. Roosevelt spoke as President of the United States or as leader and nominee of the Social-Democratic party. He, the President of the nation, and it cannot be asked that his remarks go unchallenged merely because the challenge might reveal his insincerity and thus tend to impair the dignity of the office which he occupies. By that rule any President would always be above criticism by his political opponents.

President Roosevelt said to the teamsters: "You can remember when it was the common practice to discharge any worker who joined a union."

As to whether this ever was the common practice of employers I do not know. I have a hearsay impression that it was, but I am becoming more and more leary of hearsay. But for the sake of argument, I will concede that this was so, because I want to hurry on to the other side of the situation which has been created by the Wagner act and Mr. Roosevelt's policy toward unions.

Just As Bad

It is now the common practice of unions to compel the discharge of any worker who refuses to join, and this practice—as bad a violation of the citizen's rights as the one which the President, in these few words, so scornfully condemns—is upheld by the Labor Relations Board. In other words, the government requires that the American citizen submit himself to the irresponsible, arbitrary and often lacerous and murderous rule of private groups, some of which, moreover, are very exclusive and debar vast numbers of citizens from lawful occupations. Now, if by joining a union, even involuntarily and at a sacrifice of principle and his rights, the citizen were assured some economic gain, that would be something. But in thousands of cases membership in the union brought with it compulsion and threats of discharge, injury or death, results in a net financial loss to men and women in the poorest brackets.

It has been shown that such unions, grown arrogant under the encouragement of Mr. Roosevelt's government, are exploited for fabulous graft by labor fakers of his own following, who do not hesitate to exact from the poor, toiler the money to freight these crooks to Florida and maintain them in luxury amid the criminal scum from which many of them are socially and morally indistinguishable. The Lake Michigan shore near Chicago is adorned by many lovely homes of union thieves bought with ill-gotten money, and money extorted from employers under threats to call the workers out on strike.

Right Not To Join

But whether the unions be rackets of Communist auxiliaries, as many are, including the Newspaper Guild, controlling factions and certain transport and dockside unions, and even though a union be honest, the right not to join is still fundamental and inalienable. These unions profess to be voluntary associations. They derive many legal privileges from that classification, but they use compulsion, and Mr. Roosevelt supports that compulsion.

The right not to join has not been abolished by clamor or by law. It is still the citizen's right, and Mr. Roosevelt's administration has been convicting at wholesale violation of that right.

It is the right to deal individually as a free man, the right to the rewards of one's toil and not to share that reward with any unofficial, irresponsible taxing and grafting authority.

It is the right, also, to withhold financial or moral support from any nominee, such as Mr. Roosevelt himself, to whom a majority of a union might wish to give a cash contribution and an indorsement made unanimous by a familiar parliamentary trick in violation of the wishes of the minority.

This right has not been abolished, but it has been violated disgracefully by the connivance of the President of the United States, who has said nothing about the merest existence of such a right in his address to the Teamsters' Union.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

TEN YEARS TO YOUR LIFE EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Sept. 26.—There is a sign on the door of each room of the hotel where your correspondent is stopping which has a line across the top of it reading, "Add ten years to your life."

This naturally attracts the attention of one and all and especially those who feel as if they may not live more than ten more minutes. So, one and all go up and read the rest of the printed matter below the big letters.

The printed matter says that if one will partake of the waters of the town's spa one will add ten years to one's life.

This is a help to the persons who feel they may not live ten more minutes so they get on the telephone and ask them for heaven's sake to hurry up with a gallon or so of the water from the spa as there are only eight or nine minutes of life left in which to get a lease on ten more years.

This is all right for them but for a person who is going to be here for five or six days it is something of a problem. If one remains six days and adds ten years each day it would run some of us into a long span of years. This is always a stopper and some of the guests debate each morning whether or not they will add ten years or just take some plain cooking water out of the tap and let the old man with the scythe follow his ordinary schedule. It is a poser. A very real poser.

THE HITLER INFLUENCE

This morning on waking up the hotel sent up two nice thermoses jugs of the sulpho saline water, each guaranteed to add ten years to one's life.

"I'm not going to drink it," said the gentleman who is rooming with me. "Bring me some plain tap water. I added ten years yesterday and I am not going to add ten more today."

"I pleaded with him, arguing that if we added ten more years to the normal span we might live to see air-conditioned streets in summer; a wife who wouldn't read her husband's mail and a politician who was sincere."

"I am not going to do it," he said. "It is taking too much of a chance. If Hitler wins the war the world is going to be in such a sorry state that I will be willing to make my exit at the appointed time, whatever it may be. If I stay here long enough I would add 70 or 80 years and that would be too long. A man who is 120 or 130 years old would be nothing but a curiosity and a man can get to be that without living that long."

Also," he said, "if Hitler and the Italians and the Japs are going to be big shots in the sweet bye and bye I want no part of it." So, he pushed away the life-giving fluid and took a glass of ordinary aqua pura which does nothing more than wet one's whistle and does nothing at all to the life span. It was distressing.

THE TOWN A SPA BUILT

This is a town which exists because of the spas. There are spas all over the town. One cannot help but run into a spa at every corner and in the middle of the block.

The municipal government owns the main spa and they have a sort of long soda fountain in one part of the modern and beautiful building which houses it.

There one may lean against the bar and purchase all sorts of health-giving fluids for as little as two cents per glass. Some of the visitors stand there and drink until their eyes bulge out. They seem determined to regain their health in five or ten minutes.

The ads say that if one drinks a dozen glasses of the iron water it is about the same as consuming a steel girder. The backbone and the ribs will take on steel reinforcements. After one has drunk enough of the iron water one's stomach seems to clank against the ribs as one walks along.

There are other fluids which have the same quality as epsom salts. Only more so. There are other fluids which have calcium and soda in them.

Most of the people met on the street seem to be very young or very old. I am worried about where the next generation is coming from but then, I am sure, the problem will be solved. The old people drink the water and the young ones swim in it, a large and handsome pool being filled with a saline water.

Tomorrow I hope to get around to making a few inquiries about the vital statistics.

THE MILLION-DOLLAR FEELING

There is another sign in the hotel rooms which reads, "Get that million-dollar feeling. Call the clerk now." If one does call the clerk and asks about how one attains that million-dollar feeling the answer is in the form of a jug of water from the spa.

I have not yet tried to attain that million-dollar feeling, having been discouraged by a gentleman I met in the lobby. He has been here for some time. He said that he finally had obtained the million-dollar feeling by drinking the water. He said he had made but one slight change in the chemical content of the water which, he said, he was sure did not disturb its curative effect. This slight change was, he said, merely the addition of a jigger of Scotch or Bourbon to each glass of the water. The water, he said, really does produce a million-dollar feeling and he is offering to give testimonials.

He was a cynical sort of fellow and I paid him no attention.

In the morning I plan to call the clerk and inform him I wish to add ten years to my life and ask him to have the bellboy step on it. This may sound a bit confusing but means merely I will wish the boy to hurry with the life-giving fluid. The gentleman who is rooming with me finally has promised to add ten more years to his life, too, and so in the morning we each will have a jug of the elixir from the spa and see what happens.

Of What Use Were the Better Navigators Who Dreamed of Doing What Columbus Did

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

The dumb animals have no interest in life except to eat and mate. Their destiny is merely to keep themselves and their species alive and eventually to be consumed by other creatures or return to dust and feed the soil that fed them.

It isn't a very high destiny.

Primitive man achieved little more. He merely fed himself and reproduced his kind.

The first progress he made—the first act that lifted him above other animals—the first proof of his manhood was the use of his mind and hands to make something.

His ability to think was no proof of superiority. Other animals think. Thinking had no value until it prompted doing.

It is doing that makes man the noblest work of God. Achievement alone makes him more respectable than the animals that merely eat and mate.

When we speak of the culture of an earlier race—the Babylonians or the Aztecs—we refer to the things they made: their pottery, textiles, temples, calendar, alphabet. Their merit is measured by the things they were able to do—and did.

When we feel pride in our own civilization, it is because of the things we can do—the music we make, the pictures we paint, the skyscrapers, airplanes, bridges and machines we build.

This way of measuring our worth is just, for our ability to do is the only proof of what we are.

To be useful, to achieve things, to build and develop—this is our privilege and high destiny.

And thus we have the measure of a man. The degree of his ability to do is the degree by which he excels the brute.

You hear thoughtless people say: "He is a lucky man. He doesn't have to do a thing."

Is it good fortune to be like the dumb creatures that merely eat and sleep and die?

There are few things more degrading than wealth that prompts people to sacrifice their native advantage and descend to the level of brutes—growing fat and soft and dull and useless in idleness.

To retire from doing is to retire from the high estate of manhood and become a brother to them that live to eat.

Willkie Needs More Strength In Large Cities, Poll Reveals

Roosevelt Also Leads Among Voters in Middle and Lower Income Brackets; Republicans Have Gains in All Classes Over 1936 Stand.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 26.—As Wendell Willkie swings back eastward from his first major tour of the 1940 campaign, the nationwide surveys of the American Institute of Public Opinion underline the vote-getting problem Willkie has been facing in the past two weeks.

While the Republican presidential candidate is substantially stronger in all groups of the population than was Governor Landon four years ago, the survey shows that Willkie still needs to increase his strength in the larger cities and towns, and among the voters earning $20 to $50 a week, if he is to win in November.

Willkie has been leading President Roosevelt among midwestern farm voters in the area between the Ohio River and the Rockies, the survey shows, but at the present time this strength is more than offset by Mr. Roosevelt's majorities in the cities and towns. President Roosevelt is strongest with voters in cities of 500,000 population and more, such as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit and elsewhere. But Republican leaders can take comfort from the fact that even in these cities the President's strength is substantially below his vote on election day four years ago.

The latest Institute figures, broken down by size of city, with the Republican gains since the 1936 election, are as follows:

Cities 500,000 and over	61%	39%	+10
Cities 250,000 to 500,000	55	45	+6
Towns under 2,500	51	49	+10
All farm voters	53	47	+6
Midwestern farmers only	46	54	+10

As in 1936, the Republican candidate is assured of a large majority with voters in the upper income group (those earning more than $50 a week). The striking income-cleavage shown in the Presidential vote four years ago is even wider today, the survey shows:

Upper income group (over $50 a week)	32%	68%	+11
Middle income group ($20-$50 a week)	52	48	+9
Lower income group (including persons on relief)	71	29	+5
On relief	80	20	+4

Analysis of the vote by age levels shows that there is apparently less cleavage between the various age-groups today than there was in 1936. This is partly due to the fact that Mr. Willkie has made a much stronger appeal to younger voters and first voters than Governor Landon did.

Following are comparisons for the age-group vote today and in 1936:

Voters 21-24 years old	59%	41%
Voters 25-29	59	41
Voters 30-39	56	44
Voters 40 and over	54	46

AGE-GROUP VOTE IN 1936.

	% Roosevelt.	% Landon
Voters 21-24 years old	68%	32%
Voters 25-29	68	32
Voters 30-39	65	35

Jerome Jones Senate Passes Estate To Aid Bill Sponsored Institutions By Ramspeck

Labor Leader's Will Filed; Executors To Select Beneficiaries.

The will of the late Jerome Jones, Georgia labor leader, and editor of the Journal of Labor, was filed yesterday with the county ordinary, leaving the bulk of his estate to institutions and organizations to be selected by his executors, Dewey L. Johnson, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, and Emmett Quinn, labor leader and former deputy sheriff.

Jones bequeathed Quinn $500 and a watch which was given Jones by the Canadian Congress of Labor, and left Johnson a watch which the Atlanta Federation of Trades had given him. He willed M. E. Coleman, assistant city school superintendent, a ring which the Atlanta Federation of Teachers had presented him.

The executors were instructed to purchase a suitable trophy to be placed at the Jerome Jones school, and to erect a monument over the grave of his wife. His only son, Jerome Jones Jr., was provided for in the will.

Measure Would Extend Civil Service to Approximately 200,000.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP) The senate approved today the Ramspeck bill, which would permit the President to put approximately 200,000 employees of "temporary" government agencies into the civil service if they passed non-competitive examinations.

The measure now goes back to the house for action on amendments. Specifically exempting WPA employees from such procedure, the measure would give the President discretion to extend civil service classifications to those workers who had "served with merit" for six months, had passed the examinations and had been pronounced competent by their department heads.

The senate amended the bill to exclude United States attorneys, their assistants, marshals, deputy marshals, internal revenue collectors and various policy-making officials, as well as employees of the Tennessee Valley Authority, from the bill. It struck out a house-approved provision requiring apportionment by states of the appointments involved. The chamber added to the measure a provision by which employees of representatives and senators, after they had served four years in Washington, would become eligible to compete for civil service positions in other branches of the government.

Ramspeck today introduced a bill granting postmasters a leave of absence without pay when they are drafted or volunteer for military service and allowing their reappointment after military service if an acting postmaster is serving at the time of application for reappointment.

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Homosassa is as beautiful as ever. Got down here at daybreak Tuesday morning—in time to see the sunrise! I wonder what Sidney Lanier would have written if he had seen the sun rise at Homosassa. Noon Hudson, of Newnan, was on the dock fishing as I walked into the clubhouse. I called to him to know what he meant by taking advantage of a fellow like that, and he hollered back that he had just had a big bass to strike.

Shuffling out of town clothes, and eating breakfast in record time, I was ready for it. Beau Hudson, my good friend, who has taken me to Homosassa through all these years, together with his brother, Noon, and Al Matthews, had gone down last Saturday, and while we were eating breakfast they were telling me about the trout out on the flats, the reds around the keys, the mackerel, the sheephead, the bass, etc.

This is written Tuesday night, and I wish to report one of the greatest days I have ever had at Homosassa—fishing for trout in the forenoon, lunch on Shell Island—black bass still fluttering when Clyde and James were dressing them, and all the trimmings that go with these famous Homosassa shore dinners—with the afternoon devoted to red fishing around the keys. Tomorrow we are going out to tie up with some of the big ones, and they tell me there are plenty of them left out there.

Think of being away from telephones, radio, automobiles and every other form of stress and tension, and yet with all the comforts of modern life. One has to visit the Homosassa Fishing Club to understand what I am talking about. As I sit here writing this column, the only sound that comes through the big windows and doors into this charming living room of the clubhouse is the occasional splash of water in the river a few feet away, the bark of a dog over in the little village, the voices of whippersnappers and crickets. And I might add the variations of certain friends as they snore on the davenport!

We have seen more bird life here today than any day I ever spent at Homosassa. Evidently, the past summer has been favorable for the birds and waterfowl. I was reading the current issue of Collier's on the train Monday night, in which you will find an amazing outlay of bird pictures. It seems to me that I have seen almost every bird pictured in the magazine here at Homosassa today.

But of all the fascinating pictures at Homosassa, I would put first the children—the children of these fishermen. You should see them on their way to and from school in boats—little fellows handling boats like veterans. They do not need any setting up exercise. I have never seen children with such amazing self-reliance. They wait on themselves, in the face of real hazards. No wonder they make such rugged men and women. Some day I am going to write a story about Homosassa, if someone else doesn't go on and do it. Here is a real saga.

Excuse me, but Noon Hudson has finished his nap and is hollering for me to come on out on one of those big catfish. Page Jake the dock and help him catch some Harris!

THE DOLLARS & CENTS COST

For Those Who Figure With Sharp Pencils

Many take at face value advertisements claiming "lowest interest on loans," etc., but the wise man investigates the actual total cost before borrowing. Always ask for the amount in dollars and cents for the time your loan is to run.

In all our advertising, we show the exact cost, in dollars and cents, that any loan will cost you, whether it is to run twelve months or twenty-four months.

To illustrate, take these five examples:

Amount of Loan:	Total Interest For Twelve Months:
$ 50.00	$ 5.00
100.00	10.00
200.00	20.00
500.00	50.00
1,000.00	100.00

Two years to repay if you need or want it.

SECURITY: Household Furniture, Automobiles, Diamonds, Endorsers, etc.

We like to make loans. We never turn down a loan unless we absolutely have to. We go out of our way to make loans that seem impossible at first.

Echo of Primary Heard by Mayor

An echo of the September 4 city primary rode yesterday's chilling rains into Mayor Hartsfield's office at the city hall.

During the campaign for the nomination of mayor one of the major planks advocated by Roy LeCraw, successful candidate, was a $1 minimum water bill each month.

Yesterday Hartsfield, while writing a check to pay his current bill, subconsciously wrote in $1 in full payment.

After the procedure was completed he squinted at the check and sense something was wrong. He tore up the original check and wrote another for $1.30, the present minimum.

"I've heard so much of $1 water bills lately that I guess I just have it on my mind," Hartsfield explained.

Agent Reports More Interest In Livestock

Lowndes Farmers Building Up Herds, Improving Pastures.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 26.—Lowndes county farmers are paying particular attention to livestock, feed crops and pastures, R. E. Miller, county extension agent, reports.

On the Hugh Vallotton farm is a pasture that has been grazed heavily for 15 years. Another field on this farm was in sedge grass until eight years ago. It was seeded to lespedeza and carpet grass. It is mowed twice a year.

A small farm herd of beef cattle is being built up on the P. K. Moore farm—built up in a practical manner by the use of a purebred Hereford bull on common cows, according to County Agent Miller.

"This is an example of what many other Lowndes farmers are now doing and a demonstration of what a great many others could probably do," Miller said.

On the F. W. Schroer farm is an example of good woodland pasture, excellent feed crops and crotalaria and soil-building legumes. Schroer combines the growing of soil building crops with bumper yields of feed crops and livestock.

William F. Boggan has a well balanced farm program, too. This includes a few cattle with a purebred beef bull, good sows and purebred boar; a small flock of sheep for wool and spring lamb production. He grows an average allotment of cotton and tobacco, and always produces an abundance of feed stuff.

There are many things of interest on the Young Tillman farm, including large areas of permanent pastures, both new and old, a splendid herd of Hereford cattle and excellent feed crops. This is the largest and oldest herd of Herefords in the county. Tillman has also done considerable wildlife conservation work.

Emphasis Urged On Spiritual Life

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 26.—Dr. S. V. Sanford, chancellor of the University System of Georgia, speaking at the opening of Georgia State Woman's College here this week, appealed for special consideration of the spiritual side of life, "especially in trying times such as the world is facing today."

Mayor J. D. Ashley welcomed the students to Valdosta; the Rev. Luther A. Harrell spoke for the Valdosta Ministerial Association; Dr. B. G. Owens for the Inter-Club committee, and Dean Hollis for Emory Junior College.

Dr. Frank R. Reade, president of the Georgia State Woman's College, presided and presented Dr. Sanford.

Film Offerings Starting Today Go Historical

Three New Movies Deal With Frontier Days of Country.

By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor.
The movies go historical today, delving into American frontier days.

Most promising of the new lot of films is "The Howards of Virginia" which will star Cary Grant and Martha Scott at the Rialto. Slightly on the religious side, but pointing out a lesson which can well be learned in today's modern times is the fighting film, "Brigham Young, Frontiersman," which stars Tyrone Power at the Fox theater.

Really western, of the Indian days, is "Kit Carson," with Jon Hall and Lynn Bari, opening at Loew's Grand.
"Foreign Correspondent" moves to the Rhodes for another week; "Hopalong Cassidy in Hidden Gold" continues at the Capitol with Bill Boyd again in the lead; and "Charlie Chan at the Wax Museum" will finish its run at the Rialto Saturday night.

The Cameo stars Don Barry in "The Tulsa Kid." This is the first Barry film to play Atlanta since Don married the attractive Atlanta starlet, Peggy Stewart.

Rialto.

"The Howards of Virginia" begins its run at the Rialto theater today with Cary Grant and Martha Scott in the leading roles. The story is the screen version of "The Tree of Liberty," the novel by Elizabeth Page. It tells of a couple of young Virginians during those years when this country was breaking away from the motherland, when Washington and his ragged, hungry men of Valley Forge were valiantly fighting for American independence.

The clashing views of different classes and factions in those ancient days are vividly brought out in the romance between Cary Grant, as Matt Howard, rough, good-natured man of the backwoods, and Martha Scott as Jane Peyton Howard, of the proudest Virginia aristocracy.

The story is told against the sweep of history and it brings, among its characters, some who are forever included among America's immortals. As George Washington, Lafayette, Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry, Captain Jabe Allen.

The supporting cast includes Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Richard Carlson, Richard Crenshaw, George Houston, Alan Marshal, Paul Kelly, Elisabeth Risdon, Ann Revere.

Fox.

"Brigham Young, Frontiersman," opens a week's run today at the Fox theater with Tyrone Power playing the role of a Mormon scout. In the title role is Dean Jagger.

The film is a pictured story of the Mormon's flight across the United States and out of it into an unknown frontier trying to find the religious freedom which was promised them under the Constitution.

Fires, beatings, killings, weary miles through rain, sleet, snow, cold and heat, the sufferings of the Mormons underwent for their religion and their leaders is caught.

The cast lists some of the film-land's best—Brian Donlevy, Jane Darwell, John Carradine, Mary Astor, Vincent Price, Jean Rogers, Ann Todd and Linda Darnell.

Loew's.

The days of the old west, when men fought Indians to take their land away from them and the Indians fought back—the days when the Indian scouts were the heroes of the younger generation—are caught in the Edward Small production of "Kit Carson" starring Jon Hall and Lynn Bari.

This film deals with the life of Kit Carson in its most thrilling details. It shows him during his army career and deals with the disappearance of the tribe of 1,000 Indians.

Also in the cast are Dana Andrews, Ward Bond, Harold Huber, C. Henry Gordon. It was directed by George B. Seitz.

Paramount.

Elsa Maxwell's story of "Public Deb. No. 1" comes to the Paramount theater today, telling a tale of a girl in the rich set, a debutante, with money to burn—and she does—turning slightly "pink" under Communistic influence.

Her escapades, which finally bring her into companionship

ATTENTION DEMOCRATS

Being unalterably opposed to a third term for any President, as well as to the desertion by the New Deal of the principles of the Democratic Party and, realizing there are thousands of Georgia Democrats who entertain similar views, the undersigned deem it vital that these independent Democrats of Georgia be given an opportunity for organization. We are, therefore, calling a convention in Macon, at the Dempsey Hotel, 11 A. M., E. S. T., October 3rd, 1940. The independent Democrats in every county are urged to send delegates to this convention furnishing their names promptly to J. Douglas Carlisle, Secretary, Macon, Ga.

Rawlinson Gets Leading Role in 'American Way'

Jaycees Obtain Actor Who Has Appeared on Screen, Stage.

Herbert Rawlinson, movie and stage star, has been signed to play the lead role in "The American Way" at the municipal auditorium October 3-6.

Rawlinson will enact the role created by Fredric March in the Broadway production, and Florio Nadel, a German refugee who understudied Florence Eldridge in the original play, will take the feminine lead which is that of a German refugee.

Rawlinson has appeared in movies with Bette Davis, the most recent being "Dark Victory." His other recent movies include "Secrets of an Actress," "Torchy Gets Her Man," "The Kid Comes Back," "Women Are Like That," and "Under the Big Top."

Approximately 200 Atlantans will take minor roles. The production here is being sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Man Asks To Be Jailed, Then Hangs Self in Cell

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 26.—(P)—A man appeared at police headquarters saying he had tried to kill himself. Captain Roy Pope said, and asking that he be locked up overnight to prevent a repetition. The man, William Mueller, 35, didn't know that on Pope's desk was a warrant for his arrest on a charge of assault and battery with a waiter, are hilarious. The waiter, however, is no Red. He proceeds to teach the girl a bit about Americanism—punctuating his lessons with a few spankings. In the cast are Brenda Joyce, George Murphy, Elsa Maxwell, Mischa Auer and others.

Roxy.

"Charlie Chan at the Wax Museum," one of the best in the entire series of Chan pictures, continues at the Roxy theater. Sidney Toler stars.

Chan tracks down his latest adversary in a weird chamber of horrors where wax figures come to life. Tricked into taking part in a "Crime League" broadcast from a wax museum, Chan is confronted with his most baffling case. He is faced with death in the electric chair at the hands of a murderer claimed dead 12 years before.

Cameo.

Don "Red" Barry again packs a mean six-gun in "The Tulsa Kid," the latest of his western series which will run today and tomorrow at the Cameo theater.

Noah Beery is cast in the dramatic role of Montana Smith. Luana Walters is the leading lady, and David Durand portrays her hot-headed brother. George Douglas and Charles Thomas are the villains of the film.

Rhodes.

"Foreign Correspondent" has been held over at the Rhodes theater for another week.

Walter Wagner decided to make "Foreign Correspondent" in recognition of the intrepid group of American newspapermen who are serving as the nation's eyes and ears during the European debacle, risking their lives daily in order to keep their own people informed of the rapidly shifting panorama of war.

"Foreign Correspondent" has in its principle roles Joel McCrea, Laraine Day, Herbert Marshall, George Sanders, Robert Benchley, Albert Basserman, Edmund Gwenn, Harry Davenport and Eduardo Ciannelli.

signed by his wife, Mrs. Gladys Mueller. The captain ordered him jailed. A few minutes later a turnkey found Mueller's body in his cell, hanging by his belt.

Oldest Citizen Of Schley Dies In 104th Year

J. W. Lawhorn Never Rode on Train or Talked Over Phone.

ELLAVILLE, Ga., Sept. 26.—(P) J. W. Lawhorn, Schley county's oldest citizen, died today at the age of 103.

Mr. Lawhorn lived in the Concord community, a few miles from here, and had resided in this section all his life.

Several months ago, in talking about his abnormal span of life, Mr. Lawhorn credited his record to the fact that he never smoked, chewed tobacco or drank intoxicants. He was a farmer.

Mr. Lawhorn lived quietly. He never rode a train, talked over a telephone or used spectacles. He went to a movie once, but left after a few minutes because "it looked too much like lightning."

His wife died two years ago. She was 101. Survivors are three children, 16 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Friday.

House Votes Billion and Half, Including Funds for the Draft

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(P) A new $1,469,993,636 appropriation bill to help finance the national defense program, including the draft, was approved by the house today after a few hours after it was received from committee.

Senate passage of the measure, which contained funds President Roosevelt requested the day congress enacted the conscription law, would send this session's total appropriations and contract authorizations for the nation's armed forces to a peacetime record of $12,138,832,516.

Administration leaders indicated this would be the last major defense appropriation of the session. The house appropriations committee said that so far as it was advised, this bill, in conjunction with those previously passed, "goes as far in the marshaling process (of the nation's strength) as is considered feasible and practicable at this time by our military and naval leadership."

Largest Item.
The largest item in the bill—$1,062,976,496—would provide for the pay, maintenance and training of 328,451 National Guardsmen and between 695,990 and 800,000 draftees the War Department plans to add to the army's 375,000 regulars by next July.

To expedite production of military airplanes, the house voted $185,000,000 in cash and $150,000,000 in contract authorizations. Approved by a voice vote, the measure itself provoked little debate. Its floor manager, Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, declared the bill, together with prior defense grants, should "go a long way" toward making the western hemisphere secure from attack.

The Virginian asserted, however, that the nation's leaders should be making plans to meet a possible economic depression when preparedness spending stops.

Fears Depression.
"I am not worried," he said, "about the problem of military defense of the western hemisphere. But I am terrified by the economic outlook after peace returns to the world."

The bill's advocates said the War Department planned to have a total of 1,399,441 men in the army by the end of the current fiscal year. They said the minimum number of draftees would be 695,990.

Other items in the bill included: $36,000,000 for anti-aircraft batteries for auxiliary naval vessels now being acquired; $107,445,499 for army motor vehicles; $10,000,000 for a graving drydock in New York harbor; $5,000,000 for a naval supply depot at Bayonne, N. J., and $36,444,640 to supplement previously appropriated funds for a 12,000-pilot training program.

CONFEREES AGREE ON TAX DEDUCTION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(P) Urged by the National Defense Commission to act quickly, a conferees conference committee agreed to permit government contractors to deduct from their taxable income the entire cost of new facilities installed for defense purposes after June 10, this year.

Nazis Alarmed By British Spies In Netherlands

'Flying Agents' Arrive at Night, Meet Sympathetic Dutch.

AMSTERDAM (Via Berlin), Sept. 26.—(P)—A German hunt for flying "British agents" who are reported to be landing by night in the Netherlands to meet sympathetic Dutchmen resulted today in the arrest of five men in the coastal province of South Holland.

Three of them were described by the authorities as Czechs, and all were said to have been members of the crew of a British plane which landed two nights ago near The Hague. They were turned over to the German Army of Occupation.

Rumors of stealthy landings by British fliers on war intelligence missions led the attorney general yesterday to offer 500 guilders (nominally about $250) for the apprehension of any such agent. Five weeks ago a dozen men in a British plane were arrested, after managing to hide for several days.

The urgency which the German authorities seem to have attached to these incidents apparently indicates that they have been unable to weed out the network of secret agents who honeycombed the Netherlands before the German invasion of last May 10. In the first half year of the war, Allied agents or purely mercenary spies were almost as numerous as German Fifth Columnists. The then-neutral Netherlands was an ideal listening post for British agents because of its proximity to the west wall and important German industrial areas. It now appears that much information concerning German plans for the invasion of England may still be coming to the British military intelligence service from Holland, despite the German occupation.

British Pound Rivers Sees Italian Invasion Bases in Egypt

Warships Fire 'At Will' on Marshal Graziani's Desert Army.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Sept. 26.—(P)—A third and point-blank shelling of Italy's invasion bases in Egypt by the British battle fleet towering flames and resounding explosions in the heart of Marshal Graziani's desert army, the British announced tonight.

The warships crept at dawn Wednesday into the coastal waters off Sidi Barrani, where the Italians are preparing their main base after crossing the Egyptian border, and fired "at will," the authorities disclosed.

They said there was no sign of any opposing naval units. It was the third British attack there in 10 days.

One military objective fired by a shell burned for at least two hours, naval officers said, and they expressed confidence this newest action had disrupted Italian plans for a renewal of their Egyptian offensive.

(An Italian high command communique acknowledged the shelling and said that British planes again had bombed the Italian port of Tobruk, on the Libyan coast. The Italians also admitted an Italian torpedo boat had been sunk in the Ionian sea by a British submarine. The high command's communique listed Italian aerial counterblows on widespread sea and land objectives.)

ROME RADIO REPORTS BRITISH SUB-SINKING

50,000 Danes Give King Great Birthday Greeting

COPENHAGEN (Via Berlin), Sept. 26.—(P)—The Danes shouted themselves hoarse today in birthday greetings to 70-year-old King Christian X of this Nazi-occupied country.

Fifty thousand persons gathered before the royal palace during the afternoon, many weeping, some fainting and otherwise conducting themselves in an un-Danish manner.

The king came to a balcony and made a short speech of thanks.

CINCINNATI CHOSEN

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—(P) Cincinnati was chosen today for the 52d convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters in 1941. The current convention closed tomorrow with election of officers. Harry T. Wright, of Chicago, was nominated for president and John A. Witherspoon, of Nashville, Tenn., for vice president.

Rivers Sees Great Victory For Roosevelt

Tells Young Democrats They Can Be Confident of Election.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 26.—(P)—Governor Rivers, of Georgia, told Young Democrats today they can work for the re-election of President Roosevelt in confidence of an overwhelming victory.

Speaking at a national pre-election rally of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, Rivers declared that if Wendell Willkie "keeps on making speeches and keeps on appearing in public with his silly wisecracks in these serious times, he'll be beaten worse than Landon was."

The Governor made the principal talk at a "Georgia Day" luncheon attended by 300 delegates, who tomorrow will hear Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. bring a message from the President.

"I'll make the prophecy," Rivers declared, "that Georgia will poll the largest Democratic vote in its history Election Day."

"These Willkiecrats have come down into the south and tried to break the party. We're going to answer them by doing a better job than we ever did before."

Brantley Posts $2,500 Bond In U. S. Case

Under Indictment on Charge of Defrauding State of $15,000.

W. B. Brantley, former chief state highway engineer, posted $2,500 bond before United States Commissioner David J. Meyerhard yesterday pending his trial in United States district court on charges of mail fraud.

Brantley was jointly indicted Wednesday with J. G. (Bugs) Glover, suspended supervisor of state convict forces, on charges of using the mails in an alleged scheme to defraud the state of approximately $15,000 by giving highway construction work to Brantley's company without competitive bidding.

His bond was signed by the Maryland Casualty Company.

Glover, who has posted $3,000 bond on two previous indictments on charges of mail fraud growing out of the federal investigation of operations of the Highway Department, is expected to appear before the commissioner today to post bond on the third set of charges preferred against him.

Jean Pentecost To Make Bow At Ball on Christmas Eve

• • • JEAN PENTECOST is one of the more ambitious of the season's debutantes, for she is combining her "coming out" with a college career. Jean returned Wednesday to the University of Georgia, where she is a senior this year, and she plans to commute between Athens and Atlanta. At least it practically amounts to commuting, for her popularity makes so many demands on her time that she will be forced to spend every weekend in Atlanta. In fact so many parties have been planned for her that she is wondering how they can all be crowded into the weekends.

Of course Jean's formal debut will of necessity be given during her holidays from school, so she has chosen Christmas Eve, which is the gayest time of all the year, for a party. On that date her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Mark Pentecost, will entertain in her honor at a brilliant supper dance to be given at the Piedmont Driving Club. And the party will be all the gayer because of the presence of scores of Jean's friends who will be home from college.

Society Events

A card party, sponsored by the Sacred Heart Altar Society, will be held at the East Lake Country Club Monday. Many beautiful prizes will be given at the event.

• • • TRADITION is an extremely vital and interesting part of life at Washington and Lee University, as well as one of its most delightful and changeless phases. For instance, when Alex Hitz Sr. took Alex Jr. up to Lexington, Va., this week to enter him as a student in the university, he found things pretty much the same as when he attended school there 30 years ago.

Alex Jr. will even attend classes taught by two professors who taught his father, for Dr. Livingston Smith, head of the department of mathematics, and Dr. C. B. Dickey, of the physics department, still remain on the university faculty. In addition Alex Jr. will have as his athletic director Captain Dick Smith, who was a member of Mr. Hitz's class back in 1910.

Alex has engaged rooms in the house of the university treasurer who has been connected with the institution for more than 40 years, and he will take his meals at Miss Laird's famous boarding house where his father dined during his college days. So you see things really do not change much at Washington and Lee.

Alex will be enrolled as a junior at the university for he has already had two years of college. He spent the last two years, you know, at Emory where he was a popular member of the Chi Phi fraternity.

He is already looking forward to Thanksgiving—not that he will have time to come home, but he intends to spend his brief holiday in Washington. You see there are so many young Atlantans in school in and around the national capital—at Randolph-Macon, Sweet Briar, Georgetown, University of Virginia, and Washington and Lee—that they are all planning to get together for a grand reunion over the "turkey day" weekend.

• • • ATLANTA WILL have a blackout this evening, but don't be alarmed—this will be just one of the original ideas executed during rush week by members of the Delta Alpha Delta sorority of the Atlanta Junior College.

The occasion for the eerie event will be a "Blackout Ball" to be held in the Little Theater and to be featured by the playing of poignant war songs by the orchestra.

Decorations will include a flag-bedecked canteen, red-checked table cloths and mottoes, such as "Write Home To Mother," and "Keep the Home Fires Burning."

Patriotic costumes will be worn by guests, who will scamper into the improvised air raid shelters when the blackout occurs at midnight.

Camp Fire Girls To Be Entertained.

Camp Fire Girls in the Atlanta council will be entertained at a skating party Saturday morning at the skating rink on North avenue in celebration of the opening of fall activities. Elementary school groups are invited from 10 to 11 o'clock and junior and senior high schools from 11 to 12 o'clock.

Receiving will be Mrs. Robert M. Schnore, chairman of the Guardians' Association, Mrs. Frank Phillips, extension chairman for the association, Mrs. Virginia W. Beale, executive secretary, Miss Elizabeth Pennock, field worker and Miss Florence Williams, president of the Girls' Cabinet.

The theme of the party will be a "Fall Festival," the name given the national membership drive.

Lane-Dunn.

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 26.—Miss Betty Lane, of San Francisco, Cal., formerly of Tacoma, Wash., and Howard M. Dunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dunn, of Marietta, will be married Saturday at 2 o'clock at the Girls' Lodge near San Francisco, where Miss Lane is assistant to the dean, Miss Eva Gregg.

Following the marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Dunn will honeymoon at Carmel, an ocean resort near San Francisco. On the return, Mr. and Mrs. Dunn will have an apartment in the Presidio. Mr. Dunn is area engineer for fortification construction for the United States War Department.

MISS JEAN PENTECOST.

T. E. L. Class Officers.

The yearly luncheon and the installation of the new officers of the T. E. L. Class of the Morningstar Baptist church was held recently.

Skin Oil Is Factor Of Youth, Health

By Dr. William Brady.

The schoolboy's shining morning face, the beaming countenance of starry-eyed youth, the radiance of budding womanhood and the brainy impression commonly associated with the balding man are more or less glandular—not the mysterious ductless glands this time, but the sebaceous glands that secrete sebum, skin oil.

Normal supply of sebum or skin oil not only keeps the skin (and the hair) in perfect condition and most pleasing appearance, but protects from irritants and prevents disease.

Excessive secretion of sebum, seborrhea, occurs chiefly in adolescence but is not uncommon in young and mature adults. Most authoritative medical works on dermatology devote from a page to a chapter to the etiology and pathology (cause and nature) of seborrhea and so reveal to the reader that the authors know no more than ordinary, plodding door-to-door practitioners know about it.

In many instances excessive oiliness of the skin is accompanied with some patches of skin inflammation (dermatitis) and scaling—this is variously called pityriasis, seborrheic eczema, seborrhea, sicca, though the last name is more generally restricted to the condition on the scalp, which is familiar to every one as dry dandruff.

Dry dandruff is a comparatively late manifestation of simple seborrhea or excessive oiliness of the scalp.

In the first place excess skin oil may be removed by gently wiping the skin with soft tissue, cloth or cotton wet with alcohol, or an alcoholic lotion such as so-called witch hazel extract or cologne water or other perfumed spirit or toilet water. For removal of excess oil from a limited area, say the nose, carbon tetrachloride is satisfactory, or plain benzene—when using either of these on face or scalp be sure to have free ventilation, and take a full breath and hold it for a while after the solvent is applied. Of course vigorous scrubbing with soap and warm water, followed by rinsing with tepid and finally cold water, removes the grease or oil too, but at the same time stimulates the sebaceous glands to pour out more oil.

Sulphur and resorcin are the best local remedies for excessive oiliness, either of the skin or the scalp. When applying resorcin to the scalp, however, it must be remembered that it may temporarily stain gray, white or blond hair yellowish red, and this may be avoided by using a sulphur and salicylic acid mixture instead of sulphur and resorcin, the effect of salicylic acid being similar to that of resorcin.

Lotion, powder and pomade containing these remedial agents will be described later, or if you are in a hurry send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for pamphlets on "Acne" and "Dandruff."

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS.

Ulrich Heep Hands.
I don't think I am particularly nervous, but my hands are always moist or clammy and I'd like to find something to correct it. (Miss H. F. T.)

Answer—Apply the following lotion, just a few drops, to palms twice daily: Tannic acid, one dram (teaspoonful); alcohol, two ounces (4 tablespoonfuls); glycerin, three drams; water, three ounces (6 tablespoonfuls).

A-partying I will go—so says Deanna Durbin, star of Universal's "Spring Parade," and she, like all young girls, likes to use the dainty toiletries that enhance their loveliness and charm, and tend to give them a grown-up feeling.

Pretty Packages Appeal To Young Girl

By Winifred Ware.

Every young girl would like to adorn her dressing table with dainty toiletries prettily packaged and delicately scented. When a girl starts having dates, going to parties and dances, she wants pretty bottles and good smells with which to enhance her dainty charms.

One of the country's leading manufacturers has prepared a line of toiletries which will be eagerly approved by the young girl of today. They're dainty and sweet, girlish and pink; they were prepared for youthful skins and coloring, to enhance the glowing freshness which is youth's first claim to beauty.

There are no creams in this cosmetic ensemble, only the dainty accessories that a young girl requires. First there's a large, impressive box of bath powder. When we peeped under the top, what do you think we found? A tiny program—a souvenir of the ball—and a reminder that yours must be filled with your favorite admirer's names. A long, slender and interesting package turned out to be talcum powder in a shaker box. Cologne and perfume may be had in this same fragrance. The clear red lipstick and soft, creamy powder will make sweet 16 look the picture of unforgettable loveliness.

Each of these items is encased in a pink box—youth's favorite shade of pink—with little, old-fashioned girls dancing merrily about. The lipstick and powder have catchy names that will appeal to a young girl and not one of these articles is more than a dollar.

It's a perfect little outfit for introducing a girl to the means of pretty daintiness. They're lovely also, for going-away-to-school and birthday gifts.

If you'd like to know the names of these preparations and the prices, call me at Walnut 6565. Those out-of-town, write to Winifred Ware, care of The Constitution, and inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MY DAY: Community To Aid Unemployed Youth

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY.—Mrs. June Rhodes, Miss Thompson and I left Mrs. Rhodes' farm in Sergeantville, N. J., yesterday morning after an early walk to see the cattle. They really have some beautiful stock. The barn was so well arranged I wanted to go back to my childhood and climb up in the hay and go to sleep.

The drive into New York City and up the parkway to Lake Mahopac, N. Y., was very lovely, for the trees are changing rapidly. Here scarlet and on the hillside every color from gold to brown is before you.

We lunched at the Putnam County Country Club in Mahopac and discussed the problem of what the community could do really to understand and help solve unemployment for young people out of school. The role of NYA is increasingly important with the establishment of the new type of training projects. I was glad that a committee was appointed to go into the whole question thoroughly. Afterwards I spoke to a large group of women on the same subject for a few minutes, and Miss Thompson and I reached Hyde Park at 4:30.

Little Diana Hopkins and her father were there, and this morning they left to take Diana to boarding school.

It seemed as though the telephone rang incessantly after we arrived and several people told me reproachfully that they had been trying all day to reach me and had been unsuccessful. I neglected to tell you about one or two things in the WPA projects in Scranton which I think might interest you. They have teachers there on one project who visit handicapped children in their homes. We saw one young girl who has been two years in bed with a broken back. She is up with her class and is doing really good work on her typewriter. Best of all, she looks cheerful and happy. This must be due in part to her teacher, though her mother and six brothers and sisters are a great help in keeping her enthusiastic.

The housekeepers' aid project was as good here as it is everywhere. I feel that this could be developed in a great many rural districts as well as cities. The motorcycle policeman who took care of us turned out to be a second cousin to Mr. Winston Churchill, and he evidently approves of his English cousin and the way the English have behaved in the present crisis.

We left Hyde Park again this morning fairly early for a meeting of the United States Committee for the Care of European Children. The rest of the day seems fairly crowded.

Laughton's Cable From His English Gardener Says 'Marigolds Are Fine'

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 26.—Loretta Young's beautiful Bel-Air house, on which she spent $110,000, is for sale.

Say, I get Loretta mean that about sending most of her time in New York with husband Tom Lewis. I hope this doesn't signify the abandonment of her picture career. . . . That big cartwheel hat worn by Ginger Rogers in "Lucky Partners" has found one champion anywhere in Hollywood—Mrs. Ronald Colman, who has had it copied. But she wears it over one eye and not at the back of her head. And it looks good on her. . . . Shirley Temple's father will take to the radio on a program based on "Experiences With The Stars."

When Charles Laughton received a cable from England he was afraid to open it for fear of bad news. He turned it over to wife Elsa Lancaster. The cable was from his gardener in England, saying, "The marigolds are fine."

Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier are keeping very much out of the limelight. I haven't seen them at any night clubs or restaurants since their marriage. And, by the way, but for the exception of the Brian Aherne and Ronald Colman, Mr. and Mrs. Olivier do not see much of the British colony here. Several members of the latter were inclined to be up with the couple when they first came here. And it's Vivien's and Olivier's turn to do the snubbing.

Greta Garbo, who surely moves from house to house with the frequency of a professional guest, is now staying with Mercedes d'Acosta in Brentwood. The two gals are having fun redecorating the mansion aided by House-Furnishers Tom Douglas. . . . Orson Welles and Dolores Del Rio spend their Sundays fishing. I'm scared to ask Orson whether they have caught anything yet, because he is still peeved with me for repeating in print his remarks about the histrionic ability of Katharine Hepburn. The last time I was on the boy wonder's set he gave me a look that should have destroyed me, and said mournfully, "Oh, the power of the press!" As I told him, if his picture "Citizen Kane" is good, the press will be the first to acclaim it.

George Raft's apology for walking out of Warner's "South of Suez" is taking the form of co-starring with Edward G. Robinson and Ida Lupino in "Sea Wolf" for the studio. . . . Marlene Dietrich, who like big tough leading men for her pictures, gets a good one in Broderick Crawford for "Countess From New Orleans." Now don't go and get elegant for her, Brad. . . . Zasu Pitts and Patsy Kelly are together again in some comedies for Hal Roach.

Newcomer Gene Tierney agrees with my remarks regarding the too-high pitch of her voice in "The Return of Frank James." "I didn't see the rushes of that picture, so I didn't realize what was going on—until the preview," she says. "I think you'll find my voice improved in 'Hudson's Bay' (in which Gene appears with Paul Muni). Well, as long as Gene can take criticism, she'll grow as an actress—and a person.

Good news for Virginia Gilmore, the gal who won the "Best-Legs-in-Hollywood" competition some 12 months ago. She is in line for the role of Bette Davis' daughter in "The Little Foxes." It's a good part and should give Virginia plenty of opportunity to prove herself in the dramatic field. . . . Local girl makes good: Joan Leslie, nee Joan Brodel, 16, red-headed. She can sing and dance too; gets one of the leads with Sylvia Sydney and Humphrey Bogart in "Carnival." This was the picture supposedly set for Dennis Morgan and Priscilla Lane. But the plan is now to put it into production right away, and Morgan is still tied up with his "Kitty Foyle" assignment. And Priscilla has to do "The Fabulous Fifties."

Gilbert Roland sums up his recent chore in "The Sea Hawk"—"they took close-ups of the back of my neck. But never my face." But you have such a nice back-of-the-neck, Gilbert.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Father: "Son, it's all right to call Bill a 'poor sap' because boys your age talk that way to each other but when you speak to grandfather you should say, 'I think you are mistaken,' as adults do."

Father: "We believe in being pals with the children and encourage their talking to us with the same freedom they do with other children. When Jim called you a sap, he was just being friendly."

In order to avoid developing an attitude of false respect, there is danger we may fail to teach our children that adults have a different standard of politeness than do children of their own age.

Really Good Posture Gives Illusion of Lovely Figure

By Ida Jean Kain.

If you forget everything else in this fall figure series, here's hoping that the importance of a good posture makes an indelible impression. A really good posture gives the illusion of a lovely figure, it makes you appear younger, has a beneficial effect on your health. It will do more than a raise in pay to increase your poise and self-confidence. It may even be instrumental in getting you a raise!

Posture is a product of habit and you don't usually give it a thought, but it tells the public much more about you than could ever be learned from a study of your handwriting. Slumping indicates one of three things: Carelessness, discouragement or a lack of personal pride. Sometimes it is also the sign of low vitality.

Anyone who slumps habitually finds it easier to slump than to stand erect simply because the muscles have been strengthened for the wrong posture. The corrective is to strengthen the muscles for a lovely posture. When this has been accomplished, you will find it easy to make a habit of holding yourself erect, and the practice of good posture is exercise in itself. Moreover, sitting and standing correctly allows for a more efficient functioning of the system. You tire less quickly and feel more like holding yourself erect.

The wrong type of chair is greatly to blame for slumping. Those deeply upholstered comfortable chairs are frequently too long in the seat. In order to rest your feet on the floor, you are forced to sit down in the middle of your back. If you are a career girl and work eight hours a day at your desk, make sure that the chair you use is one which properly supports the back and make a habit of sitting correctly, with the back of the hips touching the chairback and the trunk at right angles to the hips. This position is the least tiring. Besides, it is good exercise—it constantly strengthens the abdominal muscles instead of causing them to sag.

After a summer vacation you should be in physical trim—which makes this an excellent time to begin to establish the habit of correct posture. Don't think about holding your shoulders back, or your chest up, or your stomach in. There is only one posture rule worth your while, and that is up! Stand up and sit up—as tall as you possibly can without strain—so that the entire figure is given a lift. The improvement this makes in your health and looks is miraculous.

To carry through, make it a rule to walk with toes pointed straight ahead, to swing the legs from the hips, and to place the feet almost in a straight line. Walking with the legs too wide apart makes you wobble. And keep your eyes straight ahead! Looking down gives you a dowager's hump and makes you appear timid!

The actress who "makes an entrance" is merely making a good impression because she values a good posture—usually she pauses at the threshold for a quick checkup, takes a deep breath, raises her eyes, and floats into the room. She knows what every other woman could learn to advantage. A really superb posture can never look commonplace!

Miss Dorothy Sherman Weds Randolph Wolfe Commins

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Evelyn Sherman, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Sherman, and Randolph Wolfe Commins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Commins, was solemnized last evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Standard Club. Dr. David Marx performed the impressive ceremony in the presence of the immediate members of the family, and a program of music was presented by A. B. Moore.

The improvised altar in the club was banked with palms and ferns before which were placed graceful arrangements of white lilies. Groomsmen were Louis Commins, brother of the groom; Louis Sherman Jr., brother of the bride, and Malcolm Sherman, cousin of the bride.

Miss Jane Sherman, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was gowned in a floor-length model of flesh net designed with an applied silver girdle and full sleeves tied at the wrists. Her flowers were a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

The radiant bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his brother, Philip Commins, who served as best man. The bride was a picture of loveliness in her model of ivory satin with which she wore a veil of rose point lace and illusion and carried a bouquet of white orchids and valley lilies. Her only ornament was an heirloom diamond necklace belonging to the Commins family.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Sherman entertained at a dinner party for the wedding personnel and family.

Mrs. Commins, mother of the groom, was gowned in a model of turquoise blue crepe with which she wore a spray of purple orchids.

Mr. Commins and his bride left for a wedding trip to the east coast of Florida, after which they will reside in Miami, Fla. Mrs. Commins chose for traveling a soldier blue wool, with which she wore Indian earth accessories.

Among out-of-town guests attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seltzer, of St. Louis, grandparents of the bride; William I. Seltzer, of St. Louis, Mo., uncle of the bride; Harry Seltzer, of New York city, uncle of the bride; Sam Plaw, of St. Louis, Mo., uncle of the bride, and Dr. and Mrs. Sidney Ney, of Dayton, Fla., uncle and aunt of the groom.

20,000 Expected To See Georgia-Petrels at Ball Park Tonight

Wallace Butts Names 4 Sophs To Start Game

Bulldogs Heavily Favored; Kick-Off Is Slated at 8:15 O'Clock.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Wallace Butts' famous freshmen of 1939 will get their first taste of big league football tonight when the heavily favored Bulldogs meet Oglethorpe University at Ponce de Leon park.

Twenty thousand fans—one of the largest opening game crowds in years—is expected to be in the stands for the kick-off at 8:15 o'clock (central daylight saving time). Advanced ticket sales have been heavy but it's not the prospect of a close game which is drawing the cash customers. Johnny Patrick's Stormy Petrels can hardly hope to cope with the superior manpower of the Bulldogs.

In reality, it's the sensational freshmen of last year who are attracting the fans. The Bulldogs walloped three foes, scoring 166 points while limiting the opposition to only six. Quite naturally, folks want to see what they are going to do as sophomores.

SINKWICH POPULAR.
It's the sophomores in general and one, Frank Sinkwich, in particular, who are drawing people to the ticket windows. The husky Ohio lad created quite a sensation last season with his lightning-like take-offs and powerful running once he gets past the scrimmage line.

Despite the fact Georgia sophomores will make or break the Bulldogs eleven this season, only four will be in the starting lineup against Oglethorpe. Wingback Lamar Davis, End George Poschner, Guard Walter Ruark and Tackle Gene Ellenson are the only members of the freshmen crew who have been able to oust veterans from their positions.

Otherwise, the starting Bulldog lineup will embrace three seniors, Guard C. B. Guest, Captain Jimmy Skipworth, end, and Alternate Captain Bobby Nowell, and four juniors, Truck Kimsey, fullback; Wyatt Posey, tackle; Tommy Witt, center, and Heyward Allen, tailback.

Both teams are in good condition for the battle. Sinkwich, Jim Todd and big Ken Keuper, fullback, all have minor ailments but will see plenty of action for the Georgia cause.

Todd would probably get the starting call over Allen if he was in tip-top condition.

MORE RESERVES.
Oglethorpe's first line will outweigh the Bulldogs considerably but more and better reserves are expected to turn the tide of battle in favor of the Athenians.

Georgia's sophomore backs have come through in grand style but the line men have been disappointing thus far. Sinkwich, Davis, Keuper and Todd have lived up to expectations but will be called on to perform behind a light and questionable line.

Posner, Witt and Skipworth are the sparkplugs of the forewell. These three veterans will have to serve as a steadying influence to the green youngsters around them.

Poschner has been the most pleasant surprise of the Bulldog workouts this season. Brought to Athens upon the recommendation of Sinkwich, the Youngstown (Ohio) boy battled his way to the top spot at left end by sheer hard work, brilliant pass receiving and downfield blocking.

WHIFFED 1,000.
NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Since coming into the American league, Bobby Feller has whiffed 1,000 batters, but Birdie Tebbets of the Tigers isn't one of 'em.

THE PASSER—AND RECEIVERS—These three boys are likely to have a lot to do with any aerial game Georgia uses against Oglethorpe tonight at Ponce de Leon Park. Central figure is Big Truck Kimsey, fullback, who excels in line-busting and passing. On the left is the first picture of George Poschner, a boy who played with Frankie Sinkwich in high school and now has worked himself into the starting position at left end.

On the right is Captain Jimmy Skipworth, hard-working Columbus boy and a great defensive player. Kickoff time is 8:15. Twenty thousand are expected for the battle.

Ryan Improved After Operation

By The Associated Press.
Connie Ryan, crack young infielder for the Savannah Indians, of the South Atlantic League, was recovering at an Atlanta (Ponce de Leon infirmary) hospital today after a tonsillectomy.

Ryan, recent recipient of a watch as the pennant-winning Savannah team's most valuable player, had his tonsils removed in childhood, but they grew again and became troublesome this season.

BY JACK TROY

Debut It is Atlanta's good fortune tonight to be playing host to one of the most publicized University of Georgia football teams in a decade.

The first varsity game the highly touted sophomores play will be at Ponce de Leon park against Oglethorpe. If this team should turn out to be a world-beater, you could tell the kids you saw it get its start against John Patrick's Stormy Petrels.

Oglethorpe is taking the game seriously. The Petrels will start a line bigger than any Georgia can put on the field. It takes a rugged line for the successful execution of the intricate military shift and the tricky plays which follow. Patrick's got just such a line.

Maybe the Petrels haven't heard Georgia's sophomores are supposed to be great. At any rate, they were "boning" on plays in skull practice at a late hour last night. They were not acting like condemned men.

If the Red and Black begins rolling tonight, it may be difficult for Coach Wallace Butts to hold the score down. Sophomores like to run.

On the other hand, if the Petrels don't wear out, they may make a real game of it. It should be something to see for a half at least.

Many Atlanta fans who might not have a chance to get to Athens during the season will have a chance tonight to see the vaunted Bulldogs.

You've read, no doubt, of the Sinkwiches, Todds, Davises, Blantons, Kimseys, Keupers, Allens, et al. Now's your chance to see the young gentlemen in person—positively not a moving picture.

Advance sales indicate a capacity crowd for the game in the home of the Crackers.

Football Weekend A year ago, as the season opened, this columnist took in three fine football games in 24 hours. We reported Auburn-Birmingham-Southern at Montgomery, Tulane-Clemson at New Orleans and L. S. U.-Ole Miss at Baton Rouge.

We'll follow the same circuit again. Auburn tonight is opening against Howard at Montgomery. Saturday afternoon, Tulane and a titanic Boston College squad hook up at New Orleans, and Saturday night Ole Miss and L. S. U. meet at Baton Rouge.

Either Georgia or Tech, or both, plays most of the schools involved. Auburn is on the schedule of both. Tech plays Howard next week. And Georgia plays both Ole Miss and Tulane.

Coach Frank Leahy paused here with his highly rated Boston College eleven yesterday. B. C. lost to Clemson by a field goal in the Cotton Bowl last year.

Sugar Bowl significance is attached to the Tulane-Boston College game Saturday. If B. C. should beat Tulane, chances are Coach Leahy's club would be given top consideration for the Sugar Bowl, provided the remainder of the schedule was consistent.

Two years in a row now, Ole Miss has knocked off L. S. U. Harry Mehre began his career at the Oxford school by beating the Bayou Bengals. He repeated last year. And once again Ole Miss is the favorite.

Ordinarily Auburn opens with Birmingham-Southern, but since Southern has given up the ghost, Howard has been substituted. It's about six of one and half a dozen of the other. It is always an interesting first game.

Covering three games in 24 hours doesn't necessarily involve risking one's neck. Train connections, to the contrary, make it very simple.

Whatta Life! Experts argue whether Duke or Notre Dame will be the national champion in football. It's interesting for followers of Georgia Tech to contemplate.

The Jackets play 'em both. One noted football writer says of Notre Dame—"The Irish may well have the strongest team in the midwest this season. Two of the best tackles in the country will be found in the Notre Dame line, flanking veteran guards and an experienced center. Elmer

Butts To Start Lamar Davis For Bulldogs

Soph Wingback Gets Nod Over Christian in Game Tonight.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 26.—Coach Wallace Butts sent his Georgia Bulldogs through a final, brisk 30-minute drill this afternoon in 42-degree weather and announced afterwards he would start the speedy Lamar Davis at wingback in place of Charley Christian. Davis, like Christian, is a sophomore. He hasn't participated in a practice, except the extreme light ones, in more than two weeks, but his ankle injury is completely healed now and he's ready to go.

BEST ON SQUAD.
Far and away the best wingback on the squad, Davis' entry in the lineup will speed up Georgia's offensive and tighten the defense, especially against a forward passing attack.

He is the fastest man on the squad and a very fine pass receiver. Coach Butts has often termed him the best defensive back among a large array of sophomores who will be depended on this season.

The Bulldogs took a few calisthenics, practiced briefly on kicking off, and went in to the showers at 4 o'clock, an all-time record for briefness on the field since Coach Butts took over the reins two years ago.

IN SHAPE.
"They're in shape," was the terse statement the Bulldog mentor made to reporters after the workout. "I hope they don't continue the exhibitions they gave in the last two scrimmages we have had."

Coach Butts said "Red" Keuper, the sophomore fullback, who has had a Charley horse for the last 10 days, may be called on for some service tomorrow night, but refused to say definitely if the big redhead would get in the game.

"We'll wait and see how he feels Friday," he said.

AT DISADVANTAGE.
Although heavily favored, Georgia will enter the Oglethorpe game with the disadvantage of not having worked under lights this season. Bulldog fans remember the first night game of the 1939 season, when Furman won impressively, 20 to 0.

Rain which fell off and on all during the morning prevented workers from completing the minor adjustments to the lights, and they weren't ready to be turned on, as officials had hoped, for a drill tonight.

Troy To Cover 3 Tilts in 24 Hours

Your Saturday and Sunday Constitutions will give you complete football coverage on the first big weekend of the new gridiron season.

Sports Editor Jack Troy will again perform the herculean task of covering three games within 24 hours. Friday night he will be at Montgomery, Ala., for the Auburn-Howard struggle.

He will catch a train for New Orleans, where he will report the Tulane-Boston College contest Saturday afternoon. Then he will rush to Baton Rouge for the L. S. U.-Mississippi U. battle that night.

Assistant Sports Editor Johnny Bradberry will report the details of the Georgia-Oglethorpe game at Ponce de Leon park tonight.

CHANGE WORKS.

ST. LOUIS.—The assignment of Halfback Bob Osterhold to an end post has had pleasing results. Osterhold snagged every ball in sight during long St. Louis University aerial maneuvers . . . and has given the team renewed hopes it may spring a surprise on the University of Missouri Saturday.

COACH RESIGNS.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Sept. 26.—(P) Coach B. W. Rushton, of Waycross High school, has resigned to become a full-time military instructor at Wofford College. He is succeeded by his assistant, Marshall O'Rear.

Florida Begins No-Pass Policy In Grid Opener

Only 13 Persons To Get Free Ducats for Marathon Tilt.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Sept. 26. (P)—Saturday night's football game between Florida and Mississippi State not only will be the first performance of a Tom Lieb-coached team at the 'Gator institution, but it also will be the inaugural of a new "no-pass" ticket policy adopted by the State Board of Control.

Virtually eliminated are the complimentary tickets, which last year had a value, university officials said, equal to 27 per cent of the Florida team's share of the total 1939 football income.

Only 13 individuals—the governor, his cabinet and Florida's congressional delegation—will receive complimentary pastebords. Two tickets will be made available to them for each game. In addition, two tickets for the homecoming game only will be available to members of the Florida legislature. These tickets will be for personal use and on application.

The new policy, university officials explained, does not affect players, coaches, officials and necessary game operators, including members of the working press.

Miami Sport Editor

Has System Figured

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 26. — (P) Miami has three high schools, and a good chance of winding up the football season with a three-way tie for the city championship. But Sports Editor Everett Clay of the Miami Herald has it all figured out. He proposes a three-way round-robin, each team alternating by quarters against its opposition. The team with the most points at the end of six quarters would win.

Boys' High, Marist, G.M.A. Clash In Out-of-Town Games Tonight

Typists To Play At West Fulton This Afternoon

Baylor Are Hosts to Atlanta Elevens.

Shorty Doyal was still worrying about Blackout, his black cat luck charm, as he led his Purples into Columbus for a joust with the impotent Imps of Columbus High tonight.

The cat disappeared after the Marist game last week and Doyal's efforts to locate the feline "jinx-chaser" have gone for naught. Although he looked upon this as a bad omen, observers tell him there is little to worry about.

Tech High last week had no trouble stopping the Devils, 26-0, and with the Purples rolling toward another G. I. A. A. championship they will be heavily favored to win their third league title in a row. Columbus is a fighting team, but is not regarded strong enough to halt the versatile Atlantans.

The Decatur High-Russell High game scheduled for last night at Decatur, and the North Fulton-Fulton High tilt slated for the Bulldog field in Buckhead were called off because of rains which made playing impractical. The latter game will be played tonight on the North Fulton field at 8 o'clock. The Decatur-Russell melee is booked for the Decatur field next Monday night.

Marist will seek to bounce back onto the winning trail at the expense of Savannah. The Cadets will take on the Jackets on the coast in their third game of the year. Savannah's potentialities are unknown. However, they opened with a 19-0 victory over Brunswick last week and this may be a warning to Louie Van Houten's boys. The Cadets will have a new face in the backfield, J. R. Dickerson moved from guard. Alvin Hutchinson will be at guard with Fitz Fitzgerald.

G. M. A. also will be on the road. Bud Harris' outfit, which has retested since beating West Point two weeks ago, meets Baylor tonight at Chattanooga. This game will throw a light on the strength of the College Park contingent, which still is untied.

In an afternoon game Commercial will go to West Fulton, and should win their first game. The kickoff will be at 3 o'clock.

Across town, Richardson and Marietta will hook up at 8 o'clock tonight on the Russell field at East Point. Hapeville will play a night game in Canton.

Baer Kayoes Pat Comiskey In First Round

Dempsey Stops Brawl
After Two Minutes and 39 Seconds.

ROOSEVELT STADIUM, JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Max Baer, 223 1-2 pound former heavyweight champion, stopped Pat Comiskey, 207 1-2, hitherto highly regarded heavyweight prospect, in two minutes, 39 seconds of the first round of their scheduled 15-round fight before a chilled crowd of about 10,000 fans tonight.

After a few brief exchanges, with neither having the upper hand, Max stepped in and nailed Pat with a short right. The Irishman went down for an eight-count. As he got up, Max rushed in and belted him at will. As Pat huddled against the ropes, staying out of danger, Referee Jack Dempsey rushed in and pulled Baer off.

Dempsey waved them into action, and again Max rushed in as Pat backed away, leaning half way through the ropes as he tried to protect himself. With Comiskey making no return shots at Baer and Maxie just flailing away, Dempsey stopped the fight.

Dick Parker, of Bridgeport, Conn., pops up with this one: "It is only fair the west coast should have the Farr-Louis fight. . . . After all, New York has had its share of nickel series, so why shouldn't Los Angeles have a five-cent prize fight?"

TO TEST VOLTS—The husky above is Fullback Jolly Dizadyk, 180-pound, of Mercer, who will see a lot of service tomorrow when the Bears journey to Knoxville for the questionable pleasure of playing the again potent University of Tennessee eleven in their season opener.

Lion Leo Lazar, Mercer's Best, Out of Vol Tilt This Weekend

Coach Russell Considers Big Triple-Threat Finest Prospect He Ever Had; Will Play Against Alabama October 5.

Leo Lazar, Mercer's tailback who is being held out of the University of Tennessee contest this week because of a strained nerve in his right leg, will be ready for the Alabama contest in Tuscaloosa on October 5.

The Mercer trainer ordered Lazar to stay clear of the practice field until Monday but stated that Lazar would be ready to start against Coach Frank Thomas' Crimson Tide in the Bears' second game against Southeastern Conference teams.

The "Lion," as he is called by his team-mates, is considered by Coach Lake Russell the finest candidate for his backfield he has had since he came to Mercer years ago.

FINE FORM. In spring practice and in fall work, the big triple-threat tailback appeared to be in fine form until he was injured 10 days ago.

With Lazar back in the line-up and barring further injuries, Russell will have three good tailbacks to shoot at the big boys from Tuscaloosa. Tony "Wild Man" Page will start the contest against Tennessee. Page is a fine runner but does little passing and no punting.

Rodney Blaylock is the passing ace of the Bear club. He is from Rock Springs, Ga., and is playing his first year on the Mercer eleven. From the tail-back posts Blaylock does some punting and a good bit of ball carrying.

Four weeks of hard work added to a long and intensive spring practice has brought the Mercer team to the eve of their back-breaking schedule in fine physical condition, with the exception of Leo Lazar.

There are no fat boys on the Georgia club, but rather a large bunch of small ones. All of the candidates reported back this fall in good condition and the four past weeks of work have adjusted them to their defensive and offensive assignments.

FAST BUT SMALL. The backfield posts are manned with fast, small ball carriers and small blockers, the two best blockers only weigh 160 and 170 pounds respectively. The weakest spots on the club are the flanks and guard positions. Most of the candidates are a little light for tough competition found in the Southeastern conference. This fact is considered especially important in the Alabama contest for Coach Thomas boys are usually both large and good.

A valuable aid to Coach Russell in preparing for the Alabama contest will be Assistant Coach Joe Kilgore, a former Crimson Tide player who worked in Bama's backfield for three seasons.

Billy Carden Sprains Ankle In Tech Drill

Joe Bartlett Rehurls Knee; Jordan's Charging Pleases Coaches.

One gets awfully tired writing about football injuries, but when they happen there is nothing he can do but report them.

Georgia Tech's first scrimmage of the week yesterday produced two more, which, added to the previous list, leaves hardly enough men for a man-sized scrimmage.

Tackle Bill Carden, husky Chattanooga boy, sprained an ankle during the rough work, and will be lost for a week. The other injury was also an ankle sprain. Freshman Davey Eldredge was hurt when he crashed through on a line play.

BARTLETT TOO. But that wasn't all. Joe Bartlett, who has just now recovered enough from a knee injury to run signals, cut back on a play during dummy scrimmage and hurt his knee all over again. Trainer Claude Bond said he would be out for a month or more.

The situation is getting desperate, men. These players are unable to scrimmage: Carden, Robert Ison, George Webb, Paul Page, Harry Arthur, Charlie Sanders, Bartlett and Bobby Pair. These are hampered by minor ailments: Jim Wright, Elmer Dyke, Paul Sprayberry and Jack Nettles.

The only cheering note of the scrimmage was the play of Wex Jordan at guard. They call him "Hard-Rock" because of his terrific charging. And he was at his best yesterday. Time and again, the 175-pound Dublin boy crashed through the red line to smear backs for losses.

IMPROVED PLAY.

His improved play at a position new to him puts him in line for a lot of service this season. And he is making Alternate Captain Butch Aderhold hustle to keep his first-string job. Jordan was an end on the Bee team last season.

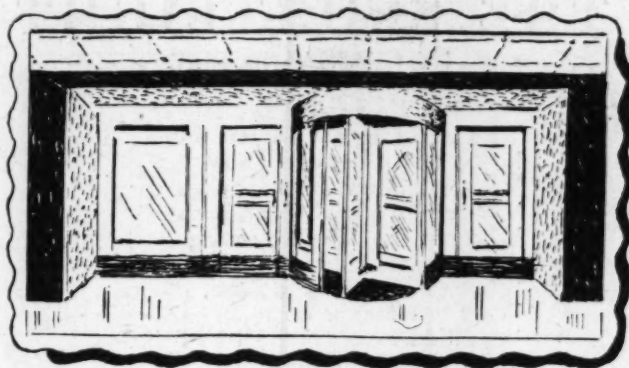

Jack Bradford made bull-like rushes into the varsity line all afternoon and gained considerable ground. If he keeps up the good work he is likely to win a varsity post.

The Techs will work lightly today with a game-like scrimmage coming Saturday.

REST ASSURED.

ITHACA, N. Y.—Even a hectic fraternity "rushing" season can't keep the Cornell football team from getting plenty of rest. The gridders can sleep in the new emergency dormitories atop Schoellkopf field house. The emergency dorms also will be used to house the team on nights before games, when sleep is particularly important.

Huge Boston College Gridders Surprise Fans in Workout Here

Tackle Weighs Mere 253 Lbs.; Sub Center, 235

With Sugar Bowl Bid Involved, B. C. Given Chance for Upset.

By JACK TROY.

A surprisingly large (physically) Boston College football squad worked out here yesterday and left the impression that Tulane may be in for one of the year's worst afternoons come Saturday in the Sugar Bowl stadium at New Orleans.

Some of B. C.'s larger boys may give the Greenies a headache if the weather is cool. A lot depends on the weather. Excessive heat may ground the Eagles.

Nobody manhandles such specimens as John Youckoes and Chet Gladchuk in any kind of weather, however. John is regular right tackle. He stands six feet four and weighs a mere 253 pounds. Chet, who will sub at center, is six feet five and weighs 235. Walt Dubzinski, who'll start, is a mere 215-pounder.

The 200-pounders on the Boston College line look like Singer midgets. That gives you an idea. Tulane may be outroughed.

END IS STAR.

Gene Goodreault plays right end for the Eagles. He is the end prominently mentioned, with Tech's Bob Ison, for future All-America honors. Goodreault is a great pass receiver and a bulwark on defense.

One of the amazing backs on the Boston squad is Charles O'Rourke, a mere broth of a lad. Charlie is almost six feet, but he weighs scarcely more than 150 pounds. Frail? Well, Charlie's never lost a minute from football since he started in high school. He never has been hurt.

O'Rourke has the reputation of being one of the nation's finer passers. He throws a pass as one would a baseball. Then, too, he runs and kicks. And he does both well.

Boston College, rated in advance as one of the top eastern teams, goes in for a bit of razzle-dazzle. The Eagles employ fake kicks, laterals, etc.

MONTGOMERY ALONG.

One of the team's better backs—Lou Montgomery—has made the trip south, but won't play Saturday. Lou is a Negro flash and will spend the weekend with Ralph Metcalfe, former Marquette great, now coaching at Xavier in New Orleans.

For more than an hour more than 40 Eagles ran through formations on Grant field and looked the part of a great football outfit. Tulane will have to be on the alert, spectators gathered, to avoid an upset in the season opener.

How Florida ever managed to upset Boston College last year will always remain a deep mystery. Clemson, with Banks McFadden at his best, beat the Eagles by three points in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas.

Speaking of tongue twisters and potential back breakers, here's how Boston will line up against Tulane Saturday (with a possible Sugar Bowl bid hanging in the balance):

LOOK OUT, TULANE!—A behemoth Boston College football squad, headed by Coach Frank Leahy, worked out on Grant field yesterday en route to New Orleans for a major engagement with Tulane on Saturday. Along were such boys as John Youckoes, six-foot-four, 253-pound tackle, and Chet Gladchuk, six-foot-five, 234-pound center. Tulane won't outweigh the Eagles. The top photo shows the first-string line. It is, left to right, Gene Goodreault, right end; John Youckoes, right tackle; George Kerr, right guard; Chet Gladchuk, center; Joe Azbilski, left guard; Joe Manzo, left tackle, and Alex Lukechick, left end. Lower photo shows starting backfield with Coach Frank Leahy. The group, left to right, Frank Mazzinichi, halfback; Henry Toczylowski, quarter; Coach Leahy, Mike Holovak, fullback, and Charlie O'Rourke, halfback.

Negro Grid Teams In Opener Today

Colored football fans are anxiously awaiting the kick-off for the first game of the season which will get under way at 2:45 this afternoon on the Charles L. Harper field, when the Washington High Bulldogs (Atlanta) play the Booker T. Washington High school eleven from East Chattanooga, Tennessee.

The local prep aggregation, paced by David T. Harper, sensational quarterback, will display a deceptive offensive attack, but the line will be decidedly inexperienced. Coach Baker will start 10 of the veterans from last season, but will use several reserves during the game.

The Tennesseans are more experienced and have already played one game this year. This team will be led by Captain Chiden and Co-Captain Smith.

Cotthran Beats Carolina Team Young Tainter; In 4-Ball Meet Here Is Chosen

DEL MONTE, Cal., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Quarter-final matches of the 44th annual national amateur golf championship for women today saw defending Titleholder Betty Jameson move a lap closer to her goal but the real fireworks of the day were touched off by a California contender, Mrs. James Ferrie, of Pasadena.

Miss Jameson advanced to the semi-finals with a 6-and-5 victory over Mrs. Gregg Lufur, of Los Angeles. Mrs. Ferrie beat Mary Morse, of Pebble Beach, 5 and 3.

Other matches saw Jane Cotthran, of Greenville, S. C., eliminate Georgia Tainter, 17-year-old Fargo, N. D., girl, 2 and 1, while Clara Callender, of Long Beach, a former California champion, was side-tracking Mrs. Willard Shepherd, of Beverly Hills, Cal., 4 and 3.

The 18-hole semi-finals tomorrow pail off Miss Cotthran and Mrs. Ferrie and Miss Callender with Miss Jameson.

Miss Cotthran had the hardest row to hoe. She and her youthful rival were all square at the ninth and Miss Tainter won the 10th for a one-up lead. Miss Cotthran's experience told in the end. She evened the count on the 14th, went one up on the next hole, and clinched the contest on the 17th. The South Carolina girl, however, turned in a ragged game. She wandered around the difficult course to finish eight strokes over par. Miss Tainter contributed to her own defeat with an 11-over-par card.

Harold Hall, Preston Hennies, Marshall Balentine and George McAllister will represent South Carolina in the southern states four-ball golf tournament Monday through Friday at East Lake, it was announced yesterday. The alternate is Frank Ford.

Captain Ken Rogers, Army aviator and a member of the Alabama team, will not be able to play because of the press of business. Gordon Smith Jr., of Mobile, president of the Alabama State Golf Association, will take his place. He is a former Alabama champion, and, with Sam Perry, two-time southern amateur champ, was runner-up to Charlie Yates and Dr. Julius Hughes the second time the tournament was held.

Besides Perry and Smith on the revised Alabama lineup are Sunday Horner and Weldon Doe, both of Montgomery.

ONE YEAR AGO.

Today a year ago—Reds split doubleheader with Cards before 34,194 and moved to within one game of National league pennant.

Bob Feller Will Oppose Rowe As Pennant Series Starts Today

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The heavily-favored Detroit Tigers steamed into town tonight for the American League's own "World Series," a three-game slate with the second-place Indians.

Leading by two games and thus needing only one victory to beat out the Tribe, the pennant-hungry Bengals prepared to shoot the works with well-rested Schoolboy Rowe taking the mound in tomorrow's opener. Manager Oscar Vitt, of the turbulent Indians, will seek to trump Detroit's ace with Schoolboy Bob Feller.

Manager Del Baker's comment on the series was brief:

"It'll be Rowe tomorrow, and that's as far as I care to look."

Bubbled Vitt: "And after we dispose of Rowe, which of the Tiger pitchers has a chance to stop us? This race isn't over yet by any means."

Rowe, whose comeback arm has spaced his pitching assignments, beat the Indians Saturday in his last appearance. Feller stopped the Tigers Sunday. Rowe's record is 16-3, with three victories over the Indians. Feller's is 27-10, with three triumphs over the Tigers.

Cleveland fans, subjected to 50-degree temperatures for two St. Louis games this week, tossed away their overcoats as the Weather Bureau predicted clear and warmer for the series. Frank Kohlbecker, Indians' business manager, said a break in the weather would probably bring the three-day attendance to 100,000. He forecast 50,000, including La-

Shanghai Lil Beats Roosevelt, Willkie

LEPANTO, Ark., Sept. 26.—(AP)—"Shanghai Lil," as per a terrapin as has been seen here in a decade, stepped out in high style today to win the 10th annual American Legion Terrapin Derby.

Down in the second heat of the day, Lil trotted the arena distance in the practically breath-taking time of nine minutes, showing her heels to such high-toned entries as "Queen Mary" and "Judge Camille Kelley." The winner was entered by John S. Mosby, Lepanto attorney.

Politics had nothing to do with the outcome—"Roosevelt" and "Willkie" never moved from the starting line.

Tulane To Use 9 Sophomores Against Boston

Cifers Called Greatest Triple-Threat Prospect Since Bobby Dodd.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The Tulane lineup which takes the field against Boston College Saturday is going to be a far cry from the undefeated team of last year in point of experienced reserves.

Likely to see action on either of the first two units will be nine untried sophomores, filling in at vital line and backfield spots. Particularly at guard is the problem acute, where three unseasoned performers will see action if Tommy O'Boyle is kept out, as appears probable at the moment.

CIFERS ANOTHER DODD? KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Bobby Cifers, the Kingsport, Tenn. lad who ran wild on high school gridirons, hasn't been tamed by the big, bad Volunteers of Tennessee.

The handsome, dark-haired youth is serving his freshman apprenticeship at the hill and he looks bigger, better and tougher than he did in 1938, when he set a national scoring record with 235 points in 12 games. Last year he scored 145 points to lead his team through an undefeated season.

The railbirds already have tabbed him as the greatest triple-threat backfield prospect since the days of Bobby Dodd, another Kingsport product.

READY FOR COMEBACK.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Louisiana State University's meeting with Ole Miss Saturday may mark a curious loop in the comeback trail of Earl Graham, plucky L. S. U. wingback from Indiana, who has been out of football since he injured both shoulders in 1938 when the two teams met. Charlie Anastasio is a highly doubtful starter because of a knee injury in practice yesterday, and Coach Bernie Moore is banking in the emergency on Graham, who for two years has had to content himself with working out in shorts and playing varsity basketball and baseball.

Kitchen Units Need Replacing Every 10 Years

Pieces May Not Be Worn Out But They Are Outmoded.

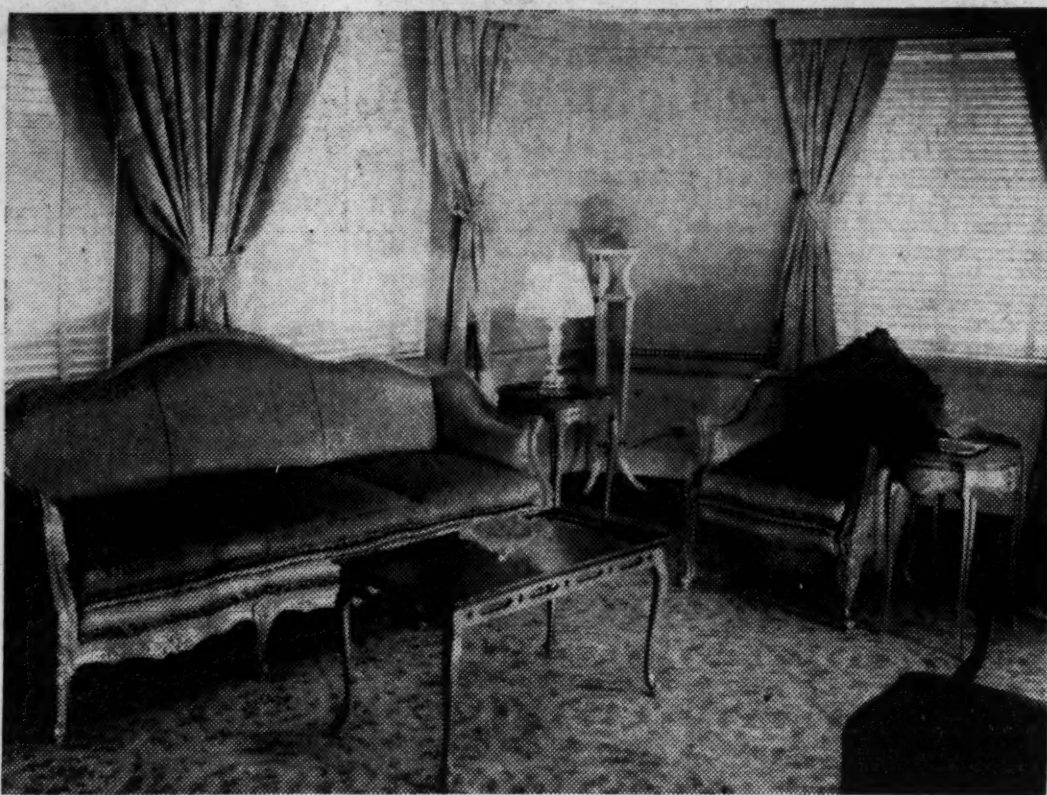

Results of a recent survey emphasize the thrift and economy of replacing kitchen and laundry equipment—refrigerator, range and washing machine—about every 10 years.

That does not mean that replacements are necessary because the equipment is mechanically outworn. On the contrary most kitchen equipment is made with a tested life span of from 20 to 30 years. Replacement is desirable, and economical as well, because models of 10 years ago are decidedly outmoded. They are far less convenient to use and, especially, to keep clean and sanitary.

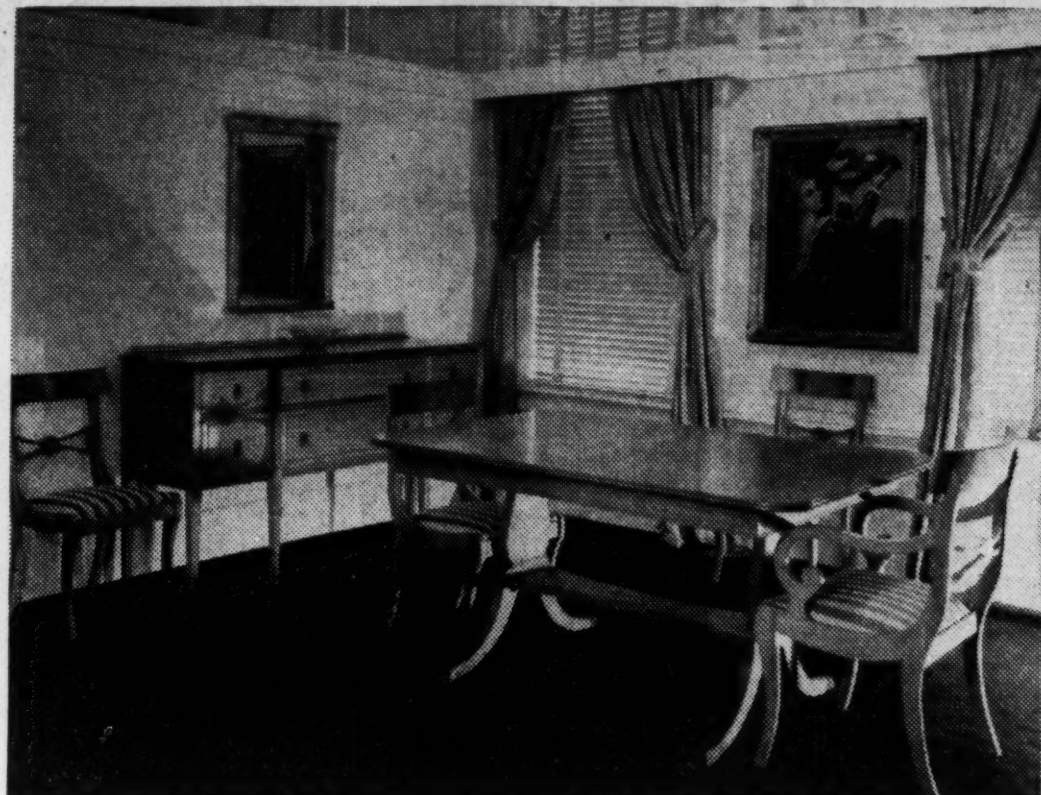

Check for yourself the convenience of a 10-year-old range or refrigerator with today's models. Or place an old wooden and hand-operated washer of an earlier day, or even the copper tubbed models of quite recent years, beside the sleek white current offerings.

Replacement can be justified for appliances that have served a 10-year period. Figures show that a good, moderately priced appliance will justify the initial investment in about eight years, and it will show an appreciable saving at the end of 10 years. That is, the additional economy of the appliance repays the original investment with something over besides in 10 years. After that period, therefore, the purchase of new and improved equipment is justified from the budget viewpoint.

This is true of ranges, refrigerators and washers. The old dirt

LOUIS XV LIVING ROOM—Here's a boudoir and parlor type of furniture, elegant, rich and essentially a gorgeous "triumph of curves." A style representing the court life of an age noted for its luxury, but now reproduced in America with beauty of detail and luxurious fabrics unsurpassed in the originals.

REGENCY DINING ROOM—Growing in popularity along with the modern trend toward simplicity of lines are the pieces shown here. Their beauty is greatly enhanced by the wheat-colored finish which brings out richly figured mahogany grainings. They may correctly be associated with 18th century pieces of similar finish.

New Juvenile Furniture Has Greater Appeal

Furnishings for Child's Room Now Better Suited for Baby.

Possibly in no other department of home furnishings has such great progress been made in recent years as in the nursery or child's room. Perhaps the change is so striking because the new juvenile furniture and accessories are clever and eye-catching, but the improvement is not in appearance only. Manufacturers have taken into account the definite needs of a room occupied by a growing child.

One juvenile piece that also has caught the fancy of adults is a utility chest that combines open shelves with drawer and door compartments. It provides a place for the child's personal needs, including toys, yet later on may be converted into a combination desk and bookcase.

Even lamps have been designed to suit the fancy of the youngster; in some lines they match the nursery or animal decorations on the furniture.

Choice of wood, finish and style of furniture depends upon individual preference, of course, as does strictly "nursery" furniture as against more adult-appearing pieces to harmonize with the family furnishings.

The child who has his own room learns not only how to take care of it, but gains an appreciation of the use and beauty of good furniture.

BLEND YOURSELF.

It's now possible to "key" yourself to the harmony of your bedroom scheme by wearing a chenille robe to match the bedspread.

Severest Tests Prove Finish Is Able To Take It

100 Proof Whisky, Boiling Water, Freezing Fall To Mar Surface.

A new furniture finish recently underwent severe tests to prove that it has the resistant qualities that consumers have long been seeking in furniture they buy.

A series of walnut, maple and mahogany panels were subjected to 100-proof liquor, which was liberally poured on the finished surface and allowed to stand overnight; for a period of 20 minutes boiling water from an electrically heated kettle poured over the panels continuously; a hot china plate, after being placed in boiling water for two hours, was filled with freshly cooked steaming vegetables and allowed to stand on the finished surface until it cooled.

Another panel was placed in an oven heated to 110 degrees temperature, then immediately removed to a refrigerator, where it was subjected to a temperature of five degrees below zero. This was repeated six times.

In each instance, the panels were undamaged, according to those who watched the tests.

NO SHARP EDGES.

No sharp edges are a feature of newer card tables.

Don't Be Alarmed When Rug 'Sheds'

In the making of wool pile rugs and carpets, bits of loose wool become lodged in the surface pile. As they work their way to the surface, they cause "shedding" or fluffing, as the carpet men call it. As soon as this loose wool is entirely removed in cleaning or in use, fluffing will cease. It does not affect the wearing qualities of the fabric in any way.

Shoes Borrow Furniture Lines For Fall Styles

New Numbers With Chippendale Heels May Have Stain Finish.

When somebody points out a Chippendale heel to you this fall, don't get the idea that furniture is "down at the heel."

It's just an inspiration that shoe men have taken from the furniture industry, borrowing period furniture lines for new heel designs on women's shoes.

Some heels will be handcarved, others machine turned; inlay work, carving, fluting, encrusting and the use of a variety of adornment techniques common to furniture will be seen on lots of heels that are up-to-date.

Newer Chairs Are Rocking Into Popularity

Rocker Revival Is Feature of Season; Models 'Have Something.'

Chairs are rocking right into important positions today with the revival of the old-fashioned rocker, brought up to date in construction and styling. This year definitely is witnessing a platform rocker revival. After years of gradual acceptance, the public is taking the rocker back and considering it an important part of household furnishings.

Usually the head of the house thinks they are just right for the comfort a man wants in furniture. He remembers the decrepit rocker he used to have, that mother finally made him throw out, but even he is ready to admit that today's streamlined models far surpass his favorite of yesteryear. The thick cushions and shaped backs allow him to smoke his pipe and read his paper in luxurious comfort. The springs permit the chair to be tilted back to a convenient reading and lounging angle.

The special construction of some of the chairs takes care of any weight, whether a slim miss of 110 pounds or her bulky uncle who tips the scales at 250.

The home-maker herself doesn't need much selling to be convinced that rockers "have something" these days. The action is soothing and restful to tired, modern nerves, but also keeps the chair from traveling half way across the room when in action. She enjoys reading or sewing in the modern rocking chair that occupies no more space than an ordinary stationary chair.

In both upholstery fabrics and wood trims, rockers have kept pace with other pieces in the living room and bedroom, and they won't stand out like a sore thumb in a room which reflects a definite period composition.

Chest Is Among Earliest Of the Furniture Pieces

It has been said that the first true piece of furniture was the chest. Fashioned of wood and covered with the skins of animals, primitive man made it to move his belongings to a more fertile location, probably carrying it on his back. When the new home was found, the chest was set in the center of the new abode against one wall, where it served as safe, table or chair.

A Crown Within Reach

Crown roasts are as festive looking a main dish as ever you'll see; the very name suggests something splendid in the way of occasion and feasting. Nevertheless a crown roast is not difficult to prepare, cook or serve.

A crown roast of lamb or pork is delicious eating indeed, the roast being formed from the rib section. Each serving is, in fact, a loin pork or rib chop.

The retailer will shape the crown roast for you, tying it so it will hold shape while cooking. Usually the meat is removed from the tips of the ribs. This meat may be ground, seasoned and cooked in the center of the roast, or it may be reserved for another meal. A bread dressing may fill the center. If no filling is used, the roast may be cooked upside down; in other words, with the rib ends down, and the dripping from the roast will prevent the charring of these ends. This roast of lamb or pork should be placed in a moderately slow oven 300 to 325 degrees, in an open roasting pan, and 30 to 35 minutes should be allowed for cooking. Add no water or other liquid to the roast.

When roast is done, place right side up on a hot platter and fill center with buttered peas, beans or cauliflower head. Around the roast place pineapple slices which have been simmered in sweetened pineapple juice until transparent. A red cherry in each pineapple center makes a colorful picture.

To cook whole cauliflower head, remove outer leaves and trim head, leaving enough of the heavy stalk to hold it together. Drop head in rapidly boiling salted water and cook about 15 minutes. Remove immediately from water and drain. Serve at once with melted butter or other sauce.

The festive appearance of a crown roast brings forth exclamations from family and friends. Ribs' ends may have frills upon them for dainty handling, and center may be filled with a whole cauliflower head.

Canning Season Lingers

While the late fruits and vegetables are still available you should check up on the empty fruit jars and glasses and make haste to fill them with goodies to brighten winter meals. Here are some suggestions:

- Muscadine Preserves
Weigh grapes. Wash and slit to remove seeds. To every 2 pounds of grapes add 1 cup water and cook fruit, covered, until skins are tender. Add 1-2 pounds sugar to each 2 pounds of fresh fruit used and cook 5 minutes. Skim fruit from syrup (cooking skins too long will make them tough), boil syrup down to desired thickness and pour over the fruit. Let stand overnight to plump. In the morning simply bring to a boil, put into sterilized jars and seal.
- Ginger Pears
Five pounds hard pears, five pounds sugar, one-third cup pre-

Apple Sauce Cake

Experienced cooks know that when apples, prunes or other such fruits are put into cakes, the cakes keep moist longer. Such cakes offer opportunity for providing nutritious desserts for children, and are excellent to have on hand for inclusion in lunch boxes. Make the cake shown here as follows:

- 2 cups granulated sugar
- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 4 cups cake flour
- 2 cups smooth apple sauce (unsweetened)
- 1 cup raisins
- 1 cup currants
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 2 teaspoons soda
- 1-2 teaspoon salt

Cream butter and sugar; add apple sauce. Mix raisins and currants with half the flour. Sift remaining flour with other dry ingredients and add to liquid mixture. Lastly add the floured fruit. Mix well. Pour into well-greased tube pan and bake 2 1-2 hours at 325 degrees. When cool, serve with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream.

Apple trees in north Georgia are yielding, once again, their rosy-cheeked fruit. Miss Harriett Wilkie, left, and Miss Jane Suddeth are sampling some of the first to arrive on the Atlanta market.

Vegetable Sauces

To get vegetables eaten for their own goodness will be easy if you will cook them quickly in no more water than is absolutely necessary and serve them in delicious sauces. Hollandaise, cream or butter sauces enrich the garden-fresh flavor of green vegetables. Try these sauces on vegetables:

- Vinegar Butter Sauce.
1-2 cup butter.
4 teaspoons flour.
4 tablespoons water.
4 tablespoons vinegar.
Melt butter in top of double boiler; blend flour to a smooth paste with the water and vinegar, and add gradually to the melted butter, stirring constantly. Cook in double boiler until sauce is smooth and thickened.
- Lemon Butter Sauce.
1-2 cup butter.
Juice of 1 lemon.
3 tablespoons chopped parsley.
Melt butter, add lemon juice and blend thoroughly. Add parsley and serve immediately on hot vegetables.
- Bechamel Sauce (Pronounced Bayshammel).
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
3-4 cup chicken stock
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon paprika
3-4 cup thin cream or top milk
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Cream butter and flour, but do not brown. Add stock, stirring constantly and bring to a boil. Add cream or milk and seasonings and again bring to boiling point. Cook over hot water for five minutes and just before serving stir in the lemon juice.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION
Edited by SALLY SAVER

ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 27, 1940.

What Do You Say To an Apple a Day?

Fruits of all kind have an important place in the diet. During the summer months it is a simple thing to avoid monotony and serve fruits every day. But oranges, grapefruit, bananas and apples are the fresh fruits during the rest of the year in most sections. Of these, apples probably are the most versatile. Children like them almost every way and especially raw. Scraped raw apple is one of the first fruits allowed very young children, then follow steamed or baked apples and strained apple sauce. It is best to peel apples before eating them when they are given to very young children.

Diced raw apples served with boiled rice, cinnamon and soft brown sugar make a delicious and popular breakfast dish and, with toast and a glass of milk, provide a wholesome meal.

Apples stewed in pineapple juice have all the advantages of both fruits and how the youngsters will go for it. Mix 1 cup sugar with 1 cup canned unsweetened pineapple juice and boil for a minute or two. Then add 6 large tart apples that have been peeled, cored and cut in eighths. Stew gently until the apples are soft but not broken. Skim out the fruit and put in a serving dish. Mix 2 teaspoons cornstarch with a tablespoon cold water and stir into the boiling fruit juice. Boil for 2 or 4 minutes, remove from the fire and pour over the apples. Serve cold.

There are many other ways of using apples, of course—sauteed apples, apple butter, jellied apples, cinnamon apple rings, apples-on-a-stick, etc. All in all, one of the pleasantest ways I can think of for "keeping the doctor away" is to follow the old adage of "an apple a day."

Ideas From a Cook's Notebook

To keep sausages from splitting in cooking place in a cold frying pan and add hot water to cover the bottom of the pan. Cook slowly and by the time the water has boiled off the sausages will begin to brown. Turn them when they are brown on one side. They will be plump, fine in flavor and will keep their shape.

When cooking dumplings, cover the pan when the dumplings are dropped in the stew or soup, and don't lift the cover until the necessary cooking time has elapsed. Small dumplings will cook in 10 minutes, while larger ones require 12 to 15 minutes. Peeping will make the dumplings heavy!

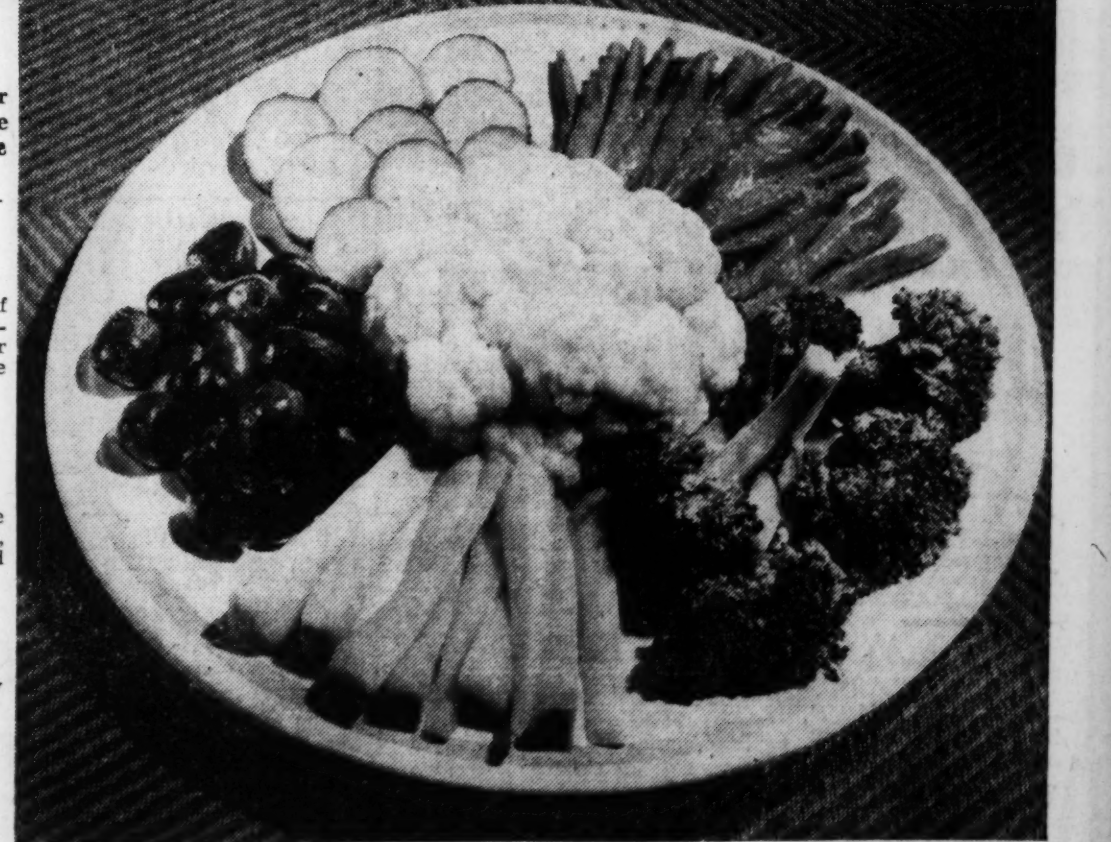

Do you know that a quarter-pound stick of butter is 1-2 cupful by measure? This saves time in making cake or using any recipe calling for that amount. By the same method, half a stick will be 1-4 cupful. Save yourself time in measuring.

Macaroni and Tomatoes.
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
Salt, pepper, 1-2 teaspoon celery salt
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 cups hot, strained tomatoes
1 9-oz. pkg. macaroni, cooked
Grated cheese
Melt butter, add flour and seasonings and when blended, add minced onion and strained tomatoes. Cook until smooth and add macaroni. Pour into buttered baking utensil, sprinkle with grated cheese and bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees, 15 or 20 minutes. Buttered crumbs may be used with grated cheese topping.

Split Stale Rolls, butter lightly and toast until the broiler flame until a golden brown. Or spread with a mixture of softened butter and grated cheese and then toast. In either case these are an ideal bread to serve with plain green or vegetable salads.

Mix boiled rice with any leftover peas, shredded string beans or cooked carrots and shape in a buttered ring mold. Turn out on a hot platter and fill the center with creamed chipped beef.

Scrambled Eggs and Corn
Cut fresh cooked corn from the cob until you have 3 cups to serve 5 or 6 people. Beat 6 eggs until frothy and then add 1-4 cup milk, 3-4 teaspoon salt, a dash of pepper. Melt 1-2 cup butter in a heavy frying pan, add the corn and 1 teaspoon chopped chives or 1-2 teaspoon grated onion and stir until the corn is very hot. Pour in the eggs and reduce the heat. Stir constantly over a low fire until the mixture is thick and creamy. Serve at once on a hot platter garnished with small triangles of butter toast sprinkled with chopped parsley and paprika.

Wholesome, health-giving vegetables are eaten more readily if seasoned with flavory butter sauces. See recipes for sauces next column.

1941 Fords Are Larger, Offer Comfort

Other New Features on Models Displayed Here.

The new 1941 model Fords which were placed on display in Atlanta yesterday, incorporate many changes, and the outstanding innovation is the increase in size for the Ford V-8s, De Luxe and Super De Luxe models.

The Ford is designed so that the increased wheelbase and overall lengths give added spaciousness, and bigger tires, luxury seat cushions, and new softer springs give more riding comfort.

The body length makes for more foot room, seating width, and head room and the window area is even larger this year.

Runningboards have practically disappeared from sight, due to the width of the new bodies, but they are there to step off on when the doors are open.

Engine Unique. The 85 horsepower V-8 engine is unique as it is the only eight cylinder car in the low price field. These new Fords have lower transmission gear ratios which make for a speedier "get-away."

The new electrically welded "X" type frame is 100 per cent more rigid, and the body is now mounted on big rubber cushions.

The springs, front and rear, eliminate "pitching" when riding. The shock absorbers are lever-type hydraulic and the ride stabilizer is connected by swinging shackles to the front axle.

The 1941 Fords have big 12-inch hydraulic brakes for quick, smooth action and long service. The emergency, hand parking brake, in on the rear wheels and operated by a steel cable. The brake level is under the instrument panel, at the left of the driver. The new hood lock knob is located under the instrument panel near the brake lever. This protects the engine, battery and accessories from theft.

There are 10 body types and nine color choices featuring added beauty inside and out with many new refinements in the appointments of the Ford cars.

Two Textbooks Are Written by Teachers Here

Publications Being Used in Evening, Junior Colleges.

Two new textbooks, by Professor V. V. Lavroff and Dr. Elmer G. Campbell, teachers in the Georgia Evening College, are being used for the first time this quarter in the college and in the Atlanta Junior College.

Dr. Campbell wrote "Life's Temples," a biological study of human beings, dedicated: "To all those who sit and wait while some fool writes a book." He was graduated from Hiram College, Ohio; earned his master's degree from Purdue University, where he later served as head of the botany department, and received his Ph. D. degree from the University of Chicago. He was president of Transylvania College for one year, and has been at the Evening College for the past five years.

Professor Lavroff, who also has been at the Evening College for five years, wrote "Topics in Elementary Algebra for Adult Students."

He was graduated from the Junior College in Harbin, China, and won his B. S. C. at Georgia Tech. Professor Lavroff took his masters in mathematics at Emory University.

Rochelle Rooster Needed A Lesson From Aesop

ROCHELLE, Ga., Sept. 26.—W. D. McCollum's game rooster didn't have a working knowledge of Aesop's fables, and failed to learn a lesson therefrom.

After he had traveled the neighborhood over, and whipped every rooster in sight, he returned home to mount the well curb and crow. Seeing his shadow in the water below, he jumped for his next victim, only to drown before his owner found him.

Airplane Adds To Problems Of War-Palmer

Military Expert Sees Central Planning as Important to Success.

By COL. FREDERICK PALMER, For North American Newspaper Alliance.
 NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—A unified air force, a minister of defense over all, or as we are? Shall we have central planning or not? In their studies of the reports of their attacks abroad, our army and navy staffs keep in mind the place air power shall have in the distribution of authority to make it most effective for our needs in well-timed, co-ordinated action.
 Enormously complex as staff preparation and direction had become in the World War, the airplane has made both far more complex in this war, which has shown central planning and control as an indispensable factor for success. Where formerly an army was strictly on its own on land and a navy on its own at sea, now both are served by a common, connecting third arm in a tactical revolution for both.

In Europe the air forces of both Germany and Great Britain and the vanquished nations are or were unified. Results so far have been indisputably authenticated in main essentials.

Supreme Nazi Command.
 For the German invasion of Norway an airman had supreme command, but he had all around staff training and experts in every branch under him. The British Navy, with its small fleet arm and home coastal air defense under the R. A. F., did not get the prompt emergency aid from the R. A. F. it called for.

When huge land forces were being pitted against huge land forces in the battles of Flanders and France, the German Army command was supreme. One of the group of German armies was assigned no planes for its mission at the start. Planes, tanks and the 20 mechanized of the 200 German divisions were each given tasks, in initial attack or reinforcement, in which they would best serve the purpose of the whole.

I knew in France at the time—and evidence supports the same conclusion about the French air force—that Lord Gort, British commander-in-chief, complained before the invasion of Belgium and Holland, and afterward when his army was in desperate straits and retreating, about the tendency of the "striking force" of the R. A. F. in France to run its own show without co-operative subordination to the army command.

Overlapping Inevitable.
 In what is strictly an air battle so far for the conquest of Britain, Reich Marshal Hermann Goering is in supreme command. The defense is inevitably overlapping in the army command. In case of emergency, which will mean land, sea and air fighting, we may be sure there will be central command to carry through central planning.

Some overlapping is inevitably unavoidable with the separate air forces of our Army and Navy. An army air base may adjoin a navy air base, under different commands. Either will have to give assent when aid from it is asked. The command of the Army G. H. Q. air force, whose mission is broad, may decide that it has an emergency of its own, or it has to hold its reserves to meet one which threatens, when it receives a hurry call from the Navy.

This is not implying that there is little co-operation between the Army and Navy. It has never been better. Sitting in staff councils are officers who were pilots in the early days of aviation, but now in middle-age have won rank and are grounded in the co-ordination of all arms.

In recent times we have had an aviator, a cavalryman, an engineer and an infantryman for chief of staff of the Army. Why not an aviator who has proved his executive capacity and broad outlook for chief of staff?
Air Officers' Views.
 But spirit of corps would be weakened if any member were not naturally an enthusiast for his branch of the service before he has high command and for his own service, army or navy, even after he has high command. I have found that veteran air officers who see the whole picture often hesitate about a unified air service because it means a third service, with time lost in council in a crisis when a few minutes' delay of a decision may be fatal in modern war.

A cabinet department of defense generally wins more receptivity, but it is usually dismissed as impracticable in our country. Just what is the idea? As I see it, a civil chief with a chief of staff of the whole surrounded by a staff of experts of all arms for unified central planning and execution of unified defense. This would include industrial procurement and prompt settlement of priorities in demands for material in preparation and in war.

 We are told that such a bold innovation in our system might come with war. It did in Britain under Prime Minister Winston Churchill, under the pressure of disaster, with the result of co-ordination and prompt decisions.
 How much better a position Britain would be in today if procrastinating discussions had been replaced by such centralization before the war began!

It is objected that a ministry of defense would open the way to more partisan political influence in the services. Then, it is asked, where would you find a man big enough for the job? I should say that we had a considerable choice of able executives in this world crisis, who would be free from all partisan political interests.

However, one thing is vital. The navy with its immense expanse of waters to defend must have an adequate fleet air arm.

Attempt To Get Suit
Lands Man in Prison
 Frank H. Johnson, white, went to get a suit out of a pressing club without a ticket and wound up with 12 months to serve on public works instead.

Testimony in Fulton criminal court was that Johnson, who has a long police record, attempted to obtain a suit of clothing from a laundry by identifying a suit but asserting he had lost or forgotten the ticket for it. The suit actually belonged to someone else. Judge Jesse M. Wood "wrote him a ticket" for 12 months on public works.

First Lady Glad Son Volunteered

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(P)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today in regard to her son Elliott's volunteering for a year of active service in the Army Air Corps: "I think it was the right thing for him to do, because he never would have been taken in any draft. You know he is 30, and he has a wife and two children."

Asked, "There would have been a chance of his being drafted, wouldn't there?" she replied: "Pretty remote, I think."

French Guiana Residents Want To Join U.S.

Majority Sympathize With de Gaulle's Movement for Freedom.

By MEIGS M. GREEN.
For North American Newspaper Alliance.
CAYENNE, French Guiana, Sept. 26.—A lopsided majority of the people of French Guiana are in sympathy with the "free France" movement of General Charles de Gaulle. They are heartily against the policies of the Vichy government and the French representatives still rule this French colony on the South American mainland.

Early in September two colony's trouble-shooters arrived by plane from Vichy to buck up the colony's sagging allegiance. Their influence can hardly be expected to penetrate deeper than the government officials and a few of the larger merchants, who have a vested interest in keeping the status quo. The bulk of the people are not likely to change their minds.

"Listening Post." The United States, aware of the tension in French Guiana, has lately set up a new consulate here—primarily of the "listening post" variety—and the move has caused excited comment in the colony. This opposition to the government is not a matter of confidential whispering among friends. Quite openly the residents of the colony are telling visiting Americans that they wish the United States would take the place over. Random citizens questioned by the writer in the streets, bars and plantations of French Guiana were willing and anxious to discuss their grievances against Vichy.

Get London News. Furthermore, the colonial government appears to be making little effort to suppress this popular feeling, and in some ways actually contributes to the trend. Every evening in Cayenne, the capital and principal city, the populace gathers in front of the city hall, where a radio blares forth the pro-de Gaulle war news broadcast in French from London. Up to a short while ago the public radio was tuned to the news from France, but the people demanded London news, and got it.

Just what they want to do about the situation is not so clear in the people's mind, but a large proportion of them are for annexation, not merely protection, by the United States. Another group would like to make the colony into a free republic. Some few even would like union with neighboring Brazil.

Several Reasons. The reasons for the anti-Vichy sentiment are several. The first one they tell you about is the obvious patriotic one; they have been taught from the first grade that France is the land of freedom, and they now cannot grasp the sudden switch to subservience. Reason No. 2 is the paralyzing effect on the colony's business that has resulted from the French surrender and consequent blockading by Britain. Practically every import used to come from France, including much of the food supply. These imports have come to a dead stop, and local stocks of many types of food and clothing are running out.

Beyond these current reasons for popular discontent is the long-standing economic distress that has haunted the colony since slavery was abolished 100 years ago. The people have never

INVITED TO SPEAK HERE—General Evangeline Booth, noted woman orator and former commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, is scheduled to address a mass meeting here December 1 commemorating the Army's 50 years' service in Atlanta.

General Booth Is Invited Here To Make Talk

Invitation Extended by Board of Salvation Army.

General Evangeline Booth, vigorous and colorful former commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, is to visit Atlanta December 1 to lead a celebration of the organization's fiftieth anniversary here.

An invitation to Miss Booth, internationally famed as an orator, was decided upon yesterday at a meeting of the citizens' advisory board of the army, headed by Preston S. Arkwright. It was planned that she should address a monster mass meeting in the Municipal Auditorium while here. The Salvation Army's coming to Atlanta was described by Lieutenant Commissioner William C. Arnold, southern commander. The first outdoor meeting was held on a corner at Spring and Marietta streets by the late Major John Dale.

A headquarters was established at 130 Marietta street. For the first few months the benches consisted of rough boards placed on boxes obtained from grocery stores. The only illumination came from kerosene lamps with tin reflectors hung upon the walls. The territory now embraces 15 states and the District of Columbia, with 934 offices and 367 employees established in 300 centers. "The War Cry," official publication, with a world-wide circulation, is published here.

Bata Workers Ordered To Leave This Country

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(P) The government today ordered 59 Bata Shoe Company employees to return to Czechoslovakia on the ground that the company misrepresented the kind of work they were brought into this country to perform.

Announcing this decision, Attorney General Jackson also declared that the company's apprenticeship system at its $2,000,000 Belcamp (Md.) plant was "completely foreign" to American ways and said that the chief characteristics of the Bata method were "child labor and low wages."

Spies are being spotted in Sydney, Australia, by clairvoyance. A patriotic laundryman employed a clairvoyant who said she could tell from articles of clothing what were the feelings and political leanings of the wearers. The laun-

Murder Syndicate Members Doomed

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(P)—Harry (Pittsburgh Phil) Strauss, 33, and Martin (Bugsy) Goldstein, 34, members of the Brooklyn murder-for-money syndicate, were sentenced today in Brooklyn county court to die in the electric chair during the week of November 4.

They were convicted of murder in the first degree by a jury last Thursday. Sentence was pronounced by Judge John J. Fitzgerald.

Songwriter Is Fined On Passport Charge

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(P)—Harry Revel, 37, member of the Hollywood songwriting team of Gordon and Revel, and Revel's brother, William, were fined $500 each today in federal court after they pleaded guilty to an indictment charging them with using passports obtained by misrepresentation.

Both brothers are British subjects. Their counsel said they had been the victims of racketeers who advised them improperly in regard to citizenship, knowing that they were "primarily artistic rather than practical men."

Stump Swing By Air Is Seen For Roosevelt

Plane Tour Would Be Dramatic in the Highest Degree.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—It is still too early in the campaign to predict what form it may take in its final swing, but White House observers would not be surprised to see President Roosevelt take a dramatic last-minute swing around the country by air if that seems to be necessary to arouse New Deal supporters to a smashing outpouring in the November elections.

Thus far Mr. Roosevelt has assumed an attitude of aloofness toward the presidential campaign. He has scheduled no speaking tour that might be cataloged as strictly political and the few major speeches he has delivered have been political only by implication. So well have things been going for the New Deal ticket, measured by current returns in the various nation-wide presidential polls, that most of his advisers have urged a continuation of his present course.

Twofold Objective.
If any decision is made to put forth a last-minute campaign effort by air it would be undertaken with a twofold objective:

First, to make the public more arming in relation to the importance of air power to our elaborate new system of national defense; and

Second, to insure that the President would not be more than a few hours away from Washington in case some sudden emergency in the foreign situation should command his immediate return to the seat of government.

For the President to make a campaign tour of the country by airplane would be dramatic in the highest degree. Not that he has not flown before. He flew from Albany, N. Y., to Chicago to accept his first nomination at the hands of the Democratic national convention seven years ago. But there is no record of him having flown since. The fact that the head of a great government may make a trip by air is still news of the first magnitude. For him to go now, it is suggested, would give to place the greatest emphasis on the far-flung efforts of the government for building up an air force in keeping with our national defense needs.

Many believe Mr. Roosevelt, with his love of the dramatic, would not hesitate a moment to launch such a campaign effort if he thought it necessary to win. As regards the second point, the President stated at the time he accepted the nomination for a third term that his then intention was to remain close to the Washington scene, not embarking on any extensive trip that would take him more than a few hours to return to the White House. By airplane it is no farther to Washington from California than it is by train from Tennessee, where he went recently to dedicate a new dam in connection with the TVA project.

At all times on the suggested air trip, therefore, he would be within a maximum of 15 or 16 hours from Washington. Credence to the report that Mr. Roosevelt is considering such a spectacular trip is suggested by the fact that an important White House attaché recently made a hurried flight around the continent over much the same territory that the President would cover in the event he decided on the undertaking. A certain political significance may be injected by the coincidence that the White House aide followed generally the same route Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican nominee, is taking on his present western swing.

May Trail Willkie.
All of which gives rise to the thought that Mr. Roosevelt may be planning to trail Mr. Willkie in a late October tour of the country, delivering a few major speeches as he goes and dropping in from the air on a number of state capitals.

Mr. Roosevelt has been proven to be one of the most effective presidential campaigners the country has ever seen. Polls in the past have shown that his personal popularity spirals upward with each appearance in a city and locality. Now that he has embarked on the controversial third-term enterprise he naturally, in the interest of national unity, would prefer to see his election gained by a substantial majority that would leave little doubt as to the true wishes of the country, feeling that only through such a victory could proper national unity be attained.

Under these circumstances, many observers would not be surprised to see him launch the airplane tour just before the elections, even though all indications at the time pointed to his re-election without much doubt.

Brooke Goes For a Swim, Tony Waits, Asks Her To Join Him For Cocktails

SYNOPSIS. Brooke Carter, her mother dead, her father remarried, goes to New York as secretary to Mrs. Kingsbury who she had met while the wealthy old lady was boarding in the New Hampshire town with Rod Westover's mother Grace. Really Brooke has come to New York to be near Rod to whom she has been engaged for four years and who has been very successful in business with Barney Glass since he finished college three years ago. She is surprised when Rod tells her he has moved from the apartment he shared with Jim Bartlett, a drawing room artist who was his college roommate and is now an accountant. Rod says Jim probably thinks him a snob but his position with Glass called for better living quarters. Rod says he must work the next night and she has dinner with Jim. Hesitatingly he tells her about Irene Davies, a wealthy divorcée who lives with Rod. Jim says "chasing" him. Brooke meets Irene at a cocktail party at Barney's. She knows Irene loves Rod. She also meets handsome Julian Carlton who, Rod tells her, is a brilliant corporation lawyer. She dines often with Rod. As she waits for him one gets a telegram stating that he and Irene are married and sailing for Hawaii. He agrees to go with Mrs. Kingsbury to Hawaii and Carlton sends flowers to the ship. She is seated at table with Harriet West. Bill Sawyer and Anthony Morrison, not knowing that Morrison is Irene's son. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVI. She nodded and smiled. "Yes!" Meeting his eyes again, warmed by them, conscious of their beauty, seeing no secrets in them but only an obvious approval of her, she felt an inner glow. She felt... Oh, but she was hungry!

(Tony, Irene's son, ate his scrambled eggs as if he were hungry, too.) They were, as ship acquaintances usually are, curious about each other and being unseasoned travelers were not uncommunicative. Bill Sawyer asked Brooke if this were her first trip through the canal, and when she told him it was, he admitted that it was his also. Harriet West nodded, too. Tony Morrison said quietly that it was not his first trip. Since California happened to be his home, he always made the trip by sea when time permitted. The trip was business for Bill, an owner of kennels, and he was taking west to a wealthy dog fancier a thoroughbred which had won many prizes. For Harriet the trip was her annual vacation from what appeared to be an unpleasant office in New York.

Brooke explained herself: "And I'm secretary to an elderly lady. We are going to Hawaii from Los Angeles." "Hawaii!" Tony brightened. "You'll love it!" He smiled at each but his glance dwelt on Brooke. "I'm going home. At least I think of California as my home though I've been away at school for the last 10 years. For that matter, I'm still in school but after a pretty mean case of grippe, the powers that be thought I'd better take it easy until the fall term. Those powers being my mother and a few other people not related."

"Doing graduate work?" Bill asked. Tony nodded. "Yes, at Michigan." Brooke's eyes were excited. She felt as if she had come out of a tomb. She thought of the drab apartment she had left with profound relief that she had escaped it and with the determination never to return to it. Bill grinned at her across the table. "I'll show you the dog sometime when I go up to take him for a walk."

Brooke wondered at Tony's age. To be taking graduate work, he was no doubt as old or older than she, and yet he seemed so young that she thought of him as a mere boy, or was she surprised that his interests were scholarly. It was simpler to imagine the handsome back head and unperturbed clear hazel eyes in a library of classics than in a business office. She liked him so much that she was suddenly fearful he would say something to disappoint her.

But of the three only Harriet disappointed her when with a surprising coyness she told how many baskets of fruit, how many telegrams and how many flowers she had received. "I've got so much I don't know what I'm going to do with it. I had no idea, really..." You're welcome to any of it... Bill arched a brow. "Not the corsages..."

Harriet lowered her head as if she were trying to conceal a blush and looked up coyly. "Now what would you do with my corsages?" Giggling, she turned to Brooke. "Have you seen the swimming pool? I'm just dying to go swimming."

They parted at the entrance to the room. When Brooke left her new acquaintances at the dining room door, she went to her cabin for her brown coat. A few moments later on deck she saw Harriet, walking also, wearing a beige coat with a luxurious fox collar. They walked together, Harriet saying "Aren't they nice? The boys at our table. I mean, Tony and Bill. I think we were lucky to get them, don't you?" When a good-looking man passed, she ogled him and laughed demurely in her collar. "I think this is going to be fun, don't you? My mother was so worried about my going alone... Of course I'm being met in Los Angeles and he'll show me a wonderful time... Are your clothes wrinkled? Oh, I know I've brought too many with me... Five evening dresses, all new. How many did you bring?"

"Three," Brooke said and looked at her watch. It was a quarter to 11. She smiled at Harriet. "I'm going to work now."

"Work? Work to be done on a ship? Oh, you mean... Oh, isn't that a shame? Well, see you later..." Ellen opened the door of Mrs. Kingsbury's cabin and murmured a cheerful greeting.

Mrs. Kingsbury said, smiling grimly, "now that's fresh air!" To Brooke directly, "you can get deck chairs from the deck steward. I'll sit on deck for a while this afternoon. There's a library on board where you can see about books. It used to be a good library. Now about work... I'd like to go over with you again our reservations in Los Angeles and the ship."

Despite the unusual brightness of her voice, the old lady seemed prostrate and her long hands thinner, the blue veins protruding. When she raised one, Brooke saw that it was shaking and that in the cruel, telltale glare, Mrs. Kingsbury looked more than usually worn and old. Like a motherbird, Ellen hovered near. Dismissed an hour later, Brooke obtained deck chairs and books. But, since Mrs. Kingsbury had voiced a stern wish to sit on deck in the warmest part of the afternoon and Brooke had to be among the first to go to the dining room for luncheon, she ate alone. And as she would for several succeeding afternoons, she spent the first at sea in a deck chair beside Mrs. Kingsbury, who intermittently dozed and stared at passing people.

Brooke dozed, too, unmindful that the long, black lashes flat against her face had brought Tony Morrison to that particular spot twice, hoping each time to find her awake. When finally she awoke, the shadows of twilight were on the sea, the air was cold, and few people were passing. Beneath the robe, she stretched like a kitten.

"You've had a good nap," Mrs. Kingsbury said when Brooke glanced to see if the old lady was still here. "I didn't have the heart to awaken you. It's getting colder and I'm going in. There's nothing like it—nothing like this air. It puts life back in you."

With Mrs. Kingsbury in her cabin, Brooke went to hers and hurried into her new bathing suit, a slim, blue satin thing, and a white robe. In the corridor again, she inquired of the stewardess the direction to the swimming pool, thinking, "I feel alive again!" It was as if happiness were new. But it wasn't happiness, she corrected herself. It was merely stimulation, to escape from drabness and pathetic old-age, and from scenes too closely associated with silent despair.

The pool was crowded and noisy with chatter and splashing. Harriet and Bill and Tony, the men in shorts, Harriet in a printed cotton suit, were standing beside the pool, smoking.

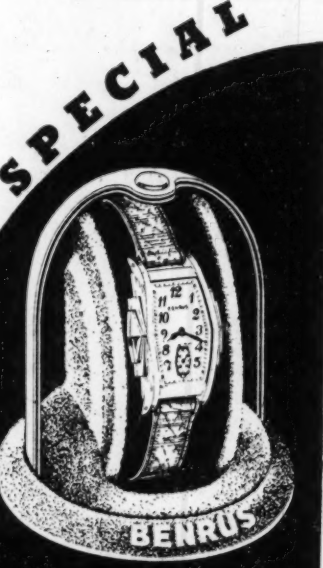

"You were asleep," Tony said with mock disapproval.

Bill asked, "and is she beautiful when she's asleep?" Tony said, "You mean—also?" Harriet was most concerned. "And you didn't get tea? We've finished our swim," she added apologetically.

Tony said, "I'll wait for you, Brooke."

Bankers Urged To Consider Local Needs

P. D. Houston Installed as President of Association.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 26.—(P)—Envisaging a decade-long trend toward decentralization of industry, P. D. Houston, Nashville banker, formally installed tonight as president of the American Bankers' Association, urged bankers from all over the country to turn their attention to the people, industries and needs of their local communities.

"From a military point of view alone," Houston said, "there is much to be said for decentralization. Whether or not you believe in it, you are going to hear more about it in the next 10 years than you have in the past."

"Bankers must study their communities as they never have before. Our banks will be effective very largely in proportion to our ability to relate them to local needs."

Houston is chairman of the board of the American National Bank. Sixty-six years old, he began his banking career in Lewisburg, Tenn., with the People's Bank. He purchased a controlling interest, with associates, in the American National in 1918. Among his many connections are the vice-presidency of the Tennessee Central Railway and membership on the executive committee of Vanderbilt University.

Mercury Falls 27 Degrees as Cold Hits Dixie

New York City Has Coldest September 26 in 70 Years.

By The Associated Press.
Sharply colder weather, accompanied by heavy frosts, enveloped the eastern half of the nation yesterday.

New York city experienced the coldest September 26 in 70 years and upstate, at Batavia, a light snow heralded the approach of winter.

The frosts extended eastward from Missouri and Illinois into Pennsylvania, New Jersey and western New York, and throughout this area temperatures dropped below or hovered near freezing.

The south, too, felt the sting of chill winds while a strong high pressure area moved across the country. In Georgia and the Carolinas the mercury plunged from 20 to 27 degrees below yesterday's low readings, and in Washington the mercury dropped to 41, 30 degrees below the previous day's minimum.

New York city's record cold was 42.1 degrees, but upstate the temperature went much lower. Owl's Head reported 25, Albany and Syracuse 35, Watertown 28, Malone, 29, and Rome, 30.

Low readings in New Jersey included 34 at Flanders and Ironia, 35 at Succasunna, Mount Olive and Mount Freedom, 32 at Ledgerwood and 38 at Kenilworth. Elkins, W. Va., had a minimum of 29. Other cold spots were Chicago 38; Cincinnati, 36; Bangor, Maine, 30; Birmingham, Ala., 48; Fort Wayne, Ind., 33; St. Louis, 35; Tyler, Tex., 30; Grand Rapids, Mich., 30, and Burlington, Vt., 37.

Despite slightly warmer weather in the northwestern plains states, the cold snap was expected to continue a day or two longer.

Atlanta Lagging, LeCraw Declares

Atlanta is lagging behind other progressive cities of the country in obtaining its share of war industries, Mayor-elect Roy LeCraw yesterday told members of the Atlanta Convention Bureau.

Speaking at the regular luncheon meeting of the bureau, LeCraw urged its members to "bestir themselves and get some of the major manufacturing plants and other pay rolls which the federal government is sponsoring in the national defense program."

He cited that Mobile for instance has already obtained millions of dollars in improvements incident to the defense program, and challenged his hearers to show a single project which Atlanta has obtained except in the industrial way.
